Ad Tips—Arrange for window displays with Majestic radio dealers and place models of their machines in lobby for display; tie-up with drug stores for window displays on Barbasol shaving cream and knit ties with haberdasheries for Ralph Graves' photo and scenes from play; tie-up with Brunswick and Columbia for records and have loud speakers placed outside theatres with music and songs from play broadcast from records. Use large three column ad from press book with Belle Baker's head in line cut in lower right corner and white panels above with name of star and title and scenes from picture. Use copy at top of ad on either side of signature reading; "Now playing at the George M. Cohan Theatre at $2 top. Here at our regular prices. New York has acclaimed it." Audience appeal, great for all those who enjoy hearing Belle Baker sing. Fine story that will particularly appeal to women.—Frank Price, Jr., Mgr., Rivoli, Baltimore.

Praise & Criticism!

AVING listened to so much of this so-called "constructive criticism," we had almost decided that the poor hackneved phrase was getting an awful lot of play from too many sources, when along comes a visitor to Club headquarters with a most charming personality and a knack of selling his ideas because he himself is completely sold on them.

He, too, told us about "constructive criticism," BUT, he added that he had a better plan in dealing with his house managers and other employees on the circuit which he supervises.

He was a great believer in "constructive praise."

Here is something for you boys to play around with for a little while and then try to figure out just how much the expression is worth to you and your subordinates in the operation of your thea-

Why not, "constructive praise"? Any manager possessed of executive ability should recognize the value of a "pat on the back" to one of the staff when they have accomplished something really worth while.

No need to wait until they do something wrong to show your "big heart" or generous spirit by handing out some "constructive criticism."

Maybe you would need it far less if you kept your weather eye peeled for the good things your employees are doing and adding to your word of praise a little constructive suggestion that might even improve upon what they have accomplished.

Especially in these modern days of sound and sound projection is the above suggestion more than worthy of your consideration.

We have had too much to say already about those quick tempered managers who rush into the booth with a mouth full of abuse for the operators and a head that is probably full of sawdust.

If you, knew enough about the workings of the booth you would soon realize the true value of "constructive praise" when it comes to discussing the booth and sound problems with your projectionists.

And the funny part of the story is that those operators would welcome your ideas and suggestions if they respected your common sense judgment on such matters.

We could rave on and on about this subject indefinitely but after all is said about it surely you will agree that, regardless of what part of the theatre we are talking about, the practice of "constructive praise" is of even far greater importance than the overworked "constructive criticism."

One of the first qualifications a real showman must possess is executive ability and, if nature provided you with this valuable necessity, then you will more than appreciate what we are talking about.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLU

Don't Fall Asleep!

There are quite a few holidays and celebrations that are so strictly a local, city or state affair that we, here in Club headquarters, would have one tough time trying to ferret them out for you.

If you are a wide-awake manager, you will know—well in advance—when any such an occassion is due and can therefore make your plans accordingly.

We shall publish every week some announcement pertaining to coming holidays etc., but you can find the more local ones vourself.

Gillis Gets A Bag Of Gold And Send Off From The Boys

About the best way of telling this story is to clip from the front page of the Meriden Daily Journal the paragraph which tells you what we failed to find additional words to convey.

Not only Meriden and the employees of the Fox Palace Theatre there, but the membership of the MANAGERS'

ruRSE OF GOLD

Theatre Manager Honored By Employes

ROUND TABLE CLUB wishes Mr. Gillis success in his new position. You SGIVENGILLS may recall that he is going to take up the managerial reins of the Fox Palace Theatre in Waterbury, and he will be succeeded in Meriden by Harold Waugh, who was formerly in Meriden handling the Fox theatres of that city.

Don't forget your promise when you were in New York, Al, to let us know what's doing up in Waterbury that might be of interest to the CLUB and its many members. And by all means, run in again when you get down our way.

"Thank You, Bair"

It was certainly mighty nice of E. E. Bair, manager of the State & American Theatres in East Liverpool, Ohio, to phone me while I was in Pittsburgh recently.

We are rather proud that we have built up so warm a friendship with Bair, as with so many other showmen, to make them as anxious to talk to us personally as we are to meet and talk with them.

Mr. Bair, incidentally, was just recently appointed to act as Regional Chairman for Eastern Ohio and his activities for that portion of the state will soon become interesting reading on our Club pages.

Golden Gate Mgrs. Are 100 Per Cent For The M.R.T.C.

With the Golden State Theatre Circuit of Oakland, Cal., practically lined up 100 per cent for membership in the MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB we are now getting set to introduce each of these boys individually, as fast as we are successful in getting their photographs for reproduction on these pages.

One of the first to respond to our request was Mr. R.

Hendrickson, manager of the Lincoln Theatre in Oakland, Cal.

We are very grateful to Mr. M. G. Keller, the Division Manager in Oakland for this Circuit for his marvelous cooperation and we also want to express our appreciation to the other boys of this division who have lined up solidly for the ROUND TABLE CLUB, because they honestly feel that it pays them to follow our activities and find out what the other showmen are doing all over the world.

Mr. Hendrickson, from his photograph, strikes us as being one of the young aggressive type of showmen who are rapidly dominating the show business today by reason of their wideawake and go-getting methods. That he has entered upon his membership in the ROUND TA-BLE CLUB with a spirit of getting the most out of it, and passing on something to his brother members means that in this chap we have a marvelously active member. Watch for some of Hendrickson's and the other managers' of the Golden State Circuit exploitation activities on these pages.

Hardy Wants Them All To Join The Club-Great Stuff

The remarkable spirit displayed by members all over the world in the activities and benefits of the ROUND TABLE CLUB are naturally a source of great pleasure to us here at CLUB headquarters, because it is the only barometer we have that what we are trying to accomplish is really successful.

Of course, we could point to the terrific mail that passes through CLUB headquarters, and finds its way on to our pages in MOTION PICTURE NEWS each week, but that would hardly be the sole symptom that what we have started is going over as big as we would like it to.

When members, however, write letters in which they propose their assistant managers and others identified in important work in and around the theatre, such as J. B. Hardy of Loew's Mall Theatre, in Cleveland, Ohio, recently has done, then we are certain that we are headed in the right direction.

"J. B." opened his latest letter by saying "enclosed find membership blank for my assistant manager, as I want to make my theatre 100 per cent." Fine, Hardy, and we want you to know we appreciate this spirit.

We could go on for pages and pages telling you about similar incidents, but we have picked on this one, because it happened to lie on the desk at the moment we were writing this little story, and we are sure that the reaction that we had at CLUB headquarters will be appreciated by our members all over the world.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Edward Ahrens Another Young Showman To Hop Abroad

As you will see from this photograph of Edward Ahrens, he is rather a young chap to be head of and managing a theatre like the Paramount in Elizabeth, La. However, it does not make the slightest bit of difference, because he can acquire plenty of knowledge along the lines of showmanship and theatre operation through following the activities of the MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB and at the same time contributing to our pages some of his own successful experiences. He feels that he is in a position to learn a lot from the CLUB, which means that he has placed himself in a receptive frame of mind to take advantage of the activities of his much older in age and experience brother managers. Let us hope that he benefits through his connection and association with this organization, and that our other members in turn benefit from his being a member and an active contributor to these pages.

Thank you for your good wishes, Edward, and try and keep us posted with a regular letter at frequent intervals.

Nat Silver's Activities Are Going Over Up In Lowell

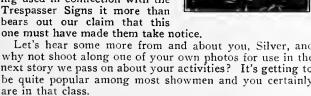

Manager Nathan Silver derived lots of publicity on "The Trespasser" playing at the Merrimack Square Theatre, Lowell, Mass., when he put out a number of "No Trespasser" signs.

Most of these signs were placed along the highways leading into the city, but several were placed on the outskirts of woods. With the hunting season in full swing, many hunters were amazed at seeing these signs. In fact, the hunters were so impressed with the idea of seeing these signs that it made excellent talk. The news spread to a countless number of people thus attesting to the originality of the idea as well as being a good medium in plugging the picture.

We are sure you will agree with us that "Nat" put over a corking good stunt on this one and if you look over the wording used in connection with the Trespasser Signs it more than bears out our claim that this

Waterbury Pays Howard Waugh A Fitting Tribute

The marvelous tribute paid to Howard Waugh when he left the Fox Palace Theatre in Waterbury to take over the similar duties in the Fox houses in Meriden, Conn., prompted us to reproduce here the story exactly as it appeared in the paper.

With such a tribute, it must certainly be with a feeling of keen regret that a man like Howard must leave a town in which he has earned so fine a reputation. We are sure that the folks in Meriden will have the same opinion of this corking fine showman whom it was our pleasure to meet personally not so very long ago.

"It is with deep regret that the Tower this evening acquaints its readers with news that Howard Waugh, manager of the Palace theatre, is leaving Waterbury, to take up the managership of the Fox-Palace in Meriden and look after details of the remodeling of the Poli theatre in that city. He leaves us November 1st. Waterburians without exception are sorry to learn of Mr. Waugh's transfer. During his stay in this city he has built up a remarkable acquaintance. A gentleman and bearing all the attributes of men who look with pride man and bearing all the attributes of men who look with pride upon their profession, he has at all times radiated the confidence and intelligence of genuine managerial ability. Howard Waugh respected his public. Their vibrations were the yardstick on which he predicted his program. He gave Waterburians the best he had, displaying a brand of showmanship that endeared him to the public. Easy to approach, cognizant that endeared him to the public. Easy to approach, cognizant and appreciative of favors bestowed upon him, we had hoped he would remain with us indefinitely, but Meriden gains what Waterbury loses and we find comfort in the thought that Howard will just be on the other side of the mountain, where we can call in occasionally and say hello. They say newspapermen are cynical, that they fail to cotton to public figures, as do others in different professions. It may be so, but during my acquaintance with Howard Wangh, I have enjoyed the man in him. Long before I was fortunate enough to be introduced, his little talks over the 'phone, and the clever way in which he handled the theatre, convinced me we had a genuine leader in our midst. It was a pleasure to know him and I leader in our midst. It was a pleasure to know him and I feel a personal loss in his going. Through the Tower, he wishes to thank his many friends, and Mrs. Waugh joins him in the public acknowledgment. In saying goodbye to Howard, I want to publicly thank him for his many kindnesses to me personally. And may I venture the wish, that perhaps he'll come back to us again. We're going to leave the door open, welcome on the mat and a candle burning in the window."

Howard, old top, I certainly got a thrill of pleasure when I read that article, and I know that your many friends scattered all over the country will be equally as pleased when they read it. Lets hear some more from you.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLU

Fill In The Name Yourself!

Below is a copy of a letter received from an assistant house manager.

Unsolicited, he expressed his own and the other employees opinion of the "boss."

How many of you fellows reading this can honestly say that your subordinates think as much of you? Read on:

"As a member of Manager* ?s staff I would like to express the appreciation of all the employees. I am very glad to say, and I know that the rest of the boys will back me, that he is a real showman—always on the go-and we are glad to have him a superior, for he is a real business man.

Since he was made Manager of our theatre everything is going along well. We all wish him success!"

Finley's "Spook" Party A B.O. Wallop In Tampa, Fla.

O. G. Finley, manager of the Seminole Theatre, one of Tampa, Fla., leading neighborhood houses put over a corking angle in the way of a Hallowe'en party.

Finley, advertised his stunt quite extensively and arranged that it follow the regular Thursday night performance.

All those coming to the theatre were asked to dress in costume and he surrounded his program with many "spookie" angles. That the stunt was a turn away as far as business was concerned is a credit to Finley's ingenuity and we are certain that Tampa and the Seminole patrons had plenty to talk about for weeks after the party.

There are other times of the year outside of Hallowe'en that costume parties can be arranged as a nucleus for midnight parties that will go far in stimulating interest either in a particular picture or in the theatre itself, and it provides that needed variety necessary to take the theatre out of some monotonous runs of the same thing all over again.

Here is a stunt from Finley that is ready to be plucked by the wise showmen who are on the alert for something new and different.

Thank you "O. G." and let's hear some more about your activities, will you?

Jack Goldstein says:

J. Scanlon's Peppy Showmanship Continues To Click

ner New England group.

It has been some time since we have had the opportunity of making mention of our old friend Johnny Scanlon, who is operating the Palace Theatre, in Torrington, Conn., for the War-

From the photograph with this story, you will see how he dressed a mighty attractive and effective window for the Four Marx Brothers in "Cocoanuts." Incidentally, this is but a small sample of Johnny's marvelous showmanship, as we have had many opportunities to personally investigate and take note of, but he is the type of young aggressive showman that is constantly on his toes to give the theatre any kind of break that he can possibly secure through merchant co-operation, newspaper publicity or proper presentation of the shows, so that the patrons go home more than ordinarily satisfied.

We are glad to report that Johnny is doing great business up his way ever since Warners took over the theatre. With the throwing of some mighty great shows, they have subsequently cashed in on some pretty good business.

Putting a Victor combination radio and phonograph set in the lobby of the theatre and plugging the numbers from the picture "Gold Diggers" was just another one of Johnny's ways of keeping the attraction and its many tuneful melodies before the patrons and the public in general of Torrington. This has already resulted in mighty fine business for theatres all over the country, and we are not at all surprised that Johnny cashed in on it himself. Incidentally on this same attraction, they put a loud speaker in a Hupmobile car which was parked in front of the dealers store next door to the theatre and with a marvelous spotlight playing on the car, people stopped and listened to the radio reception and also to the numbers from the picture.

We were tickled to death to hear from you again, Johnny, and at least try to make it a point to make your silent periods much shorter than they have been lately. Don't forget that we are always anxious to keep in touch with our many members, and the only way we can do so and to let the membership in general know about them, is to carry something about their activities or about them personally on these pages from time to time. Don't keep quiet too long, as Torrington is not so very far off, and we expect to be up New Haven and Meriden way before very long and hope to run up to see you anyhow, so for the present, so long, and lots of luck.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Emig's Club Spirit!

The following letter from R. F. Emig, manager of the Publix-Columbia Theatre in Davenport, Iowa, struck us as being so typical of this wide-awake showman that we decided to pass it along without alteration or re-writing it. It certainly gives us all at Club headquarters, a thrill of pleasure to receive such communications and knowing of Mr. Emig's fine showmanship, we are all the more delighted to get this letter and photograph from him.

Homer Le Tempt Ties Up Local Public Schools Nicely

The public schools of Austin, Texas, came through with splendid cooperation for Manager Homer Le-Tempt, when the Majestic Theatre played EVANGE-LINE.

The idea of the cooperation was a poster contest conducted through the art classes of all the public schools in Austin. The Superintendent of Austin's schools gave his full permission with the result that the attraction EVANGELINE was announced in all class-rooms by the teachers. Stills were distributed together with 1-sheets, these Stills and 1-sheets being the inspiration for the posters to be made by the children.

Twenty posters were received which were good enough to be displayed in the lobby of the Majestic Theatre. In addition, ten posters from very little children were received, and these were made the basis of the feature story in the Austin Statesman.

The poster contest climaxed with a children's matinee announced for the hours of 4 and 6 on opening day of EVANGELINE. Special price of 10c was made to the lower grades for this matinee, while high-school students paid 25c. 1700 children in all attended the Majestic Theatre during these two hours. Incidentally, it might be mentioned that the seating capacity of the Majestic is only 1475.

Now I ask you other fellows, isn't the above layout a corker when it comes to kicking up business plus school co-operation? Say "No" and I'll shoot you on sight. If some of the boys who are doing the crying lately would only settle back in their chairs and close their eyes for a few moments it might surprise them to find that they can connect hundreds of Round Table Club ideas with their own local situation.

Try it. Call it a "Club seance," if you want to, but if it provides you with one good angle then you're in money. Right? You're durn tootin.'

ASK US ABOUT IT! -

A. Johnny Mack, manager of the Stanley-Warner Hawthorne Theatre, Newark, N. J., is helping to celebrate the November Victory month with a bang.

There have been so many activities engineered under Johnny's direction, that it is rather difficult for us to select a few at random to pass on to the readers of these pages. However, we do want you to see the corking gags he ran in the nature of a local movie stunt whereby movies were taken of different folks around the community in which the Hawthorne Theatre is located, and shown on the screen in conjunction with this card which we are reproducing.

The "Do You Know Your Neighbor" gag, as he called it was a "wow" in boosting interest in the theatre and creating a lot of talk among the patrons.

However, that was just the beginning of his many stunts, and the fact that he is not asleep is plainly shown by the second card, which we show here, about Santa and the stocking gag. This is a mighty ripe time of the year to start stuff of this kind, and this evidence that Mack has been on the job, is a tribute to his showmanship.

As we said in the beginning of this article it is rather difficult for us to select several of the contributions he sent us for publication, because there was so much fine material among them. However, this much we will say, that he has successfully worked a marvelous radio tieup that resulted in a tremendous amount of increased business in addition to the stunt described above. Thank you, Johnny, for keeping up your marvelous CLUB spirit, and we would like to have you continue your active membership with a contribution of your present activities. By the way, Johnny, how about one of your own photographs?

A. M. Avery Advanced To Present Post From Ranks

Another enthusiastic follower of the ROUND TA-BLE CLUB pages is Adna M. Avery, manager of the Publix Criterion Theatre in Enid, Oklahoma. As you will note from the accompanying photograph Adna is another showman typical of the aggressive young bloods that are rapidly carving niches for themselves in the records of showmanship.

Adna has been connected with Publix Theatres for the past eight years at various locations, which included managing the Capitol Theatre in Oklahoma City, the Palace, Rialto & Busbee Theatres in McAlister, Okla., and was also at Little Rock, Ark.

As a student at the Publix School for Managers, he attracted attention to his fine work, and he is now resident manager at the Criterion.

It shall be our pleasure to have this member keep us posted on his activities, and we are certain that most of his successful stunts will find their way into good use among our other members and

In the meantime, the ROUND TABLE CLUB wishes to convey to Mr. Avery their best wishes for his success.

G. L. Kidwell, manager of the Strand Theatre in Waloo, Iowa, added a new slant to the usher card when he used one, as shown on the accompanying cut with this story.

We are grateful to Mr. Kidwell for this fine opinion of the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages in his letter in which he tells us that he feels that it is one of the most valuable parts of the publication and that he follows it regularly.

We are certain that his wish to see it become still larger will be granted if it is physically possible for your Chairman to turn out more copy from the hundreds of contributions received.

Welcome, "G. L." and

You might also send us a photograph as we keep quite a file of such things from all our members and rather like the idea of using one in introducing a member more intimately on these pages.

J. D. Hill Gives Some Good Advice

J. D. Hill, manager of the Cumberland Theatre in Tullahoma, Tenn., makes what we believe to be a very On A Timely Topic timely suggestion in connection with talking pictures.

He has found that it is a good idea not to advertise any talking picture as any particular star's first talking role as he finds most of the public seems to think that these socalled talking pictures are not as good as the rest that follow from this particular star. To bear out this contention, he calls our attention to several recent broadcasts by movie stars, in which the very first words they uttered were "This is the first time I have been before the micro-phone, and I am very nervous." So therefore the people get the impression that they have never worked before a mike" before and would naturally be a bit shy in their first attraction for the talking screen.

Thanks, "J.D.", I am glad to have heard from you again. Knowing that you are following our pages each week is sufficient satisfaction, even though we would be glad to hear from you more often telling us about your own activities. However, we are certain that as soon as you have something that may be of interest to your brother members and managers you will immediately forward it to us for use on these pages. Until that time, we will just have to await your pleasure, but we just want you to know that we are still looking forward to hearing from you as an active member once again.

J. C. Wodetsky Is Kept Busy For The Regent Co. Chain

J. C. Wodetsky, general manager for the Regent Theatre Company in Detroit. Mich., is one of the showbusiness' G. Ms. who is 100 per cent in accord with the activities of the MAN-AGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB.

'J. C." has said many complimentatry things about your chairman and the organization in general and we do want him to know through this medium that we appreciate his feelings about the organization.

But listen, Wodetsky, don't you think that you have been a member long enough to become a little more regular in contributions dealing with showmanship and theatre operation angles of the business? You are fortunately located so that anything you may write on this particular subject is bound to command a certain amount of respect and attention. Come on, be a sport, "J. C." and tell the boys something about your experiences in this show business of ours.

Thanks kindly for your congratulations and good wishes, and maybe our guiding star will take us in your direction in the near future, so that we can meet you personally.

R. K. Fulton Used "Speed Cars" To Sell His Attraction

One of the racing cars was driven about the streets of the city all day Saturday and Sunday and the other car was parked in front of theatre > throughout the picture's run. The car in front of theatre as well as the one traveling the streets had a driver dressed in the regulation racing-driver's uniform.

R. K. Fulton used two racing cars to excellent advantage in exploiting "Speedway" playing at the Princess Theatre, Sioux

Both cars carried banners over the hood advertising the attraction and both drivers carried signs on their backs selling the attraction.

A tie-up was also promoted with a tire agency whereby they ran a large co-operative ad in the newspaper before opening and also sent out 7,000 circulars on a special mailing list to their customers advising them of the tieup.

Holden Gets Another Member Down In Havana, Cuba

Earle M. Holden, always an enthusiastic booster and member of our CLUB has just informed us that he returned from a vacation in Havana, Cuba and found things theatrically very nice.

Earle tells us that one of the outstanding theatres is Teatro Fausto which is a Paramount house and managed by Leonard Grossman. We are certainly going to follow Earle's suggestion and enroll Mr. Grossman for membership in the MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB upon his proposal.

We should more than be delighted to pass on to our other members and readers what they are doing to exploit and publicize pictures down in Havana, especially through the activities of Leonard Grossman and his staff, so we have a treat in store for us at an early date.

Well, Earle, we certainly are glad to know that you had an enjoyable vacation down there in Havana, and we shall certainly follow your advice to spend ours there at the first opportunity we get, (and also if we save up enough money). Keep us posted on some of the peppy stuff you are pulling down there in Miami, because after a vacation a manager like yourself is generally all pepped up with plenty of new ideas accumulated during the relaxation period. Chamber Of Commerce Tie-Up Good For M. Melincoff Community goodwill continues to play an important part in the showmanship activities of Max Melincoff, manager of the Capitol Theatre, Pawtucket, R. I., for the E. M. Loew Circuit.

The latest he plans to do out there in Pawtucket is before us in the form of a letter sent out by the Pawtucket Chamber of Commerce to a selected list of about 2,000 names of the local women's clubs, associations, etc., in which many fine things were said about the Capitol Theatre. This tieup resulted in about a 50 per cent response, which is marvelous reaction for this type of tie-up and unquestionably, even those who did not take advantage of the invitation to be the theatre's guest, at least felt that a courtesy had been extended, and the appreciation was there just the same.

We are always delighted to pass on Max's activities, because they are so typical of what other showmen in similar towns and cities should be doing, and we feel certain that many of our members and readers are continually taking advantage of these suggestions and no doubt, cashing in on them.

Thank you, Max, and let's hear from you again real soon, we don't like to have you silent for too long a period at any time, also regards to the rest of the boys on the E. M. Loew's circuit.

Jimmy McKoy Tries A Few New Ones To Stir Up Business

cause it will remain in the home or in the pocket of those receiving it. The second is a visiting card of which we are showing you both sides of the gag used for "Sherlock Holmes." This likewise is out of the ordinary and is therefore good stuff any time you can make use of it.

Here's a Good Rule!

Never Miss a Show at the Olympia! And by all means see and hear Paramount's All-Talking production of "THE VIRGINIAN", based on Owen Wisters famous novel. With Gary Cooper, Walter Huston, Richard Arlen, Mary Brian. OLYMPIA THEATRE-WED. THUR. FRI. SAT. Nov. 67-8-9

Jimmy has been keeping mighty busy lately, and among his activities were many spooky stunts to sell "Three Live Ghosts" when that attraction played his house just before Hallowe'en.

Dressing the outside lobby and foyer, he cut out spooks, ghosts, witches and other appropriate decorations and created a very unusual and atmospheric front for the occasion. As a direct tieup with the attraction he placed three mechanical ghosts in the center of the foyer, with the mechanism so constructed as to make the ghosts spring at patrons as they entered the theatre.

Here's hoping that none of them fainted in their tracks, Jimmy, especially the so-called "weaker" sex.

We'll have to stop talking about Jimmy, we've mentioned him so often lately, they'll begin to think he's related to us. At any rate, we are glad to get his stuff and we're going to work out a special feature story about some of his recent outstanding showmanship. For this purpose, "Mac," we can use one of your own photographs. Can you manage to send us one by return mail? Thanks anyway in advance, as we will be looking for it.

S. S. Holland Put Over Publix Celebration Week Big

Manager S. S. Holland had to put over a Publix-Celebration Week and so started out to exploit his attractions so that the population of theatre goers in Brockton, Mass., were sure to know about it.

The picture got a good opening when much publicity was gleaned from the preview showing with the Mayor and members of the Police department in attendance.

Strips were pasted on the front page of the evening newspaper selling the Publix Celebration Week, the preview showing to the Mayor and the police department and "Sherlock Holmes" at the Publix-Rialto.

One of the best selling window displays was made possible through the courtesy of the Eastern Steamship Lines who loaned a model of one of the trans-Atlantic steamers. This model was over six feet in length and was placed in one of the best located windows in town.

Ribbons running from staterooms to neatly lettered cards helped to sell the picture; the cards carrying copy of what occurred in each room of the liner on which Sherlock Holmes solved the mystery.

A street ballyhoo was also used—in the form of a giantsized book on which was lettered the title of picture, star, name of theatre and play dates. A man inside the book paraded all over town.

McDonald—Most "Arrested"Manager Still Going Strong

For many a month mail has filtered through to CLUB headquarters about a man with a peculiar reputation. The reputation, it would seem, was that he was the most "arrested" manager in the country.

We often wondered what kind of showman it must be who is able to have himself pinched regularly once a week, and until Francis P. McDonald sent in his application for membership we were still trying to figure out what it was all about.

However, Francis is now one of us, and we are able to tell you that he manages the Columbia Theatre, Portsmouth, O., for the Schine Enterprises and in an effort to keep that theatre open Sunday, he has to be arrested once each week by those ambitious people who still think they can dictate the public's habits and tastes.

Apparently, the newspapers also have a sense of humor because you will note on the cut with this story how they played up the Sunday ar-played up the Sunday arrest day for McDonald and Ridley. Ridley, we assume, is the manager of another theatre in the same town.

We shall have much more to tell you about McDonald and his activities out there in Portsmouth, but at this time we do want to welcome him into the ROUND TABLE CLUB, and we do want him to send us one of his own photographs so that we can give him a more intimate introduction than the announcement that he is the most arrested individual in the show business.

Col. Russell Gives Sound Shorts With Best Results Yet

Col. J. B. Russell, owner and manager of the Washington Opera House in Maysville, Ky., had the courage of his convictions when he recently offered a novelty showing at his theatre, consisting only of sound short subjects.

It is interesting to note in leading up to this fine piece of showmanship that up to two years ago Col. Russell never used short subjects in his theatre. The fact that he has reversed his opinion is both a credit to his ability as well as the short subjects of today.

You will note that even his advertising has a different slant, whereby he takes an ordinary two column exchange mat and runs it as he did in the accompanying illustrated ad, thereby making it stand out from an ordinary theatre ad.

If you will look over the layout as set forth on his circular which was distributed throughout the town, and measured about 6 x 9 inches, you will note the various attractions he lined up to use in connection with this great new novelty program.

In discussing this particular novelty program, we do not know exactly how Col. Russell ran the show, but we would venture to say that starting with the "South Sea Interlude" which was probably a quiet and beautiful subject, his second number would be "Crazy Cat" which sort of jacks up the tempo of the show, from that going to "Screen Snapshots," which probably assumed a slower tempo, after "Crazy Cat" from

"Snapshots," to "Shipmates" the two reel Educational Comedy with Lupino Lane and finishing up with the "Skeleton Dance" which, of course would panic the whole program.

WASHINGTON

We must take this means of congratulating Col. Russell, upon his fine showmanship, and we are certain that many other showmen throughout the country would do well to inaugurate one of these novelty short subject programs at frequent intervals. We say frequent, because we believe that properly made up, this type of program will be a distinct relief as get away from the monotony of too much of the other stuff. It is worth trying and you should give it your immediate attention.

We would like to know a whole lot more about Col. Russell and the Washington Opera House, and we will hope that he passes along some more of his ability and exploitation for the benefit of his brother showmen.

The Real Club Spirit! "All For One And One For All"

Some Good Advice!

(From weekly news letter of Fox-West Coast Theatres)

A WARNING!

Remember one thing—you are selling "entertainment!"

That's what people want to buy.. if you give them what they want you'll not have much to worry about.. providing your theatre is clean, your employees courteous, your projection clear, your recording right.

Premiums . . crockery . . gifts . . souvenirs—tricks and stunts and contests—are not worth the powder to blow them to hell if your program and policy isn't right.

If a man wants to buy a suit . . he doesn't go to the place that will give him a suit of underwear with it . . he wants his money's worth in material, workmanship and style. If a woman wants a dozen eggs . . she doesn't go to the place that will give her the butter to fry them in . . all she wants is—fresh eggs.

Before you go into a contest.. before you give anything away.. before you try a stunt.. study it, think about it.. try to gauge the re-action from your public—many a stunt has proven a boomerang.. your next one may, on you!

Smart advertising . . good exploitation—a properly conducted theatre . . will get you over the rough spots.

Thanks.

C. T. Chapin Put Over Fine Tie-Up With Local Store

Manager C. T. Chapin had an excellent tie-up with Woolworth's store in advertising "Girl from Woolworth's" playing at the Riviera Theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.

The store gave over their window three days in advance of picture for the use of stills, art sheets, cut-outs and cards carrying forceful selling copy about the star, picture, theatre and play dates.

In the center of the window display was a fish bowl nearly half filled with nickels. A card in back of this display invited people to estimate how many nickels were in the bowl and win a ticket to see the picture. It was necessary to give your estimates to the soda cashier who was in the other end of the store. That meant the people had to walk the entire length of the store and might be persuaded to buy some merchandise before they got outside again.

The guessing contest took over 1000 people into the store during the three days which proved to be not only a good stunt for the store itself but equally beneficial to the

Very nice work Chapin, but tell us; why is that we have not heard from you more often during the past month or two? You know all live-wire showmen are making it a point to contribute to our pages regularly and if they have no particular exploitation stunt to pass along then they write a little story about theatre operation and management as judged from their own particular viewpoint. This is not a bad angle and we are positive that you can tell us a whole lot about this latter subject if you would only take the little time necessary to write us the few lines.

Come on "C.T.," be a real sport and let's hear from you soon, Oak?

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Meet The Nite Owls!

Hey, you live-wires! Laugh this one off—and how? A new twist to the conventional Midnite Show (or Midnite Matinee as it is sometimes called) was the forming of an Owl Club in Cedar Rapids, Io.

Harry Herman, manager of the Paramount Theatre started this movement to promote attendance for his midnite shows scheduled for every Friday night. The popularity of the shows is spreading rapidly, for each week finds many new members of the Owl Club at the theatre to attend the regular meeting held on Friday nights. Before the showing of the feature attraction scheduled for the next day, the members are permitted to dance in the spacious lobby of the Paramount Theatre.

Mix all of the above ingredients well, add your usual amount of "pep," stir well and when served it will be —SHOWMANSHIP. In capital letters.

Harry, we haven't the slightest idea whether you originated the above or not, but be that as it may, you certainly have started something that should develop into a "knockout" before many more weeks go by and I'm here to say that any real showman ought to give this angle serious consideration and try to work it at their own theatres.

All of the above, boiled down to plain facts, means that I heartily recommend the Owl Club gag to everyone of our members and readers. If you work it right, surround it with sufficient novelty angles, keep up and stimulate interest in the, so-called, members, then the results should more than justify the work necessary to put it across.

Glase Gets Out A Fine House Organ For His Theatre

Here is the house organ of the Astor Theatre in Reading, Pa. The Astor as well as quite a few other theatres in the Warner Equity group in this city comes under the general management of Paul E. Glase, whose showmanship activities are a source of pleasure to the readers of the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages. Under Mr. Glase's supervision, is Clarence Latshaw, the resident manager as well as the various house managers in the other houses.

Here is a group of happy showmen who find that cooperation and harmony are the supreme factors in any thriving little group that wants to make a success of what they are doing.

There are many interesting points about this particular house organ, and a close inspection will reveal what we claim. Look it oyer, and tell us what you think of it.

Freund's Activities At Marine Theatre Worth Following

One of the reasons why Leonard Freund's activities along the lines of exploitation and advertising at the Marine Theatre in Brooklyn clicked is because he injects enough variety and novelty to make them worth reading, and therefore it is not like handing out a circular and watch it being thrown into the gutter or crumpled up.

A portion of his recent activities included an attractive circular on the "Sophomore" which has an added twist in both the wording and makeup. Another was the use of a tag used on automobile houses and door knobs, and resulting in a lot of comment on this particular attraction. The third shows a card the wording of which is self-explanatory and can be utilized by imprinting any attraction that you wish to plug on the opposite side. This pin gag always commands a lot of attention, because of the publicity that has surrounded the Lord's prayer which is printed so small upon the top of a pin, that a magnifying glass is necessary to read it

One of the best of his recent activities, was the calendar idea which is not very expensive and is just different enough to make it stand out and command the attention that was sought for it when made up. Still another was an envelope with the question mark gag, which in his case he used for the "Drake Case" picture, but could be utilized for any other attraction that you want to plug. The last of this particular batch is the sticker which he had made up for "Show Boat" and which was placed on newspapers and other newsstand material and helped sell this picture to the public.

While there are several other interesting angles to Freund's exploitation tactics, there is one which we do not show here, consisting of a plain rubber stamp. This was made up to publicize "Dr. Fu Manchu" when it played at the Marine Theatre and he stamped paper bags for local merchants, using their own bags and just sending his assistant over to do the imprinting, and he also stamped up any number of newspapers being sold on the newsstands in the community where the Marine Theatre is located.

Although this constitutes but a small portion of Leonard's activities we are glad to pass them on, because they are all typical of neighborhood stuff, and many of our members located in the larger neighborhood communities, are always on the lookout for an idea to sell the picture.

Thank you, Leonard, and don't forget our request for one of your photographs, and also our request for a picture of that membership certificate hanging nicely above your desk. Don't be so bashful, you're not a bit bad looking and your picture really belongs on these pages. So long for the present.

Ray Connor Puts Over Great Campaign On This One

Ray Conner, house manager of the new B. F. Keith Memorial Theatre in Boston, put over a mighty effective campaign in conjunction with "The Sophomore" when he engineered and successfully executed a college week throughout Boston for this particular attraction.

A city-wide campaign was inaugurated, known as College week in which Conner, with the aid of G. R. O'Neill and Joseph Rifkin, tied up four leading colleges, the Boston College, Harvard University, Tuft and Northeastern. In addition, two of the leading high schools, Bedford and Everett, were also brought into the stunt. The captains, coach and regular football squads of all of these colleges and schools were guests of the theatre on different nights of the run, and this was featured in the advertising which called attention to each of the specialty nights. In addition, much fine reading matter found its way into the leading newspapers, all of which meant good publicity for the theatre and the attraction.

COLLEGE GRID TEAMS TO BE GUESTS

Part of the stuff that Ray put across is also shown on the cut below which will give you an idea of how the front of the Memorial Theatre was decorated for this attraction, how they effectively advertised the picture and the specialty night above the box office in the theatre and also how he employed the laughing records which have been used plenty of times before, but probably not around Boston.

The banner which Ray was successful in stringing across one of the main streets of Boston was worthy of the reproduction we give it, because you can readily understand that this type of advertising is almost prohibited by law in the majority of larger cities, and that he was able to work this one is a distinct credit to him.

At the Harvard-Dartmouth dinner dance which follows the big game up at Cambridge, a silent sophomore trailer was especially prepared with titles telling of the cheap showing, which incidentally started off with a midnight show on Friday previous to the run. The annual function was broadcast over the radio, and the theme song from the picture was featured on the program. They also made an announcement of the local Boston showing of the picture, and took advantage of the big attendance at this function to sell the newsreel with special shots of the Harvard-Dartmouth game.

Music tieups, heralds, special advertising, as well as a half-page ad in the Harvard university paper, all played an important part in publicizing this fine attraction, and we could go on and on and on telling you all about

About Hal. Young

We're stumped!

Hal. Young, Chicago representative for the National Screen Service is a great Club booster and wants to join the Club.

Not being connected officially with any theatre, he is really not eligible, but we believe we ought to make an exception in his case and give him 'Associate Membership'.

Before doing so, however, we will await opinions from our regular members.

WHAT DO YOU SAY?

Does Hal get in-or-does he stay out?

"Chick"

I'll Tell You The Answer Next Week H. Y.

Conner's fine work in connection with this attraction, however, we believe we have given you enough of a slant on what he was doing, and the success of his efforts were the result of a new box office record being established at the big Memorial Theatre in Boston.

If you are on your toes during the football season, there are hundreds of angles that will present themselves in connection with this sport, providing you are alert to the opportunities it presents. Every town in the world, has a football team of some kind, whether it is a grammar school, high school, college or just a team formed among the factory or office workers. Get behind this angle, and see if you can't cash in while the season is still in existence, if not, keep it in mind in connection with your basket ball season, hockey or other sports that follow the football popularity.

We are certainly grateful to Ray Conner and we want him to know that his activities will always be welcomed on the pages of the ROUND TABLE CLUB, but he should send us his own photograph at the earliest possible moment so that we can give him a more personal and intimate introduction to our other members.

Harold Lee Puts Over Fine Campaign For Sound Opening

Harold C. Lee, manager of the Babcock Theatre, Bath, N. Y., which just recently came under the Fox Metropolitan Playhouse banner, told the public of Bath, N. Y., via an unusually attractive circular, all about his grand opening of sound pictures.

This circular, which we are reproducing to the left, measured about 17 x 8 in., was printed on good stock in heavy black ink, and unquestionably the circular stood out so strong among the many programs, circulars and other advertising material at CLUB headquarters, that it surely must have attracted plenty of attention up in his community.

It has been quite a while since we had word from Harold about his activities, but no doubt this was due to the change in management and the incidental detail work that generally follows these merger deals.

How are things going up there, Lee? Why not drop us a line and give us an idea of what is doing theatrically up your part of the country? Certainly with all of the big pictures you are now going to play, you will have to lay out quite a campaign and to do so successfully we are certain you will be making good

and let's hear from you regularly.

We would like to know how Mr. Margolis handles his exploitation and publicity as well as how he runs his theatre. What do you say to a little letter telling us something about yourself as well as enclosing one of your own photos? It's a great way of getting acquainted.

R. HENDRICKSON manages the Lincoln Theatre, in Oakland, Cal., for the Golden State Circuit, and from all indications Hendrickson should make a mighty fine active member of the CLUP. We would appreciate learning some information about his past experiences, as well as getting his own photograph so that we can introduce him a little more intimately on one of the other pages of the ROUND TABLE CLUB. How about it, Hendrickson?

Black-and-White Cost

for

Colored Sound Pictures

Now—at low cost—sound pictures can be printed without sacrificing any of the delicate tints formerly used.... Eastman Soundhrome Tinted Positive Films have given the industry a wider range of tints than was ever available before—in films so adjusted that they give amazingly faithful sound reproduction. And though they combine sound and color, these new Eastman films cost no more than regular black-and-white positive.

DOROTHY DEVORE The name, John R. Freuler has always stood for leader-ship and progressiveness in this industry. Big Four, headed by this sterling leader, now steps forth with two comedy features; one starring Edward Everett Horton, famous comedian and the other, Walter Forde. Synchronized to music and sound effects, these hilarious laugh sensations will cash in at box offices everywhere.

A series of six all-dialogue action features with a famous star and four big specials, along with "Take The Heir" and "Would You Believe It" starts the Big Four lineup for 1930.

Through exchanges in all principal cities, Big Four offers National Distribution for this imposing array of sure-fire box office successes.

Make this test today. Check your box office grosses on Paramount Pictures this season. Compare them with your grosses on other 1929-30 product. The reason the whole industry concedes the superiority of Paramount then becomes apparent. Figures don't lie. The New Show World pictures have raised theatre receipts to a new and higher level. Paramount exhibitors are enjoying record grosses today that exhibitors of ordinary product can't hope to touch. There's the proof:

How Your Pictures Are Booked At Bair's Theatre, Indianapolis

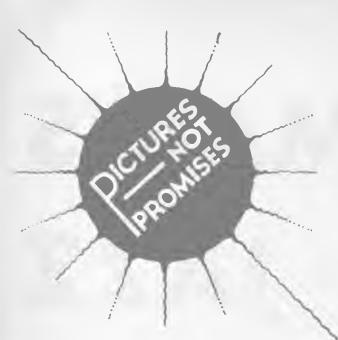

"This is my 21st year in the movie game in Indianapolis, and I have used many 'exploits' successfully in my experience. I have used Motion Picture News for years, (you'll notice I said used) because it is most complete in everything pertaining to this difficult business. Needless to say that I refer to your reviews and articles almost daily. It's a standing joke at the office when a picture is suggested for my booking that Bob has first to look it up in the News before rendering a decision.

JOHN BOLES

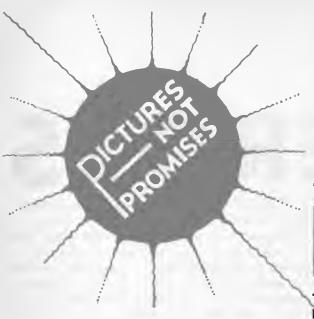

The John Boles of "Desert Song"
The John Boles of "Rio Ritg" - -

The star with the richest singing voice on the screen... the star of whom Photoplay says, in the December issue: "Of all the meteors that have flashed across the Hollywood skies, none in history has scooted brighter and faster than John Boles."

EREAFTER you can get John Boles in Universal Pictures—and only in Universal Pictures...Your customers will be asking for him more and more every day . . . and he will give you sensational resuits such as you have not had for many a day. He is a big star in his own right. He apes no one. He has the youth, the good looks, the acting ability and the magnificent voice which form such a rare combination in this era of talking and singing pictures. He would have been a star in the days of sllent pictures, but the talkies gave him another avenue down which to make his march of triumph. .. Practically every producer has wanted to borrow John Boles from Universal. . . While we were looking for proper stories for him, we let one company have his services in "The Desert Song"... another company in "Rio Rita.".. Then we found the stories ... and John Boles became strictly a Universal luminary. . . Now you can book him in MOONLIGHT MADNESS . . . and THE SONG OF PASSION . . . Two pictures bound to send him to dizzier star-heights than ever . . . two pictures proving further what we mean by GREATER UNIVERSAL.

THE LESSON OF THE TAPE

ESS speed and a blanket of caution are settling down on the industry.

Not that curtailments are around the corner. Far from that. In production, for instance, you ner. Far from that. In production, for instance, you may depend upon the important factors in this business meeting their obligations to the public which they both serve and entertain with a full realization of the magnitude of those responsibilities.

But this business of numerical supremacy in the theatre field, for instance, is certain to give way to a saner, if slower policy of development.

That this industry will move forward because it has to as a thriving, energetic business institution it goes without question. No other course is possible in any industry which purposes to travel abreast of the times.

Expansion—Two Kinds

Expansion, however, may fall into either of two categories.

On the one hand, it may be normal, sensible and developed with an understanding of exactly how that expansion fits into an industry picture. On the other hand, it may be couched in terms of self-aggrandizement, blinded by self-sufficiency, and with no consideration for the other important elements which go up to make the whole.

The first, of course, is not only practical but necessary. A friendly cooperation among front rank organizations to bring this about does not necessarily mean that competition is being removed. The new idea for motion pictures does not provide for anything of the kind as a matter of fact. But it would set up a machinery functioning something like this:

Mutuality And Cooperation

For a general understanding to prevail by which mutual problems could be aired and efforts made to settle them mutually and amicably. For instance, why should any one producer-distributor think about adding five thousand seats to a city already overseated so long as there remains the possibility of striking an understanding with big operators already functioning in that city.

Here is a case of the worst sort of business tactics. The producer knows his proposed house can't make money, yet it endangers the entire exhibition structure at a given point. It seems incomprehensible that ser ious-minded business men can countenance any other line of attack. But the recent history of this industry bulges with plenty of such instances.

New Standards In The Offing

In view of the current trend, it is becoming further and further recognized that not only should an industry cooperation prevail, but that it can be easily effected. This business today rests in the laps of less than half a dozen individuals. In point of banking groups, the number is fewer. That makes it easy and even if the leaders in matters celluloid cannot see the picture in this light the bankers will undoubtedly compel them to do so.

This latter day development, the latest in motion picture trends, will cause some bucking of the line, to be sure, but the protests won't get very far.

It is a matter of record that the disapproval voiced in Wall Street over operative methods in certain high film quarters is open.

On Tactics And Bankers

Frank amazement has been expressed that an industry so large and so far-reaching as this could or would countenance tactics so devoid of business acumen. The crowd that lurks in financial canyons doesn't understand it and since it happens to be in the saddle the signs have to point in the direction it selects. What the bankers determine is to happen, will. And they are about set on plans to introduce into this business tactics and methods of operation which are accepted as standard elsewhere.

The gauge of measurement which the bankers intend applying to motion pictures is that which is used by them in other large industries. The film business will say it cannot be done, but the bankers feel otherwise. It so happens, moreover, they are in a position to experiment with their hunch.

When you reflect, there is no good reason why the industry should resent it. Such a theory is new in this field, but it is old stuff in many others. The plan, broad as it is, is practical, proven and potentially a fine, constructive step despite the fact that the business failed to develop it but brought it upon itself.

KANN

An Insider's Outlook

O those interested in getting their facts about important matters straight:

Forget all the talk about Fox divesting itself of the Loew properties. It's a pipe dream, nothing else. The trustees—all three of them, Stuart, Otterson and Fox—have no such idea in mind. If you would know why, let your optics glance over what follows.

When reports of financial difficulties in the Fox camp first reached Hollywood, Louis B. Mayer turned a fleeting thought or two to the possibility of purchasing the Loew company which includes M-G-M—and don't forget what that last M stands for—from Bill Fox.

The Coast Converses

Talks followed. William Randolph Hearst figured in. So did Cecil B. De Mille. Likewise Bob Rubin. So to New York did Mayer and Hearst betake themselves. It seems that the last thought in these collective minds was to take any steps which might hurt Fox. Rather their hunch was that possible purchase of Loew's would help out a man sorely tried financially.

One day—and it wasn't so long ago—Hearst—saw—Fox. William—Randolph pledged his aid in any way possible. Then Hearst—saw—Harry—Stuart.—The Stuart of Halsey—Stuart—this story runs on—advised Hearst that the Loew company was one of Fox's major assets and that, therefore, a sale, although conceived to aid Fox, might perhaps boomerang in the other direction.

Right then and there the future of the Loew company was definitely put to rest under its present control.

Regarding Mr. Smith

Now, picking up the yarn from another angle: Fox, of course, realized what an unfortunate turn matters had taken for him. That old devil stock market had plenty to do with it. At any rate, in searching for the financial out which was rapidly becoming more imperative with short-term obligations impending. Courtland Smith turned to John E. Otterson. You see Smith and Otterson have been the closest of friends for some years, or, to be exact, since Fox went so heavily into sound. The situation was explained, Stuart brought in and the trusteeship worked out.

For five years it will function. The Class B stock of Fox Theatres holds the Town Topics

By Harry L. Reichenbach "The Industry's Roastmaster"

OOKS like there's going to be a lot of telephone people in the picture business.

PUNNY, they always lock up the juries and dismiss the defendant. Just a quaint, old American custom.

A CERTAIN exhibitor was told that his town was overseated. He took two rows out of one of the houses, but it didn't seem to help business much.

W HAT'S become of that popular and great artist—"custard pie?"

W ELL, I told you mergers was merely another way of spelling murder. Ho hum!

S your town over-cheated?

A SHARE of a certain amusement stock on the curb is cheaper than a scat in one of the long run houses the company operates on Broadway. Let's go!

voting power of that corporation, Fox owns all of it—100,000 shares. Likewise, the Class B stock holds the voting power of Fox Films, a very thriving company. Of the 100,000 shares outstanding, Fox owns 51,000. It is this combined block of 151,000 shares carrying the all-important voting power of both companies which the committee of three holds in trusteeship for five years.

It is significant for the industry at large to realize with what thoroughness, yet understanding the Stuart-Otterson combination is tackling its job. Perhaps the best harbinger that it intends to carry on progressively is evidenced in its determination to retain Loew's. If retrenchment in wholesale were in the minds of those two downtown men, it is easy to figure how their first step would be the sale of the Loew organization in order to secure some of the millions necessary to meet the Fox obligations. Particularly is this important when it is realized that it is Stuart's and Otterson's companies to whom a large percentage of the current debts are payable.

The New Triumvirate

The trustees are completely in the saddle. They will run these companies as they see fit, turning at all times to the men intimately connected with their development. There you have Shechan, Grainger and Smith entering the picture—formidably and often. Fox himself has been re-elected president of both Fox Film and Fox Theatres. He, too, will assist his co-members of the trusteeship in making decisions.

You might look for caution. And a great deal of care exercised until financial affairs readjust themselves. Stuart and Otterson are not particularly interested in acquiring theatres, for instance, merely because numerical strength is annexed thereby. They may be expected to interest themselves in the advisability of such deals actually and potentially, but they will also be very much interested in making certain that the terms are right.

Big Man Go Boom

His beginnings were insignificant. But the chap had an idea and he slaved over it. And so, after the labor of years had borne fruit, this selfsame man found himself sitting pretty much on top of the heap.

He enjoyed the confidence of his superior. In fact, was almost a pet. Then the market decided to peter out and the hero of our tale found himself way out on a limb—on company business, too.

Today, he's still important, but his standing is somewhat impaired—just a wee bit more than slightly.

Bankers Order Sweeping Analysis of Industry As Guide to Future Policy

Five Wall Street Institutions, Acting Jointly, Checking On 1930 Possibilities Before Determining How Heavily They Will Lend Support To Business—Survey Under Way

Five Wall Street bankers, all of them heavily interested in motion pictures, are making a complete check-up of the financial status of the industry. How heavily or otherwise these institutions will support the industry during 1930 will hinge entirely on the outcome of the sweeping analysis now under way.

The financial obligations confronting the various Fox enterprises have no bearing on the situation except to submit the entire business to a second, and perhaps more careful survey.

30 Corporations Declare Dividends

Dividends for the last quarter of 1929 have been deelared by 29 leading amusement and equipment companies and by others engaged in mauufacturing by-produets for the industry, while action on numerous other leaders is expected in the immediate future, swelling the total to nearly 50 payers.

Companies which have voted current payments, up to Dec. 16, include the following:

Trustees In Control

Harry Stuart of Halsey, Stuart and Co., and John E. Otterson of Electrical Research Products representing control of the trusteeship committee formed last week to handle the affairs of the Fox enterprises as outlined exclusively in Motion Picture News, held a number of meetings through the week.

Speculation over the future of the Loew company has been on everybody's tongue. The rumor market is bullish.

Inside developments in the Fox situation, the story of the hour in the picture industry, will be found on page 15.

Per Capita Money Holdings Show Rise

Washington.-Money in circulation in the U.S. on Nov. 30 totaled $40.95 per eapita, as compared with $40.23 on the same date one month previous. Government estimates arrive at this figure on the assumption that the country's population increased from 120,264,000 to 120,381,000 during the period.

Total money in eirculation on Nov. 30 amounted to $4,929,561,672, eompared with $4,838,184,799 on Oet. 30. Federal Reserve banks and agents held $1,750,736,448, on the latter date, and $1,725,732,937 in Oct.

The group has retained one company to secure the required data. This is now under way and will be completed shortly. In typical bankers' fashion, the investigators are doing a most exhaustive job. New theatre projects and the amounts involved for 1930 are being rigorously checked; remodeling of existing houses and the money required are equally as important items in the program.

The possibilities for increased revenue from wide film and the absorption point of the industry are being analyzed as is the likelihood of a severe economic disturbance such as that induced by the introduction of sound.

Chain holdings are on the program for considerable attention. Leaseholds, land valuations, liabilities and assets are being inspected. Important cricuit heads are being asked and are supplying the information.

Heads of equipment companies, film companies, production experts, chain operators and sales managers make up the personnel equation from whom the banking group is obtaining its figures. Collectively, the five companies reach into the financial structures of the industry's backbone companies. They are, therefore, in a position to call upon many high quarters to obtain the data which they deem necessary.

It is not a question of waning faith in motion pictures. The bankers, taking cognizance of general economic conditions in industries at large, merely want to know what the possibilities are in this field before making any financial committment for 1930. This is the inside reason for the launching of the most sweeping business analysis this industry has ever experienced.

Theatres Benefit By Fewer Business Flops

Washington-The Bureau of Census reports a four per cent decrease in the number of business failures in the first nine months of 1929 as compared with the corresponding 1928 three-quarter period. Total liabilities listed were 10 per cent less than those charted by 1928 failures. Amusements, naturally, benefited by healthier business.

AMPA to Help in Hoover Campaign

"Keep the Wheel of Industry Turning—Work," has been adopted by the A.M.P.A. as the slogan of a campaign for the industry to spread, publicize and aid Herbert Hoover's efforts to maintain a healthy business level throughout the country.

Decision of the organization to aid in furthering favorable economic conditions was announced at Thursday's weekly meeting by Edward L. Klein, who, as AMPA president, attended the recent business conference called by Hoover in Washington. Klein will appoint a committee to work out details with the Hays organization and the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. Vincent Trotta, artist member of the AMPA, is now at work on poster designs for the campaign.

Warner Merger Seen Definitely Off With Zukor's Failure to Split Stock

Paramount More Against Share Increase Tip-Off Expansion Move Is Out-Gov't Suits Held Another Deterrent

All negotiations between Paramount and Warners for a consolidation of interests are seen ended in decision of the stockholders of the former company not to split the stock two-for-one and in failure to in rease the capital structure of the corporation to 15,000,000 shares. The Government's suit against the Warners hitting at control of First National Pictures, tipping off how the Federal authorities view consolidations between growing corporations is understood to have been a second factor.

Officially, Paramount explains the surprise action as follows:

"The proposed two-for-one split and increase of authorized capital stock to 15,000,000 shares was not considered in view of the fact that a total of two-thirds of the issued and outstanding capital stock, which amount is required to authorize this procedure, was not represented.

Paid $32,000,000 In Dividends

Adolph Zukor told the stockholders who met this week that in his opinion the company had now reached the position of a well-rounded out and mature industrial corporation. The next dividend to be paid on Dee. 28 will be the forty-fourth consecutive payment on the common and will represent a total of $32,000,000 in dividend checks paid stockholders since the company was organized in 1916. An additional $6,-500,000 in common stock dividends and rights brings the total up to $38,500,000.

"I anticipate, from the results of the months of October and November, that the company will earn for this current quarter, that is the last quarter of 1929, approximately $2.00 per share on the present outstanding stock," he said.

outstanding stock," he said.

"The company has no bank loans, and the ratio of current assets to current liabilities and the cash position of the company are both strong. From all surveys and estimates made for the first six months of 1930, it would seem that the company's ratio of profit will run at a substantial increase over the corresponding period of 1929, and it is, therefore, my present intention to recommend to the directors of the company at the February meeting that the present stock of the company be placed on a $4 annual basis, commencing with the dividend which is usually paid about April 1."

Sought Increase in Stock

The original plan was this:

The original plan was files:

"To take aeton on the proposal to change three milion (3,000,000) shares of common stock without par value, which constitute all of the authorized shares of common stock of the corporation, into six million (6,000,000) shares of common stock without par value, by changing each share of common stock without par value, issued and unissued, into two (2) shares of common stock without par value; and, upon the effectiation of the proposed change, to issue to the stockholders of the corporation two (2) shares of common stock without par value is nechange for each share of common stock without par value issued and outstanding at the time such change becomes effective.
"Subject to the approval by the stockholders of "Subject to the approval by the stockholders of such proposed change, to take action upon the proposal to increase the six million (6,000,000) shares of common stock without par value, which will constitute all of the authorized shares of common stock of the corporation upon the effectivation of the proposed change, to lifteen million (15,000,000) shares of common stock without par value.

"Subject to the approval of the stockholders of such proposed change and increase to authorize the proper officers of the corporation to execute and life a certificate or certificates pursuant to law to effect such change and increase in the shares of common stock of the corporation and to transact such other business as may projectly come before said meeting."

Anticipating the split-up, the new stock has been traded in at about $27 a share.

Leslie Weir Dies Suddenly On Coast

Los Angeles.-Leslie W. Weir, 40 years old, Western division manager for Pathe, died yesterday at Hollywood Hospital, following failure to recover from an emergency operation necessitated by a ruptured appendix.

Funeral plans have not been announced. A widow and mother survive him.

Leslie Weir was horn in Baltimore on Sept. 6, 1889 and entered pictures as an exhibitor in San Diego, in 1919. In 1921, he joined Universal as salesman out of Los Angeles and a year later became special rep. for the Western division, subsequently being promoted to division manager of Portland territory. In March, 1924, he quit "U" to hold the same post for P.D.C., supervising the entire West Coast. On absorption of P.D.C. by Pathe, Weir continued with the combined interests.

Have Your Choice

The financial editor of the Daily News, New York rambles along something like this:

thing like this:

Radio is actiag the way it used to in the good old days, and "Trader" is convinced he had the right dope yesterday when he said it was good for at least 50. In addition to the fact that the slightest move in Radio always brings in a large public following, there are two reasons for it to go ahead.

The first is that a powerful western group is accumulating it, and even though the object may be to unload stocks bought at much higher levels, the coup can't succeed unless it rises several more points.

Then, the old report of a merger with Columbia Graphophone is being revived in well informed circles, and in addition there is talk that Paramount interests would like to form a working agreement with Radio.

Hollywood Hints At Many Changes

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News) Hollywood.—The film colony is often wrong, but this is the most widely credited story now current anent the Fox situation:

That Louis B. Mayer will shortly be elected a vice-president of Fox in charge of actual production.

That Irving G. Thalberg and Mayer will handle the Fox and M-G-M studios thus releasing Winfield Sheehan for corporate management in New York.

Irving Thalberg arrives in New York tomorrow from Hollywood on a rush call. The inside story credited widely is that his trip has to do with the lowdown on the general situation as it regards his personal and official connections with M-G-M.

Winfield Sheehan, production chief for Fox, will remain in New York several more weeks working hand in hand with the Fox trusteeship committee. It is understood his future duties will hring him to New York more often and that he does not contemplate relinquishing any of his duties at the studios.

Trustees Maintain Complete Silence

With the trade in New York speculating all through the week over developments in the Fox situation, the trustees held meetings, did their talking behind closed doors and managed to maintain a complete and stony silence so far as the outside world was concerned.

Warfare is impending between stockholders of Fox Film Class A, non-voting stock and the trusteeship committee which controls the Class B, or voting stock. See page 18 for development. Stuart And Otterson, However, Are In Complete Control— E. W. Niver, Banker, Placed In Charge Of Financing Reports that Fox Theatres Corp. will dispose of control of Loew's and M-G-M are without foundation. The trusteeship committee formed last week to manage the business affairs of the various Fox enterprises has no intention of selling the approximate 650,000 shares of Loew's, Inc., held by Fox Theatres and William Fox personally.

Franklin May Head All Fox Theatres

At the telephone request of Winfield Sheehan who caught him at Kansas City while en route from Hollywood to Atlanta, Harold B. Franklin, president of Fox West Coast Theatres, hurried to New York to meet the Fox trusteeship committee on pressing matters regarding the company's exhibition interests.

Reports persist that Franklin has been asked to head the Fox theatre string which totals about 1,000 houses with one inducement to eventualize later that he will be elected president of Fox Theatres Corp.

Refinancing Plan Now In Formation

Use of the $10,000,000 received about a month ago from Warner Brothers for a third interest in First National Pictures, in taking up brokers' loans has relieved the Fox interests of all pressing obligations, it is stated by Hughes, Schurman & Dwight, attorneys for the board of trustees.

The attorneys will not comment on what plan the trustees were formulating for the refinancing of the $93,000,000 short-term committments of the various Fox interests. It was said, however, that with the payment of halance on stocks which were held hy brokers that all the obligations that were pressing for payment had heen met and that the holders of the remaining committments had expressed willingness to await the development of a refinancing plan.

The trustees are now preparing a statement covering all the obligations of the companies involved in the present temporary financing and also the earnings statements of the companies.

Grainger Now On Fox Directorate

James R. Grainger, general sales manager of Fox Film, is understood to have been elevated to the directorate at a company election held this week.

Grainger, as exclusively published in Motion Picture News, is to play an even more important part than heretofore in the affairs of the company under its five year trusteeship.

With complete control of the Fox companies under their wing, Harry Stuart of Halsey, Stuart and Co, and John E. Otterson, president of Electrical Research Products who swing the voting power of the committee, moved swiftly during the week. New officers and boards of directors for both Fox Film and Fox Theatres were elected. William Fox was named president of both corporations, but the majority vote of both directorates is controlled tightly by Stuart and Otterson, representing the two companies to whom the Fox indebtedness is largest.

E. W. Niver, vice-president of Halsey, Stuart and Co. has been placed in charge of all Fox financing, a post held for some years by Jack G. Leo, Fox's brother-in-law. Reports are current and denied that Leo is shortly to sever his connection with the companies.

A complete and exhaustive survey of the financial condition of the Fox companies is now under way. The trustees are moving slowly, yet withal decisively. Meetings have been held daily with Winfield Sheehan, James R. Grainger and Harold B. Franklin who is in New York from the coast. Hughes, Schurman and Dwight, as lawyers for the committee, are being consulted on every move.

No Dividend Cut Held To Be Likely

Voting control of Fox Film is vested in Class B stock. Despite reports, it is understood dividends on it will not be passed particularly in view of the fact that if four quarterly payments are not met, control of the corporation reverts to the Class A stockholders who now have no voting power.

The Class B elects seven of the twelve directors, giving that stock complete control of the corporation. Some Wall Street circles helieve dividends will be dropped.

The NEWS Did It

Hollywood.—Motion Picture News' scoop on the appointment of the trusteeship committee to manage Fox enterprises gave the film colony its first dope on this sensational development when the facts were published widely in Los Angeles and Hollywood newspapers with full credit. Holders of Fox Film "A" Challenge Trustees; Hit "Unfriendly Interests"

Claim Their Rights Are Not Properly Safeguarded And Propose To Take Necessary Protective Steps

Stockholders of Fox Film "A." through a newly-appointed protective committee, declared open warfare yesterday against alleged "unfriendly interests," which, it is claimed, belittled the power of "A" holders in influencing future policies of the company. Following a regular meeting of "A" stockholders on Wednesday, understood to have been attended by John E. Otterson and Harry Stuart, as observers, large holders launched a movement to work out plans for a committee which would look after their rights under the new Fox trustee committee at the Fox home office, it is understood, was told that no news of the "A" activities had reached there, but that "the class 'A' stockholders never had any control in the company and what they hope to do, or what they hope to become is another matter—and something we don't know anything about."

A Definition of "Friction"

When asked if there was any friction, or indifference among the different class stockholders, this reply is quoted as fol-

"Friction? No, I don't see how you can have friction unless both parties concerned have some power. You can't have friction between one party, with control, and one that hasn't any, can you?'

When principals in the "A" movement were informed of the above statement, they boiled over and, after going into a huddle for many hours, dropped the first bomb, in what looks like an interesting battle. The bomb was in the nature of a lengthy statement, as follows:

statement, as follows:

"In response to the public comment from the Fox office relative to the formation of Class A stockholders' committee expressing the atitude of the Fox Company officials, the following statement was given out from the office of the chairman of the stockholders' committee at One Madison Avenue, New York City.
"The Fox officials are reported to have said that they cannot see how you can have friction unless both parties concerned have some power and that you cannot have friction between one party that has control and one that hasn't. This statement might readily be construed as evidencing an unfriendly attude towards the A stock, yet we hardly believe that the stockholders who have furnished the major capital amounting to the sum of approximately forty-live million dollars, and which certainly must be considered as one of the principal factors in the establishment of the Fox Film Corporation as the leading motion picture corporation can be so easily brushed aside. The further report of the Fox officials that the Class A never had any control in the Company and that they do not know what they hope to do or what they hope to become might also be considered a reflection of their technics towards the Class A stock.

Define Alleged Rights

"As a matter of fact, the Class A stock, olders must be considered at the annual meeting on April 18th. 1930, at which time they have the power to vote for five directors, which will give their minediate representation on the beard and in the activities of the company. They will also have a great deal to say as to working out the plans for reliabilitating the position of financing the company as well as shaping its future jolicies and preventing, if possible, a recurrence of the condition in which the company has found itself. "It might also be interesting to know that from the found itself.

"It might also be interesting to know that from the available records Mr. William Fox is not a holder of record of a single share of the Class A stock.
"If the trustees who were appointed for the Class B stock intend to disregard the Class A stock because of the present present designed to the first of the first of the disregard the class A stockholders should know about it.
"We intend to get at the bottom of the entire situation and make public all the facts. We will obtain sufficient process for the annual meeting to make a representative showing in the election of the five directors. The response to the invitation by the stock-holders' committee to join in this concerted action has been most gratifying.

"Allan I. Cole, formerly chairman of the Pennsylvania Exchange Bank, has agreed to act as choirman of the Class A stockholders' committee, replacing Mr. Farrar Lazarus, who acted as temporary chairman. Class A stockholders are invited to obtain copies of the letter and provise and such additional information as they may require from the office of the stockholders' committee at Room 152, One Mailson Avenue, New York City.

Fox Planning Southern Chain

Atlanta.-Formation of a new southern division, in charge of R. T. Newton, is accepted here as being the tip-off for an expansion in this territory by Fox. Newton was appointed manager of the Fox Theatre here in October and is succeeded by Al Goodwin, formerly with the West Coast unit.

Reports from Charlotte indicate Fox scouts are busy there seeking sites for a new house.

Meanwhile reports piled up fast and furiously. Most of them were wild and pure guesswork. In an effort to stem the tide and because telephones leading into their individual offices didn't reach them MOTION PICTURE NEWS Sent Harry Stuart, John E. Otterson and William Fox the following telegram:

"Many reports most of them wild are rampant throughoul the motion picture industry regarding the course of the trusteeship committee appointed to manage the affairs of the Fox enterprises. Largely reports revolve around what the committee proposes to do regarding the Loew company and Gaumont British and whether the management policy will result in marked changes of policy in Fox affairs. A statement from you or the committee would do much to clarify the situation. Motion Picture News makes its columns available for such a purpose if you are interested." The wires remained unanswered.

Original plans of the Fox Film Class A stockholders' committee are understood to have provided for "construc-tive cooperation" with the trustees in working out the problems involved in the intircate situation confronting them, and not an attempt to embarass these trustees appointed for the controlling stock.

This attitude of "A" holders existed at a meeting on Wednesday. At a Thursday confab, newer developments, including an alleged statement of a Fox official which appeared in the public prints, changed the complexion of the whole "A" set-up, according to the "hot" statement made public yes-terday by representatives of the "A" group.

Flinn, Lally Held After Pathe Fire

John C. Flinn, Pathe vice-president, and Henry Lally, production manager, were released yesterday on $15,000 bail for hearing Dec. 23 on technical charges of second degree manslaughter, lodged against them in Judge Renaud's Homieide Court in New York, following the death of ten players and staff members and injury to a score of others when fire completely destroyed the company's studio at 134th St. and Park Ave.

Specifically, Flinn and Lally were charged with violation of Section 1052 of the penal code, which involves manslaughter on the grounds of culpable negligence and storing dangerous explosives. It had been reported Pathe had nearly 100,000 ft. of film stored at the plant, in violation of the law.

An additional legal tilt with New York authorities is expected when Flinn and Lally appear in Municipal Court on a summons served yesterday, charging both with violation of the city ordinance prohibiting storage of more than five reels of film in any premises without a permit.

Mayor James Walker has ordered a three-way investigation, calling for reports from the battalion fire chief, fire marshall and fire prevention hureau, and has signified his intention of sitting personally as a committee magistrate in a John Doe hearing if he finds that the investigations warrant such action.

Question Of Exhibitor Organization Reported Slated For Deliberation Later—End Of Meetings Not In Sight

A new standard contract with many of the current objectionable clauses eliminated will probably be the first direct result of the 5-5-5 conference now being held in New York by the representatives of Allied, the M. P. T. O. A. and the Hays organization.

Globe, N. Y. Turns To Grinds For RKO

Radio-Keith-Orpheum will have its own "grind" house on Broadway. With the termination of Rudy Vallee's short engagement at the Globe in "The Vagabond Lover," Dance Hall" follows in. The price scale will probably be seventy-five eents top at night with a hargain matinee up to one o'eloek at thirty-five cents a la Rivoli and

Copyright Revisions Proposed In 3 Bills

(Washington Bureau, Motion Picture News) Washington .- General revision of the copyright laws is proposed in a hill (HR-6990), introduced by Representative Vestal (Rep., Anderson, Ind.), chairman of the House Committee on Patents. Vestal also re-introduced two other measures, including a bill (H.R.6987), to amend and consolidate the copyright laws, with respect to assignments, and bill No. 6989, to amend the copyright law in respect of mechanical reproduction of musical compositions.

Consolidated Grosses $2,264,315 In 11 Months

Gross earnings of Consolidated Film Industries for eleven months, ending Nov. 30, jumped 60 per cent over last year, totaling $2,264,315, as against $1,417,020 in the corresponding period last year. Earnings for November were $212,761, compared with $148,722 in November of 1928.

Quarterly dividend of 50 cents on both preferred and common were declared at the regular board meeting, payable Jan. 2, to stockholders on the books as of Dec. 16.

"Whoopee", Cantor's First For Goldwyn

Eddie Cantor, who has signed for a series with Sam Goldwyn, in conjunction with Flo Ziegfeld, is schednled to appear in "Whoopee" as his first, commencing work in Hollywood early in the spring.

Ziegfeld is expected to arrive on the Coast several weeks before Cantor.

During the early stages of the meetings, it appeared that Allied was in the saddle and that distributors, headed by S. R. Kent would go the limit in an effort to bring about exhibitor accord. It is understood that as late as midnight Thursday night the question of what to do eventually about exhibitor organization had not been discussed. Last week, however, it was stated by an Allied spokesman in Minneapolis that no matter what took place at the meetings now under way, Allied would insist upon dominating.

S. R. Kent sails for Europe Friday night and, in his absence, Felix F. Feist is to head the distributors' committee. The meetings may break up in a few days, but no final date is as yet in sight.

Advertising budgets of 240 national advertisers will jump $20,000,000 in 1930, reaching a combined total of $206,000,000, as compared with $186,000,00 in 1929.

Future For U.S. Firms In All Latin America

"A future far beyond the imagination awaits those producers who will prepare for and anticipate the film needs of Mexico and all Latin American countries," is the opinion of Luis Lezama, of Mexico City, who has signed with RKO for distribution of Radio pictures in that republic.

Lezama is now in New York on a comhined business and pleasure trip.

hined business and pleasure trip.

"Mexico is a nation of 50,000,000 population. Much of this is urban in cities which are growing." Lezama points out. "A program of universal education is under way. Industry is being encouraged and prosperity is assured. With such a background Mexico is bound to advance like America as far as pretures are concerned.

"Because of this great and growing market in Mexico and in fact, all Latin American countries, I urge American producers to make pictures with an eye to our people's requirements. Our people like color, sparkle, spectacular effects, romance and lots of action. "Rio Rita' is the ideal type of production for the Mexican people. It bas the color and spectacle, the art, the music so dear to the Latin heart. Remember, our people love the great spectacle. We are very much interested in the newest motion picture developments. Our people are mad about sound and color."

W. E. Reported Behind Plan For Railway Sound Theatres

Western Electric is understood to be the power behind Interstate Management Corp. and Interstate Cine-Car Corp., formed in Delaware to develop a fleet of specially designed railway coaches as the first unit of a projected nation-wide system of mobile sound theatres.

Western Electric and not Biophone sound equipment will be used, contrary to previous press reports.

Interest of W. E. in the venture is said to have originated when company chiefs surveyed the country and discovered that many sections would remain virgin sound territory for some time to come hecanse of the large number of small, cheap houses not in a position to wire.

Authorities estimate that well over 5,000 small houses, lodge rooms, church auditoriums, and the like are showing silent films in towns which eannot support a first elass theatre.

There has been much speculation in the industry over the future of these 5,000 accounts. It is a well-known fact that their future has been hanging in the balance since the country first started to wire. Interstate may solve this problem, partially at least, via its sound-equipped railway theatres.

Intention of Western Electric to force installations in small towns where exhibitors do not intend wiring, is also understood to be another reason for the move.

Kent Denies Tie-Up With New Kane Unit

Paris.—Linking of S. R. Kent with formation of Robert T. Kane's new $10,000,000 Franco-American production group led Paris film circles to believe that Paramount was interested, in some way, with establishment of a cooperative French and American production unit.

Kent, however, denies the report. The venture, Kane promises, will soon materialize into an important international production factor with Western Electric-equipped studios in Paris. The company plans features in all languages,

Carolinas Continue In M.P.T.O.A. Fold

Pinehurst, N. C.—A fusion of North and South Carolina theatre interests, continuance of the M.P.T.O.A. affiliation, election of Charles W. Picquet to presidency of the new unit, and addresses from important film and civic authorities highlighted the two-day exhibitor confab which ended here Thursday.

Picquet and Charles C. Pettijohn, S. L. (Roxy) Rothafel, John Phillip Sonsa, Dr. Lee DeForest, Pete Woodhull, Rev. Wm. M. MacLeod, militant Presbyterian minister of Pinchurst; Willard C. Patterson, Publix's southeastern chief, and Lupton A. Wilkinson, of the Hays office, addressed the gathering.

"Roxy" gave a two-hour discussion on theatre management during the first morning session.

Other officers elected were: II. F. Kincey, Greensboro, 1st vice-president; J. M. O'Dowd, Florence, second vice-president; W. T. Gray, Gastonia, treasurer; H. E. Buchanan, Sylva, board chairman, and the following directorate: H. F. Kincey, Harry Hardy, W. H. Hendrix, J. E. Simpson, L. L. Drake, J. O. Sherrill and M. F. Schnibben.

M.P.T.O. of North & South Carolina is the new title of the organization.

Technicolor Plans 5th Plant on Coast

Expansion of color production schedules by producers necessitates the immediate erection of a fifth Technicolor plant, giving the company three in Hollywood and two in Boston, the later handling all Eastern work and release prints. Dr. Herhert Kalmus, Technicolor president, is now in London to arrange for construction of a sixth laboratory, to supply color needs of foreign producers.

The new Hollywood building is scheduled for early January opening and will turn out 47,000 ft. daily, or about 75,000,000 ft. yearly. It will cost $1,000,000 and concentrate on rushes having color on one side only. At present, rushes are printed on double-coated positive, with emulsion holding color on both sides of the stock.

The four plants now operating work 24 hours daily. Thirty Technicolor cameras are in use, majority in Hollywood studios.

Jack and his Vita-Temple Vagabonds organized a Radio Kiddies' Klub which brought out 1,000 applications for memhership the first night from children under twelve. The club's activities will close Dec. 21 with a Christmas party at which there will be films, a tree and presents for each member. The youngsters have written a mystery thriller, "The Tiger's Claw" an install-ment of which is presented each Monday, until Dec. 21.

Damage Action, An Echo Of "Blue" Fight

Kansas City, Kans.—Newest development in the Kansas fight against Sunday closing by Seventh Day Adventists is a damage suit for $5,000, filed by Perry Gilehrist, Adventist, against B. O. Auten and Morris Rogers, who are charged with malicious prosecution.

Gilchrist leased the house in Clyde, on Sundays from Sam Blair, who operates six days a week. This arrangement worked satisfactorily until June 12, when Blair and Gilchrist were arrested for Sunday openings. At this time Auten and Rogers were the chief complaining witnesses. A jury acquitted the theatre operators on Sept. 27 in the district court, and the jury's answer to a special question was that the prosecution was malieious.

The $2 picture on Broadway is on the skids, according to indications. Already one "legit" theatre housing a long run attraction has cut top prices from $2.50 to $1.50 and is advertising popular prices in an effort to attract business. The house is the Central and the picture, "Disraeli."

"U" Changes '29 '30 Release Plans

The inclusion of four new features on the general release chart for the last half of the current season features Universal's plan to create a new sales drive period midway through the regular 1929-30 sales year. It is understood that Carl Laemmle, "U" chief, advocates a complete switch in the present starting date of sales seasons to the first of each year instead of in June, but because this change is not held advisable at present, determined to do the next best thing, shaking np current production schedule to weed out undesirable stories and add better material. Laemmle, in defending his argument for a change, points out that the start of the ealendar year was the natural time for the announcement of product and plans for a season, a practice now followed by the automotive industry and other fields.

"All Quiet on the Western Front," "La Marseillaise," Joseph Schildkraut's "Night Ride," "Hell's Heroes" are the four features added to the release sehedule for the last half of 1929-30.

Opening gun in the new sales drive plan was fired on Friday, when Universal home office executives met with company division and exchange managers of the East, at the Park Central Hotel. The confab was first of a series of three, two others to be held at the Hotel Stevens, in Chicago, where Western division chiefs will confer on Sunday, and a Far-Western gathering on the Coast later.

> As a substantial portion of the product gilded with the $2 top idea has demonstrated itself over a period of years to be nothing further than the usual run of pictures slipped into the forced run classification either through a delusion on the part of the producers or in an effort, usually found misguided, to bolster up sales throughout the nation via bloated advertising campaigns.

Up Goes Overhead

Each one of these runs usually adds somewhere from $5,000 to $10,000 weekly to the eost of most of the weak sister productions. Broadway houses cannot be rented for nothing. The usual price is $4,000 to $5,000 weekly for the bare walls. This tap, together with the advertising and running expenses, often bring the house nut to around $20,000 weekly and with business hitting anywheres from $9,000 to $14,000 weekly the loss is added to the production.

Most of the legitimate theatres along Broadway today are housing pictures. The indications are that the next six months or year will see a gradual but wholesale elimination of the two-a-day type of picture at near-legitimate prices in favor of the same number of runs at prices nearer the pockethook of the public.

Side Streets Flourishing

In contrast to the condition on Broadway a survey made of the cheaper sealed houses on Sth Avenue during the week disclosed the fact that they were doing capacity business both afternoons and evenings. In the side street houses away from Broadway, the general seale of admission is 15 and 20 cents in the afternoon and 25 and 35 eents at night. One thing was noted and that was that the audiences were composed almost entirely of men.

On Broadway itself the contrast was made by cheeking business at the Newsreel Theatre with a flat 25 eent admission, and Loew's New York with a daily change of program and a scale of from 15 to 35 cents for matinees and 50 cents top at night. In both instances it was discovered the houses are usually filled to capacity. Of course, Loew's New York has been a standby for drop in business for years, but when business in point of number of admissions is checked with theatres charging legitimate house prices it will be found the "pop" houses are far in front.

Finds Europe, Recognizing Sound Is Here, Fumbling Over Way To Proceed

Cross-Fire From Patents, Language Barriers And Lack Of Experience Prevail On Continent, Joe Brandt States

Recognizing the world trend toward sound pictures, Continental markets are still in the throes of indecision as to the most effective procedure to take. This condition prevails all through Europe with the possible exception of Great Britain, states Joe Brandt, president of Columbia, who today outlines his views on the situation for readers of Motion Picture News.

England is wiring theatres rapidly and plans for sound production are taking shape, he states. France finds herself in a somewhat more complicated situation; in Germany, the patent mix-up has effectively retarded rapid progress; Austria doesn't know which way she is headed while Italy is ready to go ahead. These are the highlights of Brandt's observations.

"I took three trips to Europe this year to study the relative changes in the various countries and there is still much information to be secured with regard to the effect of the talking pictures in the smaller countries. I will endeavor to cover the countries in order of their importance and the relative effects on each territory," he said.

Great Britain

"As far as Great Britain is concerned, although the British trade was at the outset skeptical of the permanency of the talking innovation, exhibitors and producers there lost no time in taking advantage of the new development and placing their orders for both recording and reproducing equipment for immediate installation.

"It is most unfortunate that due to some technical "It is most unfortunate that due to some technical problem, the nature of which I am not conversant, British Acoustics was not prepared to compete with American-made machines and, as a result, American equipment made considerable inroads before the British machines could be marketed. The situation today in Great Britain is that there is a predominance of American-made machines in the establishment of main British-made machines in the theatres of Great Britain. Credit here must be given to the British exhibitor because of his desire to acquire the best reproducing equipment, as he realizes that the value of tone quality is an important factor in the retention of their patronage.
"At the outset there was considerable agitation."

in the retention of their patronage.

"At the outset there was considerable agitation against permitting the product of the American mianulactures which had used either RCA or Western Electric systems to be reproduced over British machines, this barrier has in a great measure been broken down and none of the mechanical companies object to the use of American-made film on British-made machines provided that the tone quality is as good as that of the British. Since the British exhibitors are in sympathy with this idea, whether the machine is made by a British manufacturer or an American manufacturer, it is merely a matter of good salesmanship as to which company installs the most machines. most machines.

"As to the public approval of the talking pictures, the British public have taken to it as keenly as the American public. Exhibitors appreciate that never in the history of the business have they taken in such phenomenal grosses as they have on talking pictures and yet there is another side to the public recognition which is similar to some of the experiences in the United States. I was surprised when I heard the figures on Buster Keaton's "Spite Marriage," which was run as a silent picture at the Empire. There were several other silent pictures at this house that slid phenomenal grosses which compared very favorably with grosses on most of the talking pictures. The J. W. Schlessinger organization, General Talk-favorably with grosses on most of the talking pictures. The I. W. Schlessinger organization, General Talking Pictures, have been very successful in the installation of its equipment and from what I could learn, this device has given very good results.

"While at the moment England is not equipping of fast as the United States, nevertheless the orders are in and I look for a material increase in the number of wired theatres within the next few months. The Cinephone, which is a Powers equipment, was negotiating for installation in a great number of theatres and F. A. Enders, the managing director of the FIM Booking Office had taken over the sale and exploitation of a new British-made machine.

"With regard to the producing activities in England,

"With regard to the producing activities in England, the British International, John Maxwell's organiza-tion, has equipped its studios with RCA equipment and has done some very good recording. British

England, this country's most important overseas market, is preparing to ride high on the crest of the sound development, according to Joe Brandt who sees in plans now in formation enough product forthcoming to meet the British Government's quota needs.

The English public is sold on sound, he asserts, as are exhibitors who realize that never in their history were grosses so pheno-menal as with talking pictures.

Interchangeability is no longer an issue in Great Britain, Brandt declares, a fact which has speeded the installation of American-made reproducers in that market.

Dominions, the Herbert Wilcox company, up to the time I left was the only studio equipped with Western Electric equipment. The British Gaumont Company has been successfully recording on British acoustics. The British producers, which include Maxwell, Gaumont British, Wilcox and one or two other independent organizations have an ambitious program lad out for themselves for features and shorts for this coming year. The development of short subjects owing to the combination of the Wilcox company with the English subsidiary of the Victor Company with the English subsidiary of the Victor Company, will bring into the English market a considerable number of very good short subjects.

"The Gainsborough organization, of which Michael Balcon is the managing director, has set out to make a number of pictures this year and from all appearances the ehibitors in Great Britain will have no trouble in securing the necessary talking pictures to meet the quota.

France

"The situation in France is a bit more complicated than that of Great Britain. The most progressive organization in France for the development of reproduction and recording is the company operated by Jacques Ilaik. Haik had originally intended to market a talking picture device but concluded arrangements with a large electrical company over there to handle the manufacturing and selling of machines in France. He has a studio in Paris and was, during the time I was in Paris, working on features and shorts.
"Pathe Natan was equipping its studio. The producers in France contemplate that they will, as soon as they can get proper studio installations, produce as many French talking pictures within a period of eighteen months as they did during a year's period of silents.

"The installation of machines in France has been held back considerably because of the indecision as to the proper system to install. It was apparent from what I could learn that RCA had probably more machines installed than Western Electric, although installations were not many outside of Paris and a few of the key cities. The four or five prominent theatres in Paris, including the Madeleine, the Cameo, Auhert Palace and the Paramount and a few of the other Gaumont houses were doing a very bug business on the synchronized pictures. 'Submarine' ran on the boulevard at the Cameo for over four months and The Jazz Singer' broke a record by staying on the houlevard for about six months at the Auhert Palace. The business at the Madeleine with synchronized pictures and also 'Broadway Melody' with super-imposed French titles were considerable, but the recognition of the French public for this particular type of treatment was not exceptionally favorable. The Madeleine particularly has a large American following and I attribute the greater part of their gross to Americans and those French people who understand English.

Germany

"The situation in Germany is rather chaotic due to the suits that are pending and the injunctions that have been granted against American devices. The combination of the Tohis and the Klangfilm interests have retarded the installation of American machines, but Warner seems to have been particularly successful in the exhibition of 'The Jazz Singer.' German independent producers have come to the conclusion that it will take a considerable time, possibly over a year, before they can properly equip their studios and make a type of talking picture that will compare favorably with what they formerly made in the way of silent pictures. Production of talking pictures and the attendant expense are troublesome ones for the producers abroad. Great Britain is probably in a better position than the rest due to the fact that England has Australia, Canada and English-speaking countries to depend on for revenues whereas the French producer is in a bit of a quandary because, even with the proper number of installations at this time, there is no means of determining the amount of revenue that can be taken out of a picture. Since the cost is quite excessive, whatever pictures are made now are strictly upon a speculative basis. Germany faces this same situation. They realize that to make expensive talking pictures and to get revenue out of Germany, Austria and Bohemia is leaving much to be desired from the standpoint of a proper return on the investment.

"There has been a tendency in Germany, Austria and Bohemia is leaving much to be desired from the standpoint of a proper return on the investment.

Austria and Italy

"Austria is in a very peculiar position because geographically she cannot afford to make talking pictures. The market is very restricted and even during the stlent days Austria wasn't able to show a very big profit on any pictures made there. Installations have been very slow and many law suits have been started to restrain those exhibitors who wanted to install American machines. As a result, the talking picture situation is almost at a standstill. I believe there are one or two installations in the bigger theatres in Vienna but they are suffering from lack of product as the German interests are opposing the introduction of the American equipment and American-made sound pictures.

of the American equipment and American-made sound pictures.

"In Italy there is a more progressive state of mind among exhibitors as far as installation of machines is concerned. In principal cities there have been many installations and showing of pictures. In that country, they have necessarily been restricted to synchronized pictures, but a few of the musical pictures have gotten by with titles and American songs.

The Balkans and Russia

"Other countries, such as Hungary and the Balkans are apparently going slowly on the matter of installations as they realize that they cannot produce in their own countries pictures in which the native tongue is used. As a result those countries will materially suffer because, unless the producers succeed in making good silent versions of talking pictures, exhibitors will find themselves without the necessary number of pictures of the required standard to meet their demands.

"Russia seems to forge aliend with a definite program of production. The information I secured was that they were figuring on a considerable program. Of course, the situation in Russia is entirely different from any other country as the production and exhibition is entirely under the control and is being financed by the government.

is entirely under the control and is being financed by the government.

"From my talks in London with representatives of circuits in the Far East, it would seem that those nations, particularly India. Australia and Africa, are going ahead in a big way to develop the talking picture phase of the business and are installing machines rapidly. Japan has installed sound in key cities and already several of American talking pictures have been shown there."

Quality Reproduction Hampered By Theatre Inexperience, Survey Shows

OUND reproduction, admittedly one of the most serious problems confronting the wired theatre, is largely retarded because equipment is now in the hands of employees who as yet do not know how to adequately handle it. This is one of the major deductions drawn by the corps of sound technicians, trained and sent broadcast by M-G-M, in an effort to improve the standard of sound in the houses of the nation.

Theatre owners in the United States have probably expended not less than $50,000,000 during the past two or three seasons in equipping their honses for sound reproduction. Therefore, they are interested—vitally interested—in the perfection of the results which are obtained from this equipment.

The same problem much more definitely confronts the producer. Unlike the exhibitor, he has not been able to meet new conditions merely by adding additional equipment. In most instances, he has had to tear out his old stages and studios and build new ones. His average individual cost, including buildings, equipment and increases in staff, prohably has equalled the total investment in sound which has been made by the whole exhibiting section of the industry.

Millions of dollars, therefore, are saying daily to both exhibitors and producers that the quality of the sound product which reaches the public must be steadily improved. The studio problem is to put maximum values into production; the exhibitor's problem is to insure that all of these values shall reach the public.

Neither exhibitor nor producer can progress far without the cooperation of the other. And both are equally dependent upon the distributor—the exchange. A hreak in the line at any one place from the beginning to the end of production, in printing, in dise making, in dise or print inspection, or in any phase of theatre reproduction may deprive the public of the quality of sound entertainment to which it is entitled.

The closest contacts hetween exhibitor and producer, or with either of them, are those which are established by the distributor. Because of these contacts, the distributors' opportunities for rendering practical service in the solution of sound problems are obviously greater than those of either of the other two branches of the industry.

Realizing the necessity for sound service and its responsibility and opportunity for providing it, M-G-M several months ago established a special department the purpose of which is to improve the quality of the sound entertainment which reaches the public. A training school was established at the studios, where classes are instructed in sound production and in the bandling, inspection, storing and shipping of sound prints and records.

Graduates of these classes, assigned to exchanges, have been actively engaged for some time in supervising exchange work and instructing exchange employees in sound service. They have also had wide contact with theatres, with local organizations of projectionists and exhibitors and with the service departments of equipment manufacturers.

What have been the results of this experience? Has it been helpful to the industry? Has it pointed the way to further constructive work? Has it developed facts or conditions about which exhibitors should be advised?

In answer to these and like questions, M-G-M has exclusively placed at the disposal of Motion Picture News a volume of reports and data clearly indicating the widespread interest which its new work has aroused and the importance which is attached to it by exhibitors, projectionists, exchanges and producers. Much of the information is of direct practical value to theatre management and personnel. The reports clearly show some of the spots to which an invested $50,000,000 should look for larger returns.

Thus, an exhibitor reports in person at an exchange that a picture which be has just rehearsed runs ahead of the sound. As it seemed to be about five frames out of synchronization, that much footage was removed, but with no improvement in results.

Examination of the print record card showed the print had been run only seven times and that there had been no insertions, patches or ent-outs made. A sound technician, visiting the theatre, replaced the five frames, and found the print in perfect synchronization. The only trouble was that the starting marks on both film and disc had not been watched.

In another instance, following a rehearsal, the dialogue of a picture was reported to be unintelligible. A sound technician, rushing to the theatre, arrived just in time for the first show. The sound was clear as a bell. Echoes in the cupty house during rehearsal had caused confusion.

Breaks sometimes also prove puzzling. A technician, called to a theatre on a synchronization complaint, found three fect of excess black leader in the trade mark title and a shortage of one foot in the second seene. This threw the whole reel out of synchronization for two feet. Breaks had occurred at the theatre in both these spots and there was no one there who knew that exact replacement of film was necessary in order to preserve synchronization.

A sound technician, to remedy certain causes of complaint, recommended use of a half-tone needle and cutting out the equalizer. The theatre personnel was surprised and glad to learn that a half-tone needle could be used, that there was such a device as an equalizer on the equipment, and what its purpose was.

In one theatre, which had not been able to solve the problem of change-overs, it was found that a piece of round flat metal was being inserted at about eight or ten feet from the end of the reel. This, when it dropped out, became the change-over sig-

Film Men Turn Stage Angels To Find New Screen Material

Motion picture producers are turning to "angeling" stage productions in an effort to line-up future material for the screen. A definite shortage of plays and stories with dialogue that have been expertly developed by passing through stage production is seen in the offing and picture makers foreseeing this have decided that they had best get behind the legitimate theatre to keep a continuous stream of productions coming along.

Right now the Warners, Adolph Zukor, Joseph M. Schenck and Samuel Goldwyn are all interested in financing stage productions.

Adolph Zukor and Paramount have been in the field for a number of years ever since they took over Charles Frohman, Inc., after the death of that producer. Joseph M. Schenck has been slightly interested for several years, but more recently has entered into a definite arrangement with Max Marein whereby that playwright is to write and produce for the stage and, in turn, reproduce his works for the talkers as Schenck productions. "The Humbug," now current, is one.

Early in this season the Warners entered into an arrangement with A. H. Woods whereby he is to produce at least four plays for them. Since then, the War-ners backed "Fifty Million Frenchmen" to the extent of $200,000 and also "Top Speed," which opened in Philadelphia several weeks ago. In the case of the former, Ray E. Goetz is presenting the show. The latter is tied in with the new firm of Guy Bolton. In the trade, however, it is generally admitted that the Warners are the financial backs of both ventures.

Samuel Goldwyn is reported as behind "Sons O' Guns." Lily Damita, a Goldwyn importation, is in the cast.

Ad Expert Stirs AMPA Members

The motion picture's part in national prosperity, and its opportunity for leadership in helping the country maintain and increase that prosperity, were highlights of a pep-creating speech by Roy Dickinson, associate editor of Printer's Ink, at the weekly luncheon of Associated Motion Picture Advertisers, poorly attended by active members.

"One of the greatest talks with which the AMPA has been honored," declared one prominent member, "and scarcely a corporal's guard of members to hear it. Before long we won't he able to induce representative leaders of industries or the professions to address us for fear of loneliness. It's about time the membership realized that the importance of the AMPA seems to be much greater in the minds of outsiders than among its own rank and file."

Dickinson apparently reflected the judgment of many leading industrialists, as well as the result of his own wide experience in advertising and merchandising, when he said that motion pictures are largely responsible for a national, and international, feeling of "divine discontent" among the masses.

"Your gorgeous screen settings, your dramatic picturing of the latest in household furnishings, in cars, in wearing apparel, in facilities for personal comfort and luxury," he told the AMPA members, "has created, and will continue to create, in the mass mind, dissatisfaction with last year's models and styles, and maintain a buying demand for the newer things.

"That demand is purchasing power, and purchasing power makes for industry so long as it has the monetary means for expression. Your industry can do much to maintain mass confidence, and thereby purchasing power. Use your tremendous force for moulding public opinion to support President Hoover's efforts to maintain contions and diminished consumption of product. Help change 'lip-service' into nction!"

Mr. Dickinson concluded with the direct statement to Edward L. Klein, president of the AMPA, that no organization was better equipped in personnel, facilities and opportunities to give national and international aid.

Klein discussed the formation of a committee of AMPA members to crystallize the idea, and seek the aid of the Hays organization in obtaining distribution and exhibition of footage that would interpret in various forms the slogan "Keep The Wheel of Industry Turning."

High and Low Along Music Row

THIS is a story of a prophesy that came true. About five months ago Sam Serwer, a staunch disciple of Witmark songs, told this writer that "My Song Of The Nile," theme song of "Drag" starring Richard Barthelmess, would be a tremendous hit. The books show that he was right. This week, Sam again pulls a crystal-gazing stunt, and predicts that the immediate future of "Singin In The Bath Tub," which Winnie Lightner sings in "Show Of Shows," looks very bright. "Lady Luck," "Your Love Is All That I Crave" and "Just An Hour Of Love," all from the same production, are already much in demand.

TALKIN' about versatility, don't forget De-Sylva, Brown & Henderson. Not only did they write "Sunnyside Up" Fox production featuring Charles Farrell and Janet Gaynor, but also the songs which are in "Sunnyside Up," "I'm A Dreamer Aren't We All?" "Ii I Had A Talking Picture Of You," "Turn On The Heat" and "You've Got Me Pickin' Petals Off O' Daisies." DeSylva, Brown & Henderson also mublish them. 'ALKIN' about versatility, don't forget Depublish them.

"S WEET KENTUCKY NIGHTS" writ-ten by Lou Herscher and Glenn Allen, has been getting quite a plug over the air these days. Looks as if Lou Herscher, Inc., has a real hit. This firm has also taken over a bean-tiful ballad fox-trot called "Love Me In My Dreams" written by Fred Lillach.

O NCE upon a time—no—many, many years ago—no, that won't do either. About a year ago, there were many who predicted the early demise of the theme song, calling the new form of entertainment just a passing fancy. They also believed that the synchronized song had no better chance of becoming a hit than the popular song. Just for sake of illustration we'll glance over some of the current hits on we'll glance over some of the current hits on the Robbins Music Corp. catalogue, and here's what we find: "The Pagan Love Song," from the M-G-M picture "The Pagan;" "Singin' In The Rain" Iron "Hollywood Revue of 1929;" "How Am I To Know" from "Dynamite" and "I Don't Want Your Kisses" from "So This Is College," We had occasion to hear "That Wonderful Something Is Love" which Joan Crawford sings in "Untamed," and if this num-ber doesn't join the best sellers, this writer will ber doesn't join the best sellers, this writer will huy the drinks-ice cream sodas-for every mosquito in Jersey.

A ND to make a long story longer, we take A a peep at some of the Witmark picture songs and find, "My Song Of The Nile" from "Drag," "Am I Blue?" from "On With The Show," "Singin' In The Bathtub" Irom "Show Of Shows" and "Tip-toe Through The Tulips" from "Gold Diggers of Broadway." All hits.

CELEBRATING its fourth year as music publishers, Bibo-Lang, Inc., has an outstanding catalogue which include, "Huggable, Kissable You," "Climbing The Stairs," "Are You Waiting For Me, Ma Cherie" and a fast moving dance folio called "Songs Of Long Ago." Irving Bibo, writing member of the firm, is now on the Coast where he is arranging a series of picture tie-uns. He has already ing a series of picture tie-ups. He has already succeeded in having four songs synchronized in forthcoming production.

Rivoli's Box Office Record Of $56,600 By Mary And Doug

Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks in their first combined appearance in "The Taming of the Shrew" have hung up a new box office high for the Rivoli in New York with $56,600 for the first week of their run. This tops by $300 the record of $56,300 which Doug made on his own earlier in the year with "The Iron Mask."

Another house record on the street was made at the Criterion by "The Love Parade" an extended run attraction at $2

$12,000,000 Cut In Admission Tax

Washington.-Over $12,000,000 in admission taxes have been lifted from theatres as a result of the exemption increase from seventy-five cents to $3. This applies to the fiscal year ended June 30, 1929. The commissioner of internal revenue, in his annual report, places taxes accruing from box-office receipts at $4,483,976 as against $16,675,419 for the 1928 fiscal year. Collections for 1929 were about four per cent of the tax at its peak.

The local states - California, Illinois, New York and Pennsylvania—cut their tax payments by $1,000,000 or more, New York's total dropping more than $4,000,000. The revenue from these states for the year was approximately $8,000,000 less than for the 1928 fiscal year.

No taxes whatever were collected in Alaska or South Carolina and only 75 cents in North Dakota. Ten other states contributed less than $1,000 apiece. New York was the only state to go over $1,000,000, Illinois the only other in excess of $500,000, and California, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania the only others to pay in excess of $100,000.

B. & K. Will Not Fight Fox, Warners

Chicago.-Ohio expansion plans of B. & K. will not conflict with Fox and Warners. Illinois and Indiana have always been the principal B. & K. strongholds, with an important Michigan interest in the Kunsky group, operating in Detroit.

When B. & K. recently announced acquisition of a site in Cincinnati, their first Ohio venture, it was immediately assumed the purchase was an attempt to encroach on the Fox and Warner domain. The inside dope reveals that B. & K. was merely tipped off to a good spot and grabhed it. B. & K. may build at Dayton later.

M. C.'s Return To St. Louis Houses

St. Louis.-Masters of ceremonies will again he featured at key stands of the Warner-Skouras circuit. This decision was made following complete settlement of the controversy between musicians and St. Louis houses.

Ed Lowry resumes charge of Ambassador stage shows as m.c., featuring Charlie Schmatt and Buddy Heitz in his band. Albert Roth will conduct the pit symphony. The Missouri plans to again plug Milton Slosser at the Wurlitzer and Wally Vernon is coming hack as m.c. at the Granada.

At the Colony, "Hearts In Exile" with Dolores Costello played to $12,498 which is fair. "The New Babylon" at the Cameo played to $5,897 and held over.

The regular grind houses, however, did not fare so well. At the Roxy where "The River" was the attraction the receipts were $96,213, while "Untamed" at the Capitol played to $75,591 which was not enough to have the picture hold over. The Paramount with "Applause" got $68,500. The top. The figures were $20,500.

At the Rialto, Gloria Swanson in "The Trespasser" finished her fifth week with $28,300 which gave the picture a total gross of $227,800 for the engagement and assures the star of getting $250,000 in six weeks at the house. This will mean a new record there for a run picture.

Gloria Gets $227,800

In the extended runs "The Love Parade" stands out as the leader hy nabhing $20,500 into the Criterion in a single week. The picture is getting a strong demand in the theatre tieket agencies. The other feature holding at nights hut not doing so well at matinees is "The Show of Shows" at the Winter Garden where the total was $28,-298.25, making a total of $81,414.50 for three weeks.

"Disraeli" which moved from Warner's to the Central in six days at the latter house played to $17,531.75, the best husiness this theatre has seen in weeks. "General Crack," John Barrymore's first talkie, came in and got $3,563.50 in four days at the Warner. "Condemned" at the Selwyn in its fifth week turned in $12,800, while "The Vagahond Lover" with the scale reduced to $1.50 top played to $13,177.

"Rio Rita" At $14,000

"Rio Rita" for its ninth week at the Carroll dropped just short of $14,000 which is holding up nicely considering the house's location.

"Sunny Side Up" passed from the Gaiety to make room for "The Sky Hawk," and garnered $10,245 for its tenth and last week. "The Song of Love" also drifted from the Cohan into the Capitol immediately after a final week that was under $7,500.

"The Hollywood Revue" is scheduled to leave the Astor the end of next week which will give it a run of eighteen weeks on Broadway. Last week showed $11,819 which gives the picture a total gross of $307,893 on sixteen weeks.

Hays Ignores Charge He Sought To "Fix" Church Authorities

Will H. Hays refuses to take cognizance of charges that his organization sought to "fix" influential church heads and clergy in furthering the interests of the industry in important religious circles.

Resignation of Wm. Redfield as chairman of a commission of films of the Federal Council of Churches in America and removal of the Rev. Charles Stelze, Presbyterian minister, claimed to be in the employ of both M.P.P.D.A. and the Federal Council, exploded a bombshell in the ranks of combined Protestant church interests in this country.

Redfield quit when he, with several other members of his church film commission, discovered that the Hays organization had been instrumental in organizing the group, through efforts of Dr. Stelze who acted as contact man between the M.P.P.D.A. and the film commission as publicity director for the latter.

Warners To Spend $250,000 On Coast Studio Improvement

These include a new sound-proof and Technicolor stage on the Vitagraph lot, remodeling of executive offices facing Sunset Blvd. and the building a new matrix plant and new projection and cutting rooms.

Garbo Knockout in "Anna Christie"

Hollywood.—All doubts of Greta Garbo's ability in dialogue productions are over. The star's performance in "Anna Christie," her initial venture in talkies, is a conclusve demonstration that she will be even a higger draw in talkers than in silents. Her work is a sensation.

Garbo has an exceptional talking voice, recording with a rich mellowness that exactly conveys her personality. A fine delivery of lines, coupled with a splendid performance, classes her among the finest of dramatic actresses.

"Anna Christic" is a standout attraction, of a calibre that will do smashing business. Eugene O'Neill's play has tremendous dramatic power, all retained in the film version. Clarence Brown handled his direction with a deft hand that sustains the fullest interest in dramatic movement. His work is superb and individual characterizations are particularly fine, with the small east of four principals presenting sterling performances. George Marion, Maric Dressler and Charles Bickford are better than excellent; and Garbo she's worth seeing and hearing over and over again.

Horse Sense

Hollywood.—A featured lead for five years in pictures had apparently dropped out voluntarily during the past year. Studios calling his manager are informed that the young man is not available for engagements.

Both the actor and his manager are smart boys.

Reproduction Hampered By Inexperience, Survey Shows

nal. No one present had read the production cue sheet and no one in the theatre knew that the film itself was provided with a device which caused it to click automatically at the proper time for starting the second machine.

second machine.

"Record trouble" took a technician to a suburban city. Those in charge thought the trouble was identical on both machines. A test was made. On machine one, a new record repeated. On machine two, another new record did not repeat. Neither did the record which had been damaged on machine one repeat when used on machine two.

Inspection of the first machine's arm showed that the reproducer's needle assembly was far out of line. Manufacturer had not serviced it since installation, three months previously. The technician then called the manufacturer, reported the defective arm and reproducer, wobbling turn tables and other minor troubles, effecting prompt servicing and elimination of the exhibitor's difficulties.

One complaint, by telephone, was of "unnecessary sound" from a sound-on-film print. The intimation was that the sound track had not heen properly cleaned. What the technician found was a defective tube in the amplifier.

And the record might thus he prolonged almost indefinitely. The point is that lack of knowledge ahout a $50,000,000 investment is causing a great deal of trouble which experience eventually will overcome. Much—maybe most—that is involved in the M-G-M reports concerns very small mechanical difficulties which long ago should have come to be considered commonplace and trivial.

In one case, reproduction was poor. Investigation demonstrated the projector had not been properly bolted to the floor. In another, the tone orm was overweight. A third exhibitor had his disc plates out of line—a simple error, but a trouble inducer of major rank.

These difficulties and others common in the showmon's experience will be outlined in the second orticle of this series. Watch for it in the next edition of Motion Picture News.

Harmony At Home

(Fox-All Dialogue)

A Pippin Programmer

(Reviewed by Al Meyers)

ONE of those rare light comedies that sparkles with clean cut wholesome humor and a spirit which your audience will find itself sharing and enjoying. You can sell this to any and all. It will please the entire family.

Devoid of ballyhoo-without revue or dance numbers-lacking overwrought suspense-this is just an intimate picture of an everyday American family-their ambitions and their realizations. It is refreshingly human and sincere. Wish there were more like it.

William Collier, Sr., returns to the screen with a bang. He handled his role in a manner which makes it easily apparent that his reputation as a comedian is well earned. Elizabeth Patterson as his wife is excellent. Marguerite Churchill and Rex Bell as the lovers leave fine impressions. And Hamilton MacFadden in his first directorial effort shows a flair for comedy that presages further happy results.

The feature has plenty of comedy-use navelty and musical shorts.

Skinner Steps Out

(Universal—All Dialague)
A Lively Farce Comedy

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

NIVERSAL has turned out one of its best productions to date in this picture, It is a fast-moving farce comedy that contains a lot of laughs. The laughs are timed perfectly and the picture runs along with speed. It looks like a real box-office bet for almost any type of theatre. Glenn Tryon and Merna Kennedy are co-starred. They team up very nicely as the young married couple.

It is the story of Skinner and his dress suit and how, because of the fact that he makes a social flash with it, he steps into a good job at the finish of the picture and makes his bride happy. The sequences in the charity bazaar are particularly well worked out and the auctioning off of the police dog is a neat piece of laugh producing business. William James Craft, who directed, should be congratulated on this excel-lent comedy bit.

In the supporting cast the names of Burr McIntosh, E. J. Radcliffe and Lloyd Whitlock give a chance for a further advertising splash.

They Learned About Women

(M-G-M-All Dialogue) In The First Run Division

(Reviewed by Walter R. Greene)

VAN AND SCHENCK, vaudeville headliners for these many years, are spotted as stars in this. As actors, they are just fair; but the pair shine brilliantly when draped around a piano, singing songs.

M-G-M set the boys in a basketball yarn, surrounded them with a fine cast and allowed them plenty of opportunity to vocalize. Bessie Love is sterling in supplying the romance, while Benny Rubin walks off with every sequence in which he appears. Mary Doran, Tom Dugan, Eddie Gribbon and Francis X. Bushman, Jr., are all excellently cast.

The story concerns a big-league battery with vocal ambitions. After the world series, the boys step out in vaudeville, but the vamp enters to break things up. Romance and story it built up so that the pitcher returns to the team for a world series climax.

The picture is substantial entertainment for week runs. Where Van and Schenck are attractions, business should be exceptional.

South Sea Rose

(For- 411 Dialogue) Good Program Release

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader) WHY must the producers have their heroines handle dialect roles? Isn't it tough enough to get over the straight dialogue picture without going into dialects? Or are they figur-ing that they are going to save their foreign market with this sort of stuff. It's a mistake, for in "South Sea Rose" it is proven. One has the utmost difficulty in trying to follow the dialogue of Lenore Ulric who plays the role of a French girl in the south seas.

The star is an orphaned French girl in a convent in the south seas. She has been for years on her father's trading ship. It is generally understood that the girl is an heiress and that her dad left her fortune in care of her uncle in France. A young trading captain decides to marry her for her yealth and trials. decides to marry her for her wealth and tricks her into a ceremony. He really finds he loves her, but then has almost lost her. The girl, however, turns to him again when she finds his love is genuine.

The Woman Racket

(M-G-M-All Dialogue) Average Entertainment

(Reviewed by Al Meyers)

A FTER three title changes Philip Dunning's play, "The Night Hostess" has finally reached the screen. This story of a cop who marries a night club hostess only to have her pack him in and return to the bright lights marks Blanche Sweet's return to films.

Again we have the cop who is only human and who doesn't bend backward in the discharge of his duty. And again as a result, the character is an audience winner. In addition to this there is at least one situation which is loaded with dramatic punch. These two factors are the highlights of the picture. Unfortunately Miss Sweet was not given a role which will invoke much sympathy. She does well and will, from all signs, continue to do well in the talkers. And equally unfortunate is the fact that this bears too close a resemblance to other antecedent crook operas. Tom Moore will be liked as will John Miljan. Bobby Agnew, Sally Starr and Tenen Holtz aid materially.

Use broad comedies or cartaons—anything light.

The Great Divide

(First National-All Diolague) Just So-So

(Reviewed by Al Meyers)

THAT perennial western "The Great Di"has again found its way to the screen.
Originally a hit on the stage and then a silent vehicle for Conway Tearle it is now offered as a talker.

In its anxiety to escape story repetition First In its anxiety to escape story repetition First National has elided more than a few of the old hit situations. The substitutes offered, to a large degree, miss fire. In this story of the reformation of a jazz-mad girl by a son of the western soil, Miss Mackaill is forced to struggle with a role that has been made entirely too magnetications. with a role that has been made entirely too unsympathetic. She does so valiantly but it is a question whether her following will be increased thereby. Ian Keith plays the hero in the traditional western manner. Myrna Loy, George Fawcett and Lucien Littlefield do well. The title will undoubtedly draw and should be used to the fullest advantage. Its stage and film reputation in previous forms is still fresh enough to cash in on.

Use comedies and novelties—the feature is spatted with music.

Opinions On Pictures

Blaze O' Glory
(Sono-Art-W. W.—All Dialogue)
A Money-Maker

(Reviewed by Al Meyers)

(Reviewed by Al Meyers)

LAZE O' GLORY" is good. It will be tabbed as "hokum" by highbrows, but put it down that the picture will click. The combination of title, which is attractive; direction which is excellent; story, which although involved is good; songs, which have a nice lilt and work of the cast will put this over. If there he a foult to find it will like in the fact that there be a fault to find it will lie in the fact that this is a union of three overworked themesbackstage, war and murder trial, with which individually your audiences may have become surfeited. However, the union has been well wrought.

The hero is married on the day of his departure for the front. He is gassed while sav-ing an enemy soldier. He returns to America and is unable to obtain work. He imagines his and is unable to obtain work. He imagines his wife unfaithful with the enemy he had saved overseas and kills the latter. The trial follows. Here, "the quality of mercy" is strained to the utmost.

Eddie Dowling sings and acts his role well. Betty Compson is her usual excellent self. Frankie Darro is immense as the boy. H. B Walthall is convincing. Renand Hoffman and Waithall is convincing. Renaud Hoffman and George Crone turned in a directorial job that is all that could be desired, and more.

Hunting Tigers In India

(Tolking Picture Epics-Dialogue ond Synchronized)

More Talk Than Hunting

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

C OMMANDER DYOTT and his fellow-huntsmen apparently had to wait patiently to bag their three tigers in the Indian jungle. So did the audience. The tigers came on the screen with a mild flourish about fifteen minutes before the picture ended. Elephants, religious festivals, bazaars, wild pigs and a miscellany of humans and animals all had precedence. That's no way to treat the tigers.

There are scenes of interest, but they don't have much to do with big game hunting. And there you have the reason why the picture comes through as a lukewarm—or less—celluloid rec-ord. Through it, the commander in his com-pletely uninteresting monotone explains what the shooting was all about. He had to, because no where do you see a shot laying low its game.

The enterlainment is pretty tame, bearing in mind what the title suggests for the picture. Only here and there do you get the mood of danger. The proceedings somehow take on all danger. The proceedings somenow take on an the aspects of a routine affair. Everything apparently runs off on schedule. The hunters go out after their game and nab it—purely a perfunctory proceedings. The fault might be in the editor's, but it is a fact that the element of suspense is practically nil.

Dubious for straight picture houses. Build up shorts if you play this; you'll need good ones.

The Sky Hawk

(Fox-All Dialogue)

A Thriller

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

NOVELTY and kick—two unbeatable combinations for the till. "The Sky Hawk" has both. It takes some time before the wallop develops, but when it comes you know it's there.

The story is movie-right to the last foot. The story is movie—right to the last foot. The hero, an English peer ready for war service in France, is accused of crashing his plane to escape duty at the front. His friends believe he is a coward. Of course, such is not the case. Despite his crippled legs, he secures an old plane, fits it up and when a German Zeppelin strike terror into the hero. strikes terror into the hearts of London goes aloft and singlehanded brings it down. The air spectacle is in miniature, but it is strikingly handled and packs a healthy wallop.

John Garrick is the boy and Helen Chandler is the girl. Both do all they are called upon to do which isn't very much. The real leads are the Zep and the plane playing it in the clouds above London. Ralph Hammeras handled the miniature stuff and did a fine job.

Why Leave Home

(Fox-All Diologue) Good Light Entertainment

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

THIS is jazzy and somewhat musical version of "The Cradle Snatchers" with the youthful romantic side of the new story superimposed on the comedy aspects of the original. The result is a mildly diverting and lightly entertaining story, which young David Rollins almost steels

The plot of the story is carried by a double extet. There are three chorus girls who are sextet. given the principal roles with Sue Carol carrying the burden of the plot through her romance with Nick Stuart. The girls meet the boys in front of their frat house and the boys date them up for the evening. All would have been well had it not been that the boys were without funds so when the chance to earn $200 a picce by being the escorts to a trio of middle aged dames comes along they jump at it. The result is that the hubbies of the old girls take the chorus girls out and the entire twelve meet up with each other at the same roadhouse.

A lively picture that moves fast although the big laughs of the original have been lost.

Darkened Skies

(Biltmore Prod .- All Dialogue)

Junk

(Reviewed by Freddie Schoder)

HIS is one of the worst pieces of dialogue junk that has hit Broadway since the talkies made their bow. A corking actress, Evelyn Brent, is just about lost in a maze of footage that doesn't mean a thing.

The story is laid in a small fishing village on the coast of California. Evelyn as the orphaned daughter of an American father and a Mexican mother lives with her uncle for whom she keeps house, runs his shop and in addition rents sunshades on the beach. She is given a trip to town and there meets a Mexican who later turns up at her native village and makes love. She finds out that he is a rum runner. Tough, but true. Then her uncle frames to have the lover trapped by the revenue officers, but the girl manages to warn him although he believes that she has done this for another reason. In the end, however, he finds out the true state of affairs, and there is a happy finish.

If you have to run this one be sure your shorts are the best. It'll need them.

Produced and distributed by Biltmore Prod. Story by John Francis Natteford. Directed by Harry O. Hoyt. Photographed by Ray Reis and Harry Fowler. Length, 5,400 feet. Running time, 1 hr., 7 mns. Release date, Jan., 1930.

Forget It

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader) THE fact that this is a "quota picture' should in itself be enough for any exhibitor. And even though it has Ben Lyon, who was imported into Germany from Hollywood to star in it, the picture is not worthwhile considering for the average house. In spots where ing for the average house. In spots where the exhibitor needs something to fill a double feature bill, it will get by providing that the other half of the program is fairly strong.

Lyra Mara, the Continental actress who shares the billing honors with Lyon, will never get by on this side. Her personality, in general, reflects that of a contented German haus frau.

The story itself might have been developed into something worth while. It has as its hero a young American, born of an Austrian father who has made a fortune in America. The boy is a fast stepping youngster, who despite of his millions plays in a jazz band. His dad sends him to Vienua to buy the old family mansion and rehabilitate it. He falls in love with the girl next door, despite the fact that there has been a family fend for generations. In the end the boy wins over his dad and the grand parents of the girl.

Don't play it unless you have to. Then get the best shorts possible and pray.

Fine Holiday Numbers Among Week's Shorts; New M-G-M Releases Fine

"Old Bill's Christmas"

(RKO-Sound-2 Reels)
Some Humor And Some Tragedy ANOTHER incident in the life-in-the-Arrenches-adventures of Bruce Bairnsfath-er's famous character. It offers some of the fine humor built around this character, and some effective "seasonal" sentiment. It has, too, some piercing thrusts at war. The characters are nicely drawn and there is fine atmo-sphere developed in the backgrounds. The incident occurs in a trench on Christmas Eve, with "all quiet," and songs going up from the Allied troops and the Germans. Then calls go back and forth with invitations to "come on over." A young German does come over and is entertained by Old Bill and his buddies. "Headquarters" does not like the lull and orders come through to start action. Heavy firing from the German trenches, the young soldier insists on getting back to his own lineand falls with a bullet through him on the parapet of the trench. It is a picture to be used in connection with some very actionful feature comedy. Running time, 17 minutes.

Adult appeal. Is number to go with fast comedy feature.

"Christmas Cheer"

(Universal-Sound—2 Reels)
Timely Sunny Jim Talker

Here is one that the kids are going to go wild about this time of the year. It deals with the adventures in the home of Sunny Jim just prior to Christmas and on Christmas Eve. Sunny decides to be a good boy in anticipation of the holiday. His mother takes him to see Santa Claus in a department store and later of the holiday. His mother takes him to see Santa Claus in a department store and later the youngster writes a letter to Santa. On Christmas Eve there are a lot of mishaps in the household, but eventually Santa arrives with his bagful of toys for the youngster. The older folks will get a laugh out of the attempts of the parents to fool the youngster. Directed by Harold Beaudine. Running time 19 minutes. Appropriate for holidays.

"Mandalay"
(Van Beuren Song Sketch—1 Reel)
Overdrawn; Tiresome

THIS is the first of a series of Song Sketches from the Van Beuren Corp. It won't create any excitement. The famous song is submitted to a pictorial treatment as concocted by Grantland Rice, but as a producer with imagination-as witnessed herewith-Rice does much better with Sportlights. English soldiers returning from India find themselves listening to James Stanley sing "Mandalay" and then make for the door en route back to the land they were cussing a few minutes previously. Stanley's voice is nicely modulated and the recording job is good, but there the number ends. Directed by Oscar Lund.

Needs plenty of support.

"Hall Of Injustice" (Vitaphone No. 889-I Reel) Laughable Court Room Burlesque

JOHN T. MURRAY and Vivien Oakland are the stars of this very laughable burlesque on the continued flood of talkies with court room scenes. This one makes a laugh of everything serious that has been done in "Mary Dugan" and "Madame X." As a matter of fact, this would be a corking short to play the week or day following the run of either of the above features as the short will be appreciated by those who saw the dramas. There are a lot of laughs in Miss Oakland's description of how she bumped off her hubby while resting in her lover's arms. Murray as the counsel for both the prosecution and defense gets a lot of comedy out of his dual roles. Running time 8 minutes.

Fine short. Play it up. Good anywhere.

"Love, Honor And Oh, Baby!" (Pathe-Sound-2 Reels)

Monotonous

GEORGE LE MAIRE'S domestic comedy version of the "worm that turns" theme. An exceptionally obedient husband finds this obedience irksome—and so do his friends. After the wedding of his niece, the latter's husband pokes fun at the henpecked partner's managing mama—and the tables are turned.

Entirely too long, and gets monotonous. Need strong numbers with this.

"Night Owls" (M-G-M-Hal Roach-2 Reels)
Packed With Laughs

TAN LAUREL and Oliver Hardy as a pair of burglars make this a laughing scream from beginning to end. There are at least three wow laughs in it and many lesser ones. The pair are part of a frame up to rob the house of the chief of police. There are moments that will double up most audiences with laughter. The backyard stuff and the various mishaps as the phoney hurglars break into the house as the phoney burglars break into the house are certain to click. Directed by James Parrott. Running time 21 minutes.

Yell about this, Will prove more entertaining than many features.

"The Real McCoy" (M-G-M-Hal Roach-2 Reels) Laughable Moonshine Comedy

THIS is one of the Roach series starring Charlie Chase. It is a good line of hoke comedy, with a chase opening the picture, a mountaineer sequence with a barn dance and a chance for the old melodies and square dances. Chase is the city feller who falls in love with the school marm, is suspected of being a revenue spy and is run out of town. There are a couple of real laughs. On the whole it is entertaining, Warren Doane directed. Running time 19 min-

Will slide nicely into average program.

"Pathe Review No. 50" (Silent-1 Reel) Usual Lineup

HOTS of Guatemala City and Venice, a peep into oddity shops, and the "Gold Rush of '29," a modern expedition of modern maidens on a gag prospecting trip, as Hollywood sees it, all go into the current review. Acceptable

Okay if you have strong surrounding num-

"Steeplechase" (U. Sporting Youth-2 Reels)
Fair Short Talking Drama

THIS is a tabloid version of the usual racing drama. There is some sustained interest in the racing scenes, but, in the main, it is rather long and dragged out. The story of a crooked jockey, with the girl replacing him at the last minute and riding the horse to victory in order to save the fortune of her sweetheart's father. It is a steeplechase race. The girl allows herself to be tied to the horse, a move that would have certainly resulted in her death if the horse had fallen. The picture is one of the Sporting Youth series. There are a few thrills in the picture although the dialogue is stilted and forced. Directed by Ben Holmes. Running time 18 minutes.

Rest of program will have to be strong.

"Mickey's Big Moment" (RKO-Darmour Sound—2 Reels) Rollicking Kid Comedy

THIS looks like the good old days of screen comedy brought up-to-date with a mike. Kid actors will survive the talkies. That seems certain after a peek of how this group score laughs in a rollicking two-reeler bringing to life the well-known characters in Fontaine Fox's "Toonerville Trolley" sketches. The fun starts with a meeting of the debating society, with the kids discussing the pro and con the curfew law and school home-work. When the word "either" crops up the adults take the debate away from the youngstres, and the latter retire to a barn to stage a cabaret or revue that introduces many ingeniously contrived bits of bur-lesque which the young actors handle most capably. It is the kind of comedy the young patrons will hail with delight, and there is plenty to amuse adults, a fact proved by reacyork, where "Mickey's Big Moment" is click-ing nicely in its two-a-day spot as opener to "The Vagabond Lover." Running time, 18 min-

Sure fire kid comedy, looks good for any type of bill.

"The Doll Shop"

(M-G-M-2 Reels)

Great Holiday Week Subject

HERE is a really tremendous short subject in Technicolor that will prove a knock-out for the holiday weeks. It will be a delight out for the holiday weeks. It will be a delight to the grown-ups and a wonderful treat to the youngsters. "The Doll Shop" is a clever screen and sound adaptation in color of the old vandeville offering "The Toy Shop." The scene is the workshop of a doll-maker, where the dolls come to life after their creator goes to sleep. The effect is carried out through the ultilization of a large set with oversized furnishings to make the human dolls appear small. There is a solo at the opening, a chorus number with two dozen boys and girls, a wonderful adagio number, a clever toe specialty, a march of the toy soldiers, a South Sea number and some toy soldiers, a South Sea number and some clever tap dancing. It is a miniature musical revue that has at least two catchy numbers that will please any type of audience. Directed by Sammy Lee. Running time 18 minutes. Splendid Christmas number.

"The Song Writers Review" (M-G-M-2 Reels)

Clever Novelty Offering THIS is a screen version of the old "Piano Fiends" act done a la the Friars' Frolic. It has eight of the writers of popular songs seated on the stage in front of grand pianos with Jack Benny acting as master of ceremonies introducing all of the principal of the introducing all of the writers and having them play snatches of their successes. The writers play snatches of their successes. The writers are Gus Edwards, Fred Fischer, Roy Egan, Dave Snell, Arthur Freed, Nacio Herb Brown, Roy Heindorf, Roy Turk, Fred Albert and Dave Dreyer. Three specialty numbers are introduced, for "Mean To Me," "Me And My Shadow" and "Japanese Sandman." Benny's lively chatter lends the comedy touch, which (Continued on page 30)

Ad Tips—Rio Rita is well known here, and the title alone would bring business in Texas. the title alone would bring business in Texas. Bebe Daniels is a Dallas, Texas, girl, and John Boles a Greenville, Texas, boy, so they, too, should be billed big in their home town. "A lilting, Technicolor, singing, dancing romance of the Rio Grande" will attract anywhere. Play comedy angle big. Campaign in a big way, and you will get hig return. Brick attendance and you will get big returns. Broke attendance and box office records for one day in Houston— Thanksgiving Day. Appeal is to everybody.— Kirby, Holden Swager, Mgr., Houston.

Ad Tips-All efforts made to sell title of picture on basis of stage success—two newspaper contests, lobby radio show and music tieups did it. Plugged Bebe Daniel's name in cast list. Audience appeal, general.—Ralph W. Thayer, Mgr., Orpheum, Omaha.

Ad Tips—"Scenes no stage could hold," "the musical spectacle of the century," "Bebe Daniels has a singing voice," and "a vast array of glorified girls" were the lines used to describe this. Had extensive tie-up with music and department stores on the musical features which are already widely known. Bebe Daniels made a new reputation in this picture, and John Boles a new reputation in this picture, and John Doks is already recognized in film operas. The production takes with all ages and all classes.—Regent, T. R. Tubman, Mgr., Ottawa.

Ad Tips-Broke all Providence records, running for a solid month here and playing to capacity at practically all performances. Being Ad Tips—Held over for second week the picture did fairly well for the extended run with little additional exploitation. The star, Gary Cooper, is a draw, the historical setting and the romantic story. Draws all types.—L. A. Carter, Asst. Mgr., Strand, Des Moines.

Ad Tips-Telegrams were sent to the leading business concerns of the city inviting line parties to see the picture. Extra space was given in the newspaper. The third week of this picture was as big as a big first week.—E. S. C. Coppock, Mgr., Royal, Kansas City.

Ad Tips-Spread a painted sign across the front of theatre, something not done for months, to indicate confidence in the feature and nsed a profusion of window photographs. Names of stars were emphasized as a guarantee and indicated that "The Virginian" was the first big outdoor talkie since "In Old Arizona." The production embraces a great deal that was left to the imagniation in its many stage versions. Everybody was talking about "The Virginian" and everybody liked it. Opinion was that it was a pleasant change from stage revues and talking mysteries.—B. F. Keith's, J. M. Franklin, Mgr.,

Suitable for any show. A strong number.

"Outdoor Sports"

(Universal-2 Reels) Has Few Laughs

UTDOOR SPORTS" is one of the Sid Saylor series of comedies. It contains a few laughs, all of them coming from the action and not from the titles, which would indi-cate that the sound version of the comedy would be better than the silent. Stereotyped story of a henpecked hubby who manages to escape from home to attend a poker game, but ends up by going out with a pal and a couple of chickens and a chase by the wife through a series of amusement concessions at the beach. Just an ordinary comedy. Directed by Meins and Newfield. Running time, 21 minutes. Also released in sound.

Slip it in, if you must, to round out the bill.

"The Fighting Parson" (M-G-M-Hal Roach-2 Reels)

Good Burlesque Western

HARRY LANGDON is the star of this bur-I lesque western comedy. It is brimful of laughs after it once gets under way, but the stage coach sequence at the opening is too long and rather tiring. On the whole, however, the picture will get a lot of laughs from the average picture house audiences. Langdon is a wanage picture noise andiences. Langdon is a wandering entertainer who, on entering a western mining camp, is mistaken for the "Fighting Parson" who has come to clean-up the town.
Instead he strums "Frankie and Johnnie" on his banjo and fights a burlesque boxing bout with the heavy. A lot of good hoke here. Directed by Fred Guiol. Running time 21 min-

"Pathe Audio Review No. 34" (Sound-1 Reel) Unique And Colorful

TWO of the three subjects here are unusual. "Shadows" reveals unique photographic treatment, and "White Majesty," the beanty of huge ice mountains near Labrador. In the former, the usual results of the camera's eye are switched so that all blacks appear white, and vice versa. The cameraman recorded a fantasy under New York's "L". He shows eerie shapes, stenciled by the sunshine through the network of iron and steel that supports the elevated structure, and a veritable shadow symphony scampers across the screen. Thomas

"CANADA!"

A LARGE portion of this week's Club pages is devoted to the activities of the Canadian members of the Round Table Club.

It must serve a two-fold purpose. First: to clearly demonstrate to the industry at large that Canadian showmen know the business thoroughly. Second: as a token of our appreciation for their marvelous Club spirit.

When this organization first started its existence we found, among the Charter members, several Canadian managers. Showmen who were just as keen to recognize the possibilities of such an idea as their brother managers in the United States.

the United States.

As the organization grew, the number of Canada members increased. Until, with the appointment of the Canadian Regional Chairmen, we can boast of nearly a hundred per cent membership of the showmen up in the Dominion.

When we announced the first Canadian section some months ago, we did not allow sufficient time for the material to reach us. With the unfortunate result that after the issue was published we received more than we printed. Subsequently, we used the various contributions in succeeding issues.

For this, the second Canadian Section, we gave the boys up there plenty of time to shoot their stuff into Club headquarters with the marvelous result that we have much more material than we can use.

After all, we cannot ignore the hundreds of other contributions from members located all over the world. But we have tried to select the items which appear to hold the most interest, not only for the Canadian boys, but for every member and reader of these pages.

It is befitting, on this occasion, to express our utmost appreciation to Jack Allan, Regional Chairman of Eastern Canada, and Pete Egan, Regional Chairman of Western Canada, for their wonderful support and Club spirit. To them goes most of the credit for the big membership of Canadian managers in the Club and for the response that we have had from them as a whole.

Could we better support this statement when we say: that were we to pay both of those boys a weekly salary, we could never expect more faithful aid than they now render, not only to the Round Table Club, but to managers all over the world who are weekly followers of these pages.

Look over the pages in this issue devoted to their showmanship activities and see if you don't agree with our high opinion of these managers. Find out, as we have found out, that they are as capable a group of men as you will find anywhere in this great industry of ours.

We say, and you will all re-echo, Hail To The Canadian Showmen.

Charles Brennan's Activities Click For S-W Rialto

It seems as though the Stanley Warner gang are bound to make an impression on the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages, by grabbing themselves a whole lot of space because of the many fine activities which they are continually engineering from their Circuit or individual houses.

Following hard upon the recent story about one of his wide-awake stunts, we have influenced Charlie Brennan, the managing director of the Stanley Fabian Rialto Theatre, in Newark, N. J., to send us his photograph so that we can sort of make you all better acquainted with him.

In order that you may better know what this Hundred Year Club is all about, we want to inform you that no member is under 70 and the oldest is over 96. This little stunt, by the way, gained Charlie several two column pictures and stories in the local paper, especially about the oldest member, a Mrs. Sutoon. The story naturally announced that the Club would be the guest of the theatre at the Wednesday matinee, and the photograph which we are showing below broke with the story the day after they saw the picture.

In addition to this particular angle, Mr. Brennan worked out a window and counter display of sheet music on the

POLONIS DEL RIC Evon Geline theme song in practically every one of the chain stores in the city. In addition a life size figure dressed in the costume similar to the one worn in "Evangeline" occupied the front of a street window in a large local department store. Book marks were distributed in the public libraries and circulating libraries, giving the list of books on the Land of Evangeline, and also carried the play date announcement. Candy display of New Orleans Pralines from the land of Evangeline also played a part in his display.

Thanks, kindly, Charlie, for your prompt letter and photographs, and let us hope that your fine CLUB activity continues indefinitely, as we are rather proud to number you among the representative members of our outstanding organization.

Are You Set?

Only a short time before the Holidays are right with us.

Are you going to entertain the poor kiddies with a special show for Christmas?

Are all your plans complete for a real Gala New Year's Eve Show?

IF NOT—WHY NOT?

The Man Of A Thousand Costumes Is Louie Charninsky

"LOUIE IS AT IT AGAIN."

WHO? ? ? ?

None other than our good friend Louis Charuinsky who is now referred to as the Sid Grauman of Kansas City.

This time he has surrounded the picture "The Great Divide" with cowboy atmosphere, by dressing up as a real dyed-in-the-wool cow-puncher with everything but the punch.

Not that the stunt itself didn't carry a wallop, as a matter of fact, they are still talking about it out Kansas City way. But we must certainly give Louie credit for the way he has that town hopping and watching him for everything he is pulling.

On this particular attraction he laid hands on an old stage coach, hitched a couple of horses to it, put a couple of cow punchers on the seat and rode them all around Kansas City. In addition he dolled himself up as a cow puncher, and likewise the rest of the boys, which gave the cash customers lots to talk about, which means plenty of business.

J. D. Hill Finds Midnight Show A Good B. O. Booster

J. D. Hill who manages the Strand Theatre in Tullahoma, Tenn., is very enthusiastic over a mighty successful midnight show which he just put over with a record crowd for any performance at this late hour.

He not only billed the town, but all the towns around which were anywhere within driving distance to his theatre.

Realizing that just the novelty of a midnight show and a picture was not sufficient to pull them out for so unusual a stunt, he put on his thinking cap and worked out a plan whereby he went to each of the towns at which his billing was shown and got one of the Clubs to get two of their prettiest girls and enter them in a beauty contest in connection with the picture. Six towns were tied up giving him twelve girls in the contest..

Needless to say the stunt went over with a bang, and Hill is now tickled to death with the results of an experiment which he alone felt would turn out right. He had the courage of his convictions and he saw the thing through in a true showman style. If any other members or readers feel that they would like to pull a midnight show, but are afraid that just an ordinary attraction might not fill the house and make it successful, they are at liberty to communicate either with the Chairman at Club headquarters or with Mr. Hill direct. Further information and details about the beauty contest will be gladly furnished. Midnight shows are beginning to play an important part in theatres from all over the country, and if you are passing up an opportunity to give your town something to talk about, then you are at fault and not your theatre. Get behind this idea, boys, and see if you can't inaugurate the first of your midnight shows, either with some special tie up, or for a particularly big attraction.

Thank you, "J. D." and we are still looking forward to hearing some more about your wide-awake activities. Why not include one of your own photographs when you send us your next letter, as we are kind of anxious to show the boys what you look like?

Denny B. Dixon says:

"THE MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB is in my mind quite an asset to the showmen who like the live wire idea of doing business, and I find wonderful new ideas in it."

Manager, Belmont Theatre, Nashville, Tenn.

Larry L. Chambers Started This One Off The Right Way

A private showing which was attended by specially selected members of leading clubs and civic organizations created a great deal of advance interest in George Arliss' initial talking picture,

"Disraeli." In arranging the special showing, Manager Larry L. Chambers compiled a list from the memberships of various clubs and organizations. To the carefully selected names he sent a letter giving a brief sketch of the stage play and inviting them to attend the private showing of the screen version. To lend dignity to the occasion a formal embossed invitation accompanied the letter.

As a direct result of the private showing much favorable word-of-mouth advertising was gained in advance of the exhibition date.

It has been claimed that this is a picture which requires "out of the ordinary" exploitation and advertising methods. If such is the case then Larry displayed more than usual good judgment because he tackled it from what we would term, the correct angle.

We have already had the pleasure of telling you about this member's activities and we will continue to look forward to hearing more about Chambers and the Publix-

Broadway Theatre in Newburgh, N. Y.

Joe Buse Offers A Circular With Real Trimmings

Here is an unusually attractive throwaway which measures about $8\frac{1}{2} \times 20^{\circ}$ inches and used by manager Joe Buse of the Fox San Carlos Theatre, Los Angeles, Cal.

This is a little different slant on the ordinary merchants tieup, and if the tieup itself was as neatly arranged as this circular, then we do not question the success of the entire arrangement.

Many valuable tips have come to our members and readers through the activities of our Fox West Coast members and we feel justified in pushing some of this stuff to the front because it has a genuine original twist to a lot of the old stuff.

In this particular case we have an opportunity of studying a type of tie-up which lifts the ordinary layout way above the cheap class into which it has degenerated.

Like most stunts that have suffered by too much use, that of the store tie-up grade has been permitted to become too matter-of-fact. Maybe that is why we like Buse's stunt here and the way he has arranged the material he sent out on the subject. If other showmen would benefit by his experience then they would continue to find the merchants still anxious to work with them.

Let's hear from you again Mr. Buse and maybe you will send us one of your own photographs so that we can show the boys what the originator of this stunt looks like.

JACK ALLAN Chairman Eastern Canada

Jack Allan is a little mixture of Scotch and Irish. Didn't start out in life to run theatres, but is a success at it nevertheless. Served in World War and went right back to the show business after it was over. Has been manager of the Capitol Theatre in Kitchener, Ont., for the past eight years. Loves his work, knows how to serve the public, can handle the shows so as to get the most out of them, and, as to be expected, is a great booster for the Managers' Round Table Club.

PETE EGAN Chairman Western Canada

Pete Egon was born in Winnipeg and boasts of a father who was ane of the pioneer railroad builders of the west. Started his theatrical experience with McNichol and became identified with Famous-Canadian Corp., about six years ago. Is an ardent sportsman and actually an outstanding figure in the annals of sports around Winnipeg. He is an active member at the Regina Board of Trade, The Gyro Club and, according to rumor, will occept a nomination to run for Alderman soon. Raund Table Club? And haw!

CHRISTMAS GOOD WILL

Kitchener, Ontario, has the proud honour of being the first town in Ontario to inaugurate a Christmas Community Tree.

First of all, the children are taken care of. A Huge Parade on Xmas eve through the main streets of the city, with the youngsters congregating at the Market Bldg., where they are presented with a huge stocking containing candies, fruit, and a toy by good old Santa himself.

Every needy family is also given a hamper basket full of good eats, candies, a few toys, if there are youngsters in the family; in fact, everything is done to make Xmas day a day of good cheer.

How is this all done, and who pays for it? Well, here it is. There is a club in this city called THE YOUNG MEN'S CLUB, their policy being to look after the needy at all times of the year. The 'wo theatres in this town co-operate with this club at Xmas time and put on a Midnight Revue, all receipts going to the Xmas Community Tree Fund. The theatre is given gratis, the personnel give their experiences there. Revue, an receipts going to the Amas Community The Fund. The distance is given gratis, the personnel give their service free, there is not a nickel spent, with the exception of any professional talent brought in from outside, and you know that performers are always willing to do their bit when it is for charity.

During the past seven years there has not been a year that we have not turned over anywhere from $1200 to $2000 on our Midnight Revue, and the good will we receive from this Community cannot be figured out in dollars and cents. Everyone in town knows the theatres are behind this movement and it serves to bring patron and theatre closer together.

And then again we are strong for Free Shows for the Kiddies during this Festive period. Both the Lyric and Capitol run special morning shows for kiddies from different parts of the town and it is gratifying or kiddles from different parts of the town and it is gratifying to hear the remarks passed on the streets as to what we are doing. The Orphanages are not forgotten, the Old Men's home is always visited with presents, and at every place the Young Men's Club visit, the CAPITOL & LYRIC are brought to the fore.

I may say in conclusion that there is a spirit of co-operation between Mr. Sills of the Lyric and myself seldom seen in any town. We pull together for the good of the town we live in.

Jack Stewart Is Ever Alert To Publicize Theatre

Jack Stewart, the peppy manager of the Capitol Theatre in Cedarboro, Ontario. recently made an arrangement whereby all the music and chain stores in the city as well as those specializing in phonograph records would sell and play by continuous plugging all the song hits of the various attractions playing at the Capitol Theatre.

In arranging this tieup he furnishes them with a typewritten list of the musical numbers and song hits that will be heard in the attraction for the following month. The stores in turn give him advertising space on their record counter and in their various window displays.

Only recently Jack was instrumental in erecting an illuminated 24 sheet sign on the top of a store at the main intersection of Cedarboro, where practically all of the traffic from the main highway enters the city. This sign carried a large hand pointing to the City as a direction for motorists who are entering the city to patronize the theatre. It is also a good angle in directing attention towards the theatre itself to motorists who are entering the city on other business than amusement.

We like Stewart's declaration pertaining to advertising in papers whereby he states that he believes it is mighty good business to plug surrounding towns within a radius of up to thirty miles where there are no local theatres equipped with sound. Here is a good angle even if there are theatres in those towns equipped with sound, because the larger centers can make a play for out of town business if they go after it in the right way, and we believe Jack Stewart is doing just that.

Listen, Jack, why is it necessary for your Regional Chairman to get after you to contribute to our pages, why not send us stuff at frequent intervals so that the rest of the boys will know that you are on the job all the time?

Pete Egan's Live Publicity Means Free Advertising

Capitalizing on every opportunity to publicize the theatre which he is responsible for, Pete Egan, the progressive manager of the Capitol Theatre in Regina, Saskatchewan, and Regional

Chairman of Western Canada for the ROUND TABLE CLUB, grabs front page publicity in the form of an intimate interview which was such good reading that we decided to reprint it without alteration.

Thank you, Pete, for remembering us, and we hope that you continue to keep us posted on your activities, not only as a showman, but as a member and Chairman of the CLUB.

Here's an angle that many theatre managers can cash in on, but perhaps have never given it a thought. It is always interesting reading for the community to know a little about the inside of theatre management and whether you stand in right with your newspaper or not, they would be tickled to death to print such a story or interview. Why not try to work it out along the same lines that he has, and sell your editors the idea that it belongs on the tront page?

At any rate, it won't cost you anything to try, and it might bring your theatre some darn good publicity just as it worked out for Egan.

We are certain that our members and readers are successful in working out some plan or other whereby they manage to get editorial or front page notices in their local papers. Perhaps they have not realized that this is so important an angle and have therefore made no great effort to pass along the "dope" on how they accomplish this feat.

Let us say right here and now; we will be tickled to give all the space necessary to tell these angles.

Proper Layouts In Newspaper Ads

By Mr. Harry Dahn, Capitol, Montreal

The following orticle was first read before one of the Division Conventions of the Famous-Conodion Corp., and contains much of vital interest to every showmon regordless of where his theotre may be located.

UR genial Director of Publicity and Western Division host has requested that I read a paper on the value of proper layouts in newspaper ads. Why H. M. Thomas picked on me for this subject with so many experts in our organization to choose from I am at a loss to understand, as I quite frequently transgress in the code of advertising. Why, at times my advertising copy is so full of holes that it looks like Swiss cheese. However, my intentions are good and if I don't follow the simple rules of advertising it is because my endeavors are so chock full of enthusiasm to sell my entertainment that I disregard these laws, and consequently it is a bad principle to establish.

The simplest principle or definition of newspaper advertising is that advertising is selling in print, or to put it more completely, advertising consists in presenting an article in print to people in such a way that they may be induced to buy it.

The functions of newspaper advertising are five-fold: To attract attention, to arouse interest, to create conviction, to produce response, and to impress the memory. These are the five fundamental problems of newspaper advertising. It is obvious that it is necessary to give careful thought to the value of headline, illustration, typography, phraseology and trade mark used in your layout. The functions of the layout of the finished ad:

I. To secure attention to the advertisement as a whole or to important parts of the advertisement, or to direct attention from part to part of the desired order.

2. To convey the message easily and effectively so that it may be read without the least effort.

3. To be pleasing to look at.

Probably the most important thing in your layout to secure attention is your illustration. An illustration can represent at a glance what would require a paragraph to describe. Pictures speak a universal language, therefore it helps impart your message more easily, more quickly and more completely. The attention value of your layout depends to quite an extent on its pictorial feature. Therefore great care should be exercised in choosing the scene or illustration you invest to use. A layout extent extent on its pictorial feature. Incretore great care should be execused in choosing the scene or illustration you intend to use. A layout containing an illustration that has no punch has a heavy momentum to overcome in presenting your message. Second only to your illustration in your layout is your headline and, of course, the title of your attraction, the only the content of the property of readers ever eater. The parts of your ad which the large majority of readers ever catch. headline determines whether your readers will read on further into the text of your ad. If the headline is sufficiently interesting and gripping the readers will naturally read further. It is obvious that no matter how interesting the body of your text or paragraph may be it will not interest if it is not read. The headline therefor has the difficult function of putting the rest of the copy across. It has been proven by reliable advertising authorities that the average person can grasp only four or five words at a glance, therefor it would follow that a good headline should be limited to the fewest number of words—it can be read more quickly, has great attention value in your layout. It should also be confined to one or two decks, and should be placed where it will connect with your text or illustration to which it relates. In order to attract attention and receive proper value it is necessary to study the style of type you intend to use in your layout.

Fancy and special type are difficult to read and should be used only when it adds to the effectiveness of your ad. As few type faces and sizes as possible should be used. I would say not more than two different faces, otherwise your layout will present a clashing appearance. In large cities as a convenience to their advertisers the messpapers publish a book showing the different style of type they have for advertising purposes. In the case of the smaller cities some progressive newspapers do likewise, but if this is not available they will usually pull a proof of their various styles of type for their regular clients. No matter where you are located it is important that you know the type your paper has at your disposal, your layout will suffer if you neglect to use proper type. advice to every manager is either to get a type book or insist that your paper give you proofs of the styles of type on hand. In writing your text or selling phrases use phrases which will arouse mental images in the minds of the readers. A vivid description of your picture in plain words has the tendency to arouse interest recalling to the readers objects of enjoyment or drama. These are mental images; they are the most realistic representations of objects when the objects are not present. It creates interests and stimulates the reader's imagination so that in their mind the desired impression has been made,

I have given you my humble opinion of what I feel constitutes the value

An Xmas Idea!

For a clever and original idea in regard to making some poor children happy at Christmas, the plan adopted by Tom Daley, of the Toronto Tivoli, will be hard to beat. This is how it operates. He first communicates with the ministers of the various churches (one of each denomination) and asks them to select one boy or girl in their congregation whose Christmas will be anything but a happy one. After the list of names has been collected in this way each of the girl members of the staff, including the usherettes, cashiers, telephone girl, etc., is assigned one of the children to look after at Christmas; in other words, she adopts the child for the time being. Then the girls busy themselves with the making up of the Christmas hampers, which consist of tasty but sensible eatables, small articles of wearing apparel which they have perhaps made themselves or obtained from the discarded clothes of their more fortunate brothers and sisters, and a toy or two just to make the visit from Santa Clans absolutely complete. On Christmas Eve the girls deliver the welcome gifts to the poor and unfortunate families, who are overwhelmed with gratitade at the thoughtfulness and generosity of which they have experienced so little. But this is not all; for on Christmas Day the children are taken out and treated to a real hearty Christmas dinner, then they attend the matinee at the Tivoli, after which they return home, with full stomachs and smiling faces, just bubbling over with cheerfulness and good-will, and everyone is made happier at the thought of having been able to help the same and the same able to help the same and the same able to help the same and the same able to help the sam ing been able to help these needy ones whose lives are not as bright as they might be.

This method of distributing good cheer at Christmas time not only gives the theatre a splendid reputation, but seems to catch the imagination of the newspaper reporters, who invariably devote considerable space writing up this unselfish way that the attaches of the Tivoli spend their Christmas. Thus a sumple act of kindness goes hand in hand with first-class advertising for the theatre.

of a proper layout, but there is another important one that cannot be left out of even the smallest ad. I refer to our trade-mark, or signature cut, as we term it. Our signature cut is one of the most valuable assets that the Famous Players possess. I am not in a position to state just what value our company places on it. Mr. Bragg could probably tell you this, but I do know, however, that it has a tremendous value. Capitol Entertainment is known from coast to coast as "Canada's Finest." The company has expended huge sums in advertising to develop this trade-mark, and today countless thousands of Canadian citizens know it to stand for the finest. It represents good-will and esteem in the minds of Canadian people for our entertainment. Be sure your trade-mark is protected. Let it stand for the principles as set by the company. Don't let it be blemished with untruths. Honesty in advertising is a great asset to possess. Dishonesty in your advertising destroys not only confidence but it indirectly harms every house on our circuit. Keep your trade-mark clean-it is the headlight of your company, and represents untold value in your layout.

better acquainted via these pages with the rest of his brother members and showmen, all over the United States, which will give him quite an area of friendship.

Tom is quite an authority on advertising campaign and newspaper publicity and for that reason his suggestions should carry much weight for those who are always on the alert to take advantage of a new angle.

Tom is also a great believer in the front appearance of his theatre, and when it was recently redecorated and remodeled, he took keen delight in seeing that the front was both attractive as well as eve-arresting to the passerbys of the theatre.

On the subject of newspaper advertising we want you to see a small group of his ads on various pictures that he has played at his theatre, and we do not doubt but that you will admire the neatness and attractiveness of his copy.

If it were not for lack of space we would like to show a full page of his different newspaper ads which were all conclusive proof of his ability to lay out a newspaper ad and get the most out of the space he uses.

We should certainly like to hear from this Canadian member, as we are sure our other members and readers of these pages would take as much interest in following his activities and suggestions as we in CLUB headquarters do ourselves.

So long, Tom, and why not try to continue to keep us posted on all your activities, it will be more than appreciated.

"Dynamo Fields"

To any one who labors under the peculiar illusion that Canadian showmen are not as wide awake and agressive as the boys right here in the United States, he need only look at these illustrations to disprove that peculiar theory.

of member E. P. FIELDS, who manages the Capitol Theatre, in Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, Canada, situated in the heart of the world's wheat belt.

Among several other things, we would particularly call your attention to the front used on "Broadway Melody" and the sign under the fine canopy built as an extension to his marquee marked "The Capitol Brone Filling Station." The photographs speak volumes for the stunt, as does the group of horsemen in front of the theatre, and there is no showman anywhere in the world who wouldn't give plenty for this type of a tieup.

As for the theatre itself, you need only look at the neat and attractive front, far from being a Roxy or a Capitol or a Paramount, but nevertheless a mighty fine looking theatre with every bit of advertising and sign work tastefully laid out. As for the interior it more than exceeded our own high opinion of what it would look like, and we want you to see the view that greets the patrons when they enter the house.

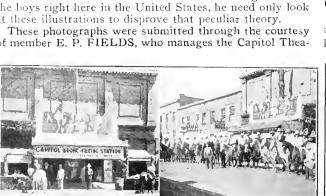

Before passing on to any of our other Canadian activities, we want you to look at three more photographs which depict the marvelous showmanship that Jake Fields is using up there in Moose Jaw. The top photograph in this group shows the attractive cutouts above the marquee on "Wings," the second a fine outdoor ballyhoo on "Showboat," as well as the front dressing of the theatre, and the third a beautiful window display tieup on the picture "Showboat," which commanded plenty of attention from the shoppers of the downtown district.

We are mighty grateful to Mr. Fields for these photographs and we know that his membership is something the CLUB has to be proud of.

We would like to know a whole lot more about his activities and would more than appreciate one of his own photographs with his next letter.

We are certainly grateful to Art for sending us this photograph, and we are anxious to see whether the rest of the Canadian boys are likewise keeping theirs conspicuously placed. We will only be certain when they have accommodated our request by sending us the photo.

Let's hear some more from you, Art, and let's know what's doing up around Port Arthur theatrically.

Dave Borland Furnishes Some Opposition For Egan

"Wilton Knows His Biz!"

As an old newspaper reporter, I learned long ago, that exchange of ideas are the direction signs which keep us on the highway to success, and your Manager's Round Table Club should prove of great value to every theatre manager.

The theatre manager who feels that he knows all there is to know about the theatre business; that he can pilot his theatre over the bumps to the goal of success on his own individual effort, will soon find himself off the main highway heading for a blind detour called failure.

During the nine years it has been my pleasure to be associated with the Famous Players Canadian Corporation, as manager of The Strand Theatre, Hamilton, Ont., I have tried out many things tending to build up patronage, and I am not ashamed to admit, most of them were taken from the ideas of others.

I have found that an old idea, an old stunt, can often be transformed into a new one to suit individual needs, and have frequently been credited with originality when in reality, the foundation of the idea was an old one.

Personal touch with your patrons is, in my opinion, one of the greatest assets to box office success.

My office is "closed" during show hours.

Patrons of this theatre can always find me in the entrance lobby or on the floor of the theatre. I know most of them personally and they know me. If a patron is absent for a time, it enables me to let them know we have missed them—and they sure do like to think they have been missed.

H. E. WILTON, Manager, Strand Theatre, Hamilton, Ont.

some of his activities, which included a fine window tieup on "Twin Beds" and we are sure our readers will agree it was a finely dressed window when they study the layout.

Another part of his showmanship was the clever use of a standard mat on "Charming Sinners" in which the theatre slug and four boxes with a Scotch rule border made the ad outstanding from many angles. With this slight token of his ability, there is no reason why Dave Borland shouldn't become a steady contributor to these pages, without waiting for the Canadian edition to jack him up. What do you say, Dave, don't you think you can show your real CLUB spirit by keeping us posted on everything you do out there in Regina?

It seems as though the Pete Egan gang out in Western Canada, are out to grab off the honors for the Canadian section, and while they are neck to neck with the eastern division it will be hard to say which one contributed the most material and the best batch of stuff from the entire Dominion.

Shake For The Smokes—And How! With Mgr. Moule

E. Moule the enterprising manager of the Temple Theatre in Brantford, Ontario, devised an ingenious looking front for "Moran and Mack" in the "Two Black Crows."

You will notice the effective display that the large dice with the cut out of their faces superimposed for the dots.

This dice display was made of beaver board 4 feet square with the heads cut from the one sheet. The cuts above the marquee on this illustration, come from the 24 sheet and make a most impressive display especially at night when it is flood lighted.

As Mr. Moule puts it, the expense was very small although the returns were very big. As a matter of fact, house records were broken on the opening day which speaks volumes for the type of showmanship that Mr. Moule is putting forth in his efforts to make the Temple Theatre outstanding.

Listen, Moule, in your letter to Jack Allan, you mention a certain familitarity with dice?

That being the case, it seems like we ought to pull a convention of ROUND TABLE CLUB members in Canada at some convenient location as I have been very anxious to improve my education on this particular subject. However, kidding to one side, we certainly would like to have you contribute more frequently to the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages, and not wait for special Canadian sections, they are too few and far between to warrant silence on your part for any great length of time.

If you don't show some signs of life very soon, I will get after both of the Canadian Regional Chairmen to jack you up, and from what I know about Jack

Pete Egan Says:

"Received your welcome membership certificate, had it framed, and it occupies a real spot in my office. Get many useful hints and suggestions through the ROUND TABLE CLUB, and look forward to it coming each week".

Manager Capitol Theatre, Regina, Sask.

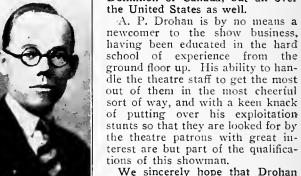

Allan and Pete Egan, you would have a pretty hot time of it even during the winter.

A. P. Drohan Is Well Known For His Showmanship

This photograph will serve to introduce you to another peppy member of our Canadian crowd of showmen and we are certain that his activities at the Capitol and Princess Theatres at Chatham, Ontario, would be of great interest and value to his brother showmen not only in the Dominion of Canada, but all over the United States as well.

We sincerely hope that Drohan will become a mighty steady contributor to the pages of the ROUND TABLE CLUB without waiting necessarily for special Canadian editions.

The first cut we show yon was in connection with a stunt which he pulled for his first all-Canadian week in which he used the Chatham Kiltie Band in front of the theatre before all performances on the opening day. You must admit that the gala decorations of the theatre plus this large and impressive outfit lent a distinct holiday atmosphere to the entire proceedings.

nosphere to the entire proceedings. More power to Austin for his keen showmanship.

The second photograph shows the Capitol Theatre trophy which was presented by the Capitol Theatre in Chatham to the City School Hockey League. This trophy has to be won three consecutive years before it becomes the property of any one school. In this connection we might say that we cannot think of anything that will create more goodwill and gain more free publicity than this trophy angle. Other managers, regardless of where they are located, should certainly be able to cash in on what Austin Drohan has done, because it is a demonstration of honest-to-God showmanship and a goodwill angle that is second to none.

"A. P." surrounded the opening of sound in his house with all the dignity of a key city presentation.

With an advance campaign through the theatre and local papers he built up interest in the coming of talkies to the Capitol Theatre and let loose a broadside when the grand opening occurred on Wednesday evening, October 23rd.

Practically all of the leading lights in civic and commercial life up in Chatham received printed invitations together with a complimentary admission card, and we are certain that he won many new friends, and increased their respect for the theatre among a whole lot of the old patrons.

Congratulations, "A. P." and do try to keep us posted on how you are handling your regular exploitation and advertising. We would be very much interested in letting the other boys see what you are doing, and, incidentally, your own photograph would go a long way toward making your next story more interesting to the boys who read it. We all like to see what our members look like. How about it?

P. S. Thanks, "A. P." for the invitation, but unfortunately it arrived the day before the opening and we couldn't possibly arrange to get there on time. However, we were with you in spirit if not in person.

I.F.W. Ackery Can Turn Out A New Novelty Each Week

We want you to see an envelope measuring $3\frac{1}{2}$ x $5\frac{1}{2}$ used by I. F. W. Ackery, Manager of the Dominion Theatre in Vancouver, B. C., on a tieup with the local distributors of Life Savers for use on the picture "Salute."

at the DOMINION THEATRE

IT'S A LIFESAVER AGAINST GLOOM

These envelopes containing samples of the mints were distributed to various cafes, drug stores, etc., and the cost of the little stunt was very small in comparison to the angle of boosting business that it presented in connection with the theatre that played the attraction.

In addition to this particular candy manufacturer there are innumerable others who would gladly jump at the opportunity of tying in with local theatres, providing the manager knows how to cultivate and encourage such cooperation.

This represents but one of the contributions from Mr. Ackery, and you will probably read more about him in a very interesting article pertaining to a manager's interview with an applicant for job as usher or cashier.

Thank you, Mr. Ackery, and let's hear from you real soon.

A Quartette Of Managers Who Know Their Public

The four representative theatre managers of London, Ontario, Canada, conceived another unusual way of gaining some free publicity in their local paper, "The London Advertiser," by individually addressing letters to the advertsing manager of the paper, commenting upon the fine theatrical section which that paper has been turning out.

WE REGRET—

Over twenty additional articles were received too late for use in this special edition.

Canadian members who fail to find their contribution included in this section must bear with us.

Succeeding issues will contain the articles not published here.

"Chick"

This is the type of a co-operative layout that speaks volumes for clever showmanship and executive ability. It not only encourages the paper to turn out a theatrical section that commands attention and therefore comin ands respect from the theatregoers and readers of the paper, but it also directs attention to both the theatre and theatrical section of the newspaper

We are grateful to Mr. Roddick, the manager of the Capitol Theatre, and one of our most active members, for forwarding us this full page, which was recently run by the Advertiser, and we want to extend our congratulations to Mr. Jackson, the manager of Loew's Theatre, Mr. Minhinnick of the Grand Opera House and Mr. Feinmann of the Patricia Theatre, all of that city for their lining up and making this tieup a success.

It would appear to us that Canada once again "shows the way" on an angle that every one of our members and readers could cash in on if they so desired.

A. K. Graburn Says:

Theatre Maintenance

By Mr. Ernie Smithies, Kingston, Ont.

HE general maintenance of a theatre is one of the most important links in its successful operation. It covers every department that has a direct bearing on the patron's comfort and the preservation of the company's property.

Cleaning

Many who sometimes hesitate to mingle with the crowds to be found in the average moving picture theatre or legitimate theatres, believing that in so doing their health may be jeopardized, are found as regular attendants if known that healthful conditions prevail in your theatre.

Then, too, the knowledge that the upholstery, fixtures, hangings, decorations, floors, carpets are not smudged and dusty to soil their wearing apparel is a factor that I believe is reflected in increased box office patronage.

It is a foregone conclusion that the cozy, clean and well-groomed the atre, even with a less attractive production, will draw more people to the ticket window than the dingy playhouse with the slightly better attraction.

The cleaning of the theatre calls for the eternal vigilance of the manager in making daily inspections to be sure that every nook and corner of the house has received the proper attention from those entrusted with this important duty.

Chairs and Seating

Next to cleanliness is comfort, and I do not know of anything that goes to spoil an evening's entertainment for a patron more than having to sit through a performance on a broken or uncomfortable seat bottom. It is a hard and fast rule that ushers chalk mark every broken, loose or otherwise imperiect seat when turning them up after the matinee and evening performance, and it is part of the janitor's duty to single out all seats so marked and have them repaired or replace them.

Boiler Room Operation and Coal Consumption

Here is one department where economy and efficiency must go hand in hand. The success of the heating plant is to a great degree in the hands of the fireman or engineer.

A competent man can save his salary by firing his boilers to a proper temperature with the minimum coal consumption and the intelligent care of his plant. I accompany the boiler inspector on each of his visits to the boiler room getting his opinions and suggestions as to its proper care. I am of the opinion that it is too much to expect a perfect operating steam plant if the man in charge is given other duties to perform that take him away from his boilers, for any length of time.

Roofs, Ventilators, Etc.

Regular visits to the roof for inspection often result in the finding that small repairs will protect the paint on the ceiling from rain and save the theatre the cost of an entire new roof covering. All metal work on the roof is subjected to hard weather conditions and a coat of waterproof paint each year protects them from rust and decay, at the same time improving their appearance in keeping with the rest of the theatre.

Electrical Equipment

Good lighting can be made one of the greatest assets of any theatre. That has been proved time and time again. A change of the exterior lighting and auditorium lighting has many times turned transient into steady, continuous patronage. Wherever lighting is used inside and out, it should play a definite part in increasing the attractiveness and earning power of the theatre. Main and Sub Main switches should be nspected weekly by house electrician for loose connections, heated terminals and badly fitting fuses. Keeping these switches in good order protects us from uneven line voltage and loss of power from leakage and corrosion.

Electric motors are cleaned and oiled regularly and special attention given to keep them in perfect condition and free from unusual wear.

Emergency lighting is tested before every performance and the storage batteries recharged every two weeks.

A report on all electrical equipment in the operating room is received weekly, any new parts required, and suggestions for the continuance of 100 per cent projection efficiency.

All lamps are kept under lock and key and no replacements are given unless accompanied by dead lamp.

Fire Prevention Equipment

Each fire that starts during a theatre performance represents a potential panic. Even a blaze, which would be of minor significance, may be sufficient to change a well behaved audience into a struggling mob. On this account great care and attention is given the keeping up-to-date and the effectiveness of fire equipment. Panic bolts on all doors are tried out before every performance by ushers in charge of that particular exit.

Doors and display frames are revarnished periodically to keep them attractive and to preserve them against the wear and tear they are subjected to. Woodwork and walls in rest rooms and toilets are repainted twice a year to keep that fresh and sanitary appearance.

Pay attention to your theatre, make it honey, agreeable and comfortable for your patrons. Have pleasing lighting, comfortable seats, the last word in projection, cleanliness and good ventilation and you need not worry if on a certain night you have a bad picture.

Your patrons will realize that it is not your fault, but poor seating, lack of comfort, and lack of other things which you are able to control and possible for you to give your attention at all times, will not be accepted by them at any time, with the feeling that you are doing your best.

The Mailing List

The majority of new patrons, especially in Kitchener, are people from outlying districts, who, reading so much about the talkies, are eager to see and hear them. They come and are agreeably surprised at the new entertainment.

Every usher and doorman is provided with cards as per attached samples.

They must be on the alert at all times to decide who to give these cards to.

For instance a party may come up and ask "Can you tell me what time the last car is to Gait." Here is a ready made mailing list patron. He immediately gives them the schedule of car service, which he is always provided with and is kept posted as to any change in the time schedule.

The doorman is another employee who must always be on the alert torender service to the many theatre patrons of any theatre. A person entering the theatre with parcels. Her first words to the party on taking his ticket from him is "We would be pleased to check your parcels." Another outlet for your mailing list. A good doorman knows the majority of regular city patrons, and uses his judgment as to whether to give them a card or not.

Daily we receive phone calls from rural towns asking what our current program is. We give them the information and then ask if we can include them on our mailing list. Another customer. Also all telephone operators in nearby towns and villages are kept posted weekly of the attractions at the Capitol. The cost of this is a pass for two weekly for the service rendered by the operators.

We also have a slide that appears at every program which reads:

OUT OF TOWN PATRONS

We would be delighted to include you on our MAILING LIST

This gives you playing dates of all attractions playing this theatre. Just Give Your Name and Address to Any Employee.

Also in all our ads in Weekly outside papers we have a notation regarding our Mailing list.

We have found our Mailing List the best medium for getting new business outside of the city, and it is a service that is appreciated by many people, insofar as we receive (Concluded on next page) letters asking to be included on the List.

At the present time we have over 350 names on this list, and can safely say that 75 per cent of these are patrons that have become regular customers through the medium of the mail.

C. W. Botsford Is Headed For Big Goal In Show-Game

Here is one of the "late" contributions which almost failed to get into this Special Canadian Section, but, in spite of being laid up at home with a severe cold, your Chairman managed to dictate the story over the telephone to Club headquarters where it was immediately rushed to the press.

It's about C. W. Botsford, live-wire manager of the Grand Theatre 'way up in Sudbury, Ont., and if by any chance you think your town is a little cold in the winter, just pay "C. W." a little visit 'long about January and then you will think your home town is around the Equator. Hey, hey.

You may all recall the last story on these pages about Botsford and how we told you some of his original slants on newspaper publicity which clearly demonstrated how thoroughly familiar he happens to be on this particular subject. He has learned, long, long ago, that getting in right with the local newspaper editor means getting real breaks in the paper, not only in free readers and publicity, but even in getting the proper set-up of his fine looking ads.

With this article we want you to see a special section of his campaign on "On With The Show." Please note the lay-out of his ad, as well as the readers and advance teaser ad, all combining to make the Grand the featured attraction on this page.

In connection with this particular page, "C. W." was agreeably surprised to receive a letter from the Blaine -Thompson Co. of New York complimenting him on his ability to handle publicity and advertising. Maybe if

YOU will study the ad closely you will find many of the reasons why he was singled out for such special attention from the B-T outfit.

We should hate to close this story about Botsford without quoting one little portion of his letter which said:

"JUDGING FROM ALL REPORTS THE 'CLUB'

Try This One!

When "The Girl in the Glass Cage" played the Capitol Theatre, Newton, Iowa, Manager G. P. Hundling arranged a unique and highly imaginative exploitation stunt that was the talk of the town.

During the showing of this picture he engaged a local girl to take the place of his regular cashier. The local girl worked in the box office between the hours of 7 to 9. She was masked and a free admission was offered to anyone who identified the masked "girl in the glass cage."

The stunt was publicized in newspaper ads and on the screen.

Lew Carroll Lost No Time In Starting Things Rolling

In spite of the many angles that he has to get accustomed to and the many other difficulties that handicap a new man, going into a new job in a new town, Lew Carroll is certainly hitting his stride at the Park Theatre, Reading, Penna.

One of the first pictures that he started off on was "Flight" and he planned a campaign before the picture opened which certainly let the natives know that there was a picture playing at the Park Theatre known as "Flight."

However, the important point is that he played to such business that the bosses were smiling all over the place. Good work, Lew, we know that you can do it.

Part of his campaign consisted of fifty taxicabs with inserts in the spare tire, which ran for a week before the opening date and only cost him a few passes.

He then tied up with the flying field which included two hours of flying over the city the day before and on the opening date. Heralds were distributed with passes in Park Theatre envelopes and naturally all of these details created a lot of interest in both the picture and the theatre. He also succeeded in promoting a complete airplane motor in the lobby of the theatre with motors, propellers, etc., for a total cost of $30 plus an acknowledgment in the program. All of this lent the proper atmosphere to a picture of this kind.

We are showing you in a photograph, how the front of the theatre was fixed up and we would call your attention to the many airplane parts that are set in front of the theatre as well as the automobile which was built to resemble an airplane, with beaver board and proper copy to attract the attention of the theatregoers.

There were so many angles to Lew's campaign that helped make it successful, that we don't dare go into all of them in detail as it would take up far too much space and we are rather short of that commodity at this particular moment, with the inrush of correspondence at CLUB headquarters. However, we would sum up the entire campaign by saying that the success of the run of the picture is ample testimony that Lew's efforts did not go for nothing. We wouldn't be surprised that he shortly will make a "rep" for himself in this peppy theatrical city, and, knowing the rest of the gang out there in Reading, we are sure that he has to step some to keep abreast of that crowd.

Let's hear some more from you, Lew, and be sure to snap a photo now and then, as we rather like to use photographs in describing our different members' stories. So long, and best regards to the boys in Reading, Pa.

FRED PERRY, manager of the Capitol Theatre, Binghamton, N. Y., starts his CLUB membership off with a bang, and sends in a publicity stunt with his application. That's the proper stuff, Perry. It is aggressive men like you that are the nucleus of our CLUB. Now that you've made the start keep up the good work, and continue to let us know what you are doing up there in Binghamton.

-Weor Your Club Pin ! !-

EDWARD J. MOONEY has been managing the Empress Theatre in a suburb of Philadelphia, Pa., but we know we shall hear many more interesting things about him in the immediate future. How about it, Ed? You promised to pass on a lot of good tips to your brother members the last time you were here.

----Weor Your Club Pin ! !--

EDWARD STOFFER, the manager of the Biltmore, Theatre, Brooklyn, N. Y. Neighborhood house activities have always constituted an important feature on the CLUB pages, and therefore any contribution that Stoffer would make, to pass on some valuable hints, would be more than appreciated. You might include your photograph with your next letter, Ed., it would sure be appreciated.

—- Wear Your Club Pin!!----

GEORGE P. SHUTE is assistant to Bill Levey, at the Beacon Theatre. Port Washington, N. Y., and under such an able chief, he should become a mighty fine showman. We would like to see some of his recent doings. How about it, George?

-Wear Your Club Pin ! !-

W. R. GINGELL manages the Bethesda Theatre in Bethesda, Md., and you may recall that we recently published a little story about his activities. However, we are not satisfied with just such a start and we would like to count this new member in as one of our regular active contributors. We will certainly look forward to hearing about his future stunts.

H. W. FICKEN manages the Garden Theatre, in Southampton, L. I., and, having heard so much about him by word of mouth praise, we would now appreciate some sign of his membership activity in the ROUND TABLE CLUB. Your own photograph and a few details in a brief letter would provide us with enough material to pass on to the other members. How about it, Ticken?

"Constance Bennett delightful — Edmund Lowe grand! A dandy talkie" say Reviewers

THIS THING

And still they come from

SCORES AT ROXY

Week of December 13

"Here's a dandy talkie treatment of Edwin Burke's sophisticated play which caused considerable stir around Broadway last season Constance Bennett, quite delightful in her comeback role (her first talkie—and her voice is grand) plays the young wife. Edmund Lowe—must we say he's simply grand!—is the young husband."

Irene Thirer in N. Y. Daily News

"In the present picture she (Constance Bennett) appears as an actress of unusual ability, thoroughly charming and possessed of a voice more appealing than most thus far heard The film should prove a better than usual attraction. The audience enjoyed it thoroughly."

Regina Crewe in N. Y. American

"Miss Bennett acquits herself exceedingly well in the lookand-listens. To her charm and poise is added the attraction of an effectively low voice and an aptitude for getting over her lines very naturally It's a diverting piece, neatly directed by Paul Stein."

Rose Pelswick in N. Y. Evening Journal

"The attractive Constance Bennett does remarkably well as the wife who is finally conquered by 'this thing called love,' and Edmund Lowe gives a creditable performance as Robert Collings."

N. Y. Telegram

"'This Thing Called Love,' from the stage play by Edwin Burke, lends itself admirably to the talking screen, and it is superbly done by a very good cast headed by Edmund Lowe and Constance Bennett It evokes countless chuckles, particularly on the subject of marriage ... She (Constance Bennett) is a better actress today than she was before her retirement."

IN COMPANY THAT COUNTS

N the inside, the picture fraternity concerns itself too exclusively with the manufacture and sale of entertainment. If you ask the fellow who thinks as he runs what relation this business holds with affairs outside its own borders, more likely than not he will look vague and talk about the stock market.

It is a strange anomaly that the man whose trade is motion pictures is the last to understand what opportunity is his to place this industry among the economic forefront of factors that fashion the course of the nation. It is nevertheless true that this business of studios and theatres is constantly playing a far more significant part in the American commercial whirligig.

The Triumvirate Of Power

It seems to us that this industry to be broad-gauged and broad-visioned must further extend its facilities and its resources outside of its own confines if it is as it must—capture the dignity, the prestige and the importance which it rates as an undeniable factor in moulding and influencing business opinion.

Yesterday came a significant indication that this can be done. Roy Dickinson, associate editor of "Printers' Ink," keen observer and student of American industry and a recognized authority in all circles where advertising is discussed, included motion pictures in an exclusive and all-powerful category when he said:

"Advertising, the motion picture and the press have had more to do with raising the living standard of millions of people than any other forces. By making people dissatisfied with the old and the out-of-date and constantly reiterating the fact that the masses were entitled to a better standard of life, they have held up goals of desire and bid them run for them.

"It has been said that every foot of American film exported has been worth a dollar to the manufacturers of American products. By holding up good-looking homes, well-equipped and with labor-saving devices everywhere, American motion picture producers, like the American advertisers, have made the masses of Europe and the rest of the world dissatisfied with many of their archaic and outworn discomforts."

Further, Dickinson talking about the committee of twenty-one or the new business cabinet of America, formed to keep industry moving at an accelerated speed, believes this:

"Remembering the saying that one inch added to the shirts of the Chinese would keep the textile mills of America working night and day, I suggest that they (the committee) call into consultation some of the best brains among the motion picture producers, the advertising agents and the press. * * * Let them sell to the world the high-wage doctrine of America with its dependent high-purchasing power, its strivings for something better all the time.

"The press of America, the motion picture, advertising—three powers in which this country is unquestionably pre-eminent—can be used from here on to help raise the aspirations and the living standards of millions of toiling masses and quicken the economic pulse of the world."

It looks to us like a job for Will H. Hays. For sweeping movements such as this was he engaged by the leaders of motion pictures to represent the industry. Apparently there may be nothing that directly concerns production and box-office grosses, but the goodwill that might thus be engendered with official Washington, with bankers and with the basic industries of the nation eventually would reflect itself.

What Might Have Been

If the industrial leaders of this country had long since been made to realize how vitally motion pictures speed their efforts in world markets, not a single piece of adverse film legislation, whether Federal or state, would have a chance, for instance. The Federal Government would view this business less in the light of a sharpshooter's paradise and more in the light of an honest business.

And motion pictures, long since, would have been lifted into the place they rightfully should occupy as a basic American industry, recognized, respected and sought after.

KANN

An Insider's Outlook

TUST a few things about which we should like to know:

It it is really a fact that one of our big, strong, silent executives is scheduled to step down from his throne in about six months and devote his time—all of it—to affairs outside of the picture business? Never mind the name. The company, however, is plenty important.

Whether or not one of the Class A production chiefs out Hollywood way will find himself at the head of another large studio shortly. And somewhat against his liking at that?

And if yet another headline name whose forte is production is to spend all or his most of his time in New York in the future despite the fact that he thinks California sunshine is swell?

Why a crackerjack, high and snooty talker like "The Awful Truth" with Ina Claire, one of Broadway's pets, failed to make the Big Street? Paramount was dickering, then played it in Toledo where the picture nosedived. Thereupon, the New York booking crashed. That's showmanship—the kind this naive young man doesn't get.

What theatre operator—big fellow, too—is about to step into the largest shoes he has ever occupied in this crazy-quilt business?

Why Paramount is barraging newspapers with such persistent, optimistic reports on increased earnings? It's been almost a one-a-day habit for several weeks now.

"Storm Over Asia"

The picture that Berlin went mad about some months ago. It's Russian, propagandic and stark. Yet, Pudowkin, who directed, has given to it a suspense, notably in the last half, that is compelling.

The story thread concerns the revolt of the Mongol tribes on the Asiatic steppes against the Russian military machine. The ultimate leader in the revolt is a Mongolian, an untrained actor, who gives a performance both primitive and consumulate. Primitive because it is shorn of what are accepted as the usual acting standards and consummate because it is thorough, real and moving. Yet, nobody in America knows the man's name.

"Storm Over Asia" is not popular en-

DURING the awful recent awful stock recession, Saks Fifth Ave.'s credit department called a young lady well known to the picture business on the telephone and began discussing her account.

Starr And Morris

When the Warners were in one tough spot, it was Herman Starr who subwayed to Wall Street and dug up the essential coin. Today Starr is president of First National and a director of W. B.

Sam Morris, long with Selznick and for years with Warners, battled his way through sales resistance when the Warners weren't making 'em like "The Show of Shows" and "General Crack." Today he sports the title of vice-president.

And now another change. Starr is to devote his time to development of the formidable music business which Harry, Abe and Jack have annexed. Carries on as president of F. N.—it's a pleasant title to have—but it happens to be Sam Morris who will do the work.

Ladder climbing!

Knapp And Smut

In Philadelphia this week, Harry L. Knapp, Pennsylvania censor, told a film gathering that unless producers cut out smut, the public will compel them. Knapp being a censor, this forum is prone to disagree with him. Largely a matter of general principle. But here Knapp has sounded a note which is true and truth will not down.

Producers are beating in the bushes of heap big trouble. You cannot continue to offend the tastes of your customers and expect to get away with it. Old-fashioned as we are, it is insisted that there remains slightly more than a handful of people who resent having obvious and coarse comedy jamming the wind pipe. It's commercial. It makes money. It clicks. Granted and more, but for the long haul, what? You know the answer.

If supreme authority in exhibitor organization matters is vested in a man outside the industry. Allied, it is learned, is ready for a merger with any other theatre body.

One result of the secret 5-5-5 meetings held in New York with Allied, M.P.T.O.A. and distributor representatives present was the setting down in writing of the Allied proposals for a common get-together. The organization outlined what it considered unfair and burdensome and how, in its opinion, the difficulties could be overcome. The suggestions are to be discussed at a meeting to be held after the holidays, probably in New York.

For instance, Allied is in favor of voluntary arbitration providing either for a specific agreement to arbitrate individual cases or for a blanket agreement between the exhibitor and the Film Board. However, if the exhibitor so elects that board would be composed of one exhibitor, one distributor and one arbitrator selected from a list of five to be named by the American

Drastic Action Due Momentarily by Fox "A" Group

With Fox Film "A" hammered on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange from 35 on Wednesday to 251/4 on Thursday, the protective committee representing stockholders of that class of non-voting stock are preparing for drastic action to safeguard what they describe as their rights.

Exactly what method will be pursued is not stated, but how this group feels about the management of Fox Film and Fox Theatres under the trusteeship agreement is voiced by

Stanley M. Lazarus, counsel for the Class A stockholders, who states:

"We will take steps to prevent the stock of Loew's, Inc., from going into any new holding company and any attempt to exchange securities of the proposed new holding company for Fox A stock which might lessen or weaken the position of the Class A stockholders as now constituted."

It is reported persistently that the contemplated action, undescribed as to detail, may crystallize immediately and that it may place an entirely different complexion on the present complex situation.

Fox Film "A" sold above 105 this year. In Thursday's trading, the issue fell as low as 23, a new all-time bottom. Several Wall Street circles saw in the bearish movement a retaliatory move in a pool operation influenced by the "B" stockholders.

Reported and Promptly Denied RCA Will Withdraw from Equipment Field

W. E. Lead In Theatre Installations Said Te Be Real Reason— RCA Official Says Expansion Move Is On

The next few months will probably see RCA completely out of the sound equipment field and the interest of the big electric company in this field confined to Radio-Keith-Orpheum and RKO Pictures, according to inside reports. Sydney Abel, general sales manager, for Photophone, however, denies the story flatly.

"On the contrary," he said yesterday, "we are going ahead stronger than ever before. The report is erroneous, impossible. As a matter of fact, we will shortly be in a position to battle the

The reasons of RCA's reported decision to abandon manufacture of sound reproducers go back to the early days of sound. In 1927 and 1928 when the industry went mad on talkers, so the story goes, RCA officials held back on the premise that there was no need to hurry. By the time the company was said to be ready, Western Electric had already made rapid strides both in point of actual theatre installations and with licensed producers committed to use its recording and reproducing systems.

In addition, its plants had been geared to a pitch where it could handle the situation ereated by a sudden and revolutionary movement which turned a $1,500,000,000 industry completely upside down. As a result. RCA installations in worthwhile spots were limited.

Immediate action by Western Electric in the early stages resulted in licenses with production-distribution interests which now control somewhere between 65 and 70 per cent of the entire buying power in exhibition.

With the big houses already wired and a small percentage with Photophone, RCA powers have concluded, it is understood, that further dallying in the equipment field was fruitless.

And They Learned About Pictures From Providence

Providence. — The producer who would cater to the tastes of his public must inject plenty of hearbreak, hokum and happiness into his product, say fans of Providence who recently tilted in an essay contest sponsored by Loew's State and "The Most of the letters showed a keen appreciation of the technique of picture making. Several of the entrants bemoaned the fact that real drama is being given the go-by for lavish revues and musical extravaganzas. It was their opinion that the short features take care of these novelties.

Imogene M. Hall of Providence, the winner, summed up the requisites for a good picture in this fashion:

"An interest sufficiently gripping to make the audience lose itself in the performance; beauty of form, action and color; clean humor and an educational or uplifting influence so disgoised that it will not be taken as preachment."

Open In N. Y. Next Week

A big week for New York is in store, On Sunday, "Devil May Care" replaces "The Hollywood Revne" at the Astor at $2 top. On Monday, Marilyn Miller's first talker, "Sally" premieres at the Winter Garden, replacing "The Show of Shows. That same night, the Film Bureau opens its art cinema on 151 E. 50th St. On Christmas Eve, the Beacon, at Broadway and 75th St., throws open its doors under Warner auspiees with "Tiger Rose" as its initial attraction, and the next day, "Seven Keys to Baldplate," Richard Dix' first talker for R-K-O, succeeds "Rio Rita" at the Earl Carroll.

United Picks "DuBarry" For Next Talmadge-Taylor Film

Hollywood,-"Du Barry" will reach the screen a third time, serving as the next vehicle for Norma Talmadge, under Sam Taylor's new producer-director contract with United Artists. Taylor is due to arrive here today, from a vacation trip to New York.

"Du Barry" was released as "Passion" by First National in 1920, while Fox produced the Belasco version in 1917.

Sound Patents In Public Domain Is W. E. Aim As Means To Avoid Suits

"River luu" Looks Big

Hobart Henley seems to have knocked off his second hit in a row in his latest production, "The River Inn." It's a pip of an underworld story written by Ben Hecht, dealing with gangsters and rum-running into Chicago.

Two outstanding hits were registered: Charles Ruggles as the "souse" reporter for a Chicago daily who runs down the story and uncovers the rum-runners is a wow. This is his fourth characterization in as many pictures that has come through 100 per cent. His initial appearance on the screen in "The River Inn" brought a round of applause from a preview audience. The other hit is Jimmie Durante, of Clayton, Jackson and Duraute. Here is the logical Charlie Chaplin of the talking screen. He is a comic such as one stumbles on once io a decade.

In the cast also are Helen Morgan, Fred Kohler and Leo Donnelly. La Morgan sings a couple of numbers and puts them over in good shape, while Kohler has the role of the king pin rum-runner. He is every inch that. As entertainment, it is packed with thrilling melodrama, tense suspense and a full measure of laugh-pulling comedy. Congratulate Heoley and Paramount hoth on the strength of this sure-fire box-office hit.

No Worry Over Installation Supremacy Any Longer, But Company Moves To Avoid Possible Legal Tilts

With Western Electric dominating the sound installation field throughout the world, the company is understood taking steps to forestall possible litigation by attempting to prove that there are no exclusive patents and that many patents considered until now to be basic, have long been in public domain.

To date, Western Electric has equipped 3.147 theatres in the United States and

Warners To Invade More Coast Towns

Los Angeles. - Warners, aggressively primed for their coast theatre expansion, are going through with a 4,500-seat house downtown. Estimated cost is $5,000,000. Beverly Hills, Santa Monica, Huntington Park and San Pedro are new towns into which the invasion will reach. The plan is aimed directly at Fox West Coast Theatres.

Moe Silver, as noted, will run the circuit, which will be known as Warner Bros. Pacific States Theatres.

Censor Urges Trade To Throw Out Smut

Philadelphia.—Harry L. Knapp, member of the Pennsylvania censor board, told 100 film men this week that unless producers eliminate the use of smut in dialogue pictures the public will force them to do so.

He spoke at a dinner tendered Michael Landau by the Film Board of Trade on occasion of the former's resignation as Philadelphia exchange manager for Paramount to become huver for the Pell circuit in York.

Chaney Soon To Go Talker: Niblo To Direct Picture

948 abroad. With this formidable lead over all competitors, the company now feels its position is secure insofar as installa-tions are concerned. Therefore, it is no longer worrying about new reproducers that may reach the market, but is shaping plans to offset legal entanglements over pat-

The inside story has it that if Western Electric can demonstrate basic patents in sound are available to anyhody who may care to use them, the legal structures upon which possible actions against the company may be based will fall of their own weight.

Pioneers Retained

The first step in this plan is a deal made with Eugene A. Lauste and Jean A. Le Roy.

Both men, well advanced in years, have been given retainers by Bell Telephone Laboratories, a subsidiary of Western Electrie under terms of which all patents, models and background data in their possession pass into the possession of Bell.

Lauste's work in sound dates back to 1905. In 1906 he obtained a British patent covering a method for synchronous recording-perhaps the earliest to be properly filed. He developed a wide film many years ago but it was discarded because projectors then in use were geared for the 35 mm. film. While Le Roy confined his activities to silent films and developed what is credited with having been the first projector, he aided Lauste in some of the latter's sound film experiments.

Museum Planned As Well

It is believed that whatever patents both men filed on their own behalf are now in public domain, but the significance of their affiliation with Western Electric rests in the fact that their pioneering experiences and their detailed knowledge of the early development of sound are held to be of inestimable value in establishing priority of patent claims in the event litigation makes such testimony necessary.

Officially, Bell Telephone Laboratories refers to the Lanste-Le Roy deal as follows:

"Bell Telephone Laboratories has purchased for its historical museum some of the earliest apparatus in the sound picture art. The apparatus was that developed by Eugene A. Lauste and applied by him to the synchronous recording of sound and seene on motion picture film, first in England and later in the United States. The first demonstration of this apparatus in the United States was conducted in conjunction with Jean A. LeRoy an old friend and himself the inventor of the first motion picture projection machine. These two pioneers in the motion picture arts, both sileut and with sound, have heen relatined by the Laboratories to guide and assist the preparation of their apparatus for historical record.

American Companies Violating Quota Law in England Face Prosecution

British Gov't Checking On Offenders Now And Prepares For Legal 'Action—One U. K. Distributor Convicted

London (By Wireless).—The British Government, speaking through the Board of Trade, is adopting a "no fooling" attitude on the Quota Act. That attitude is to be reflected in terms of definite action with prosecution to be launched against film companies which have not complied with the letter of the statute. This applies to British companies and domestic subsidiaries of American organizations as well.

Film Booking Offices, Ltd. was convicted yesterday. Other actions are to follow.

Designed to rehabilitate British production, the Cinemograph Films Act became effective on English distributors April 1, 1928 from which date they were compelled by law to release 71½ per cent British filmson their programs on a rising scale which, by the end of the tenth quota year or 1938 will total 20 per cent.

F.B.O. was fined $375. The company had only 6.1 per cent instead of 7.5 per cent of British films in its exhibition of tilms during the year. The issue hinged around the question whether or not a pirture made with Canadian money in Hollywood was a quota film. The Government held it was not. F.B.O. then replaced it with an American picture, claiming a British film was not available as a substitute.

The quota, condoned and praised alike in various sections of the British trade, has caused much disturbance and made it necessary, among other steps, for American companies operating in England to arrange for quota pictures in order to avoid conflict with the law. In most instances, such arrangements took the form of financing British producers. The quota is binding upon exhibitors as well, but the sliding scale there begins at five per cent and reaches 20 per cent by 1938.

U. K. Distributors' Ass'n Faces Split

London (By Wireless).—The Kinematograph Renters' Society is headed for trouble. This organization in which is banded together the distributing interests in the British field, has at various times been a storm petrel in the industry.

Gaumont British and its subsidiaries, including Ideal, and W. and F. Film Service have resigned and a definite split in the ranks of the K.R.S. is held to be inevi'able. The Gaumont move has created a sensation loop.

Double Features Pass In Germany

Berlin.—General decrease in importations and limited output of domestic producers has resulted in elimination of the double-feature policy in practically all spots.

Finds Enrope Veering To Talkers In Own Tongnes

The demand for native-language talkers is growing in Europe and the market for English talkers diminishing in proportion, a cabled survey of Europe published in the "New York Times" indicates.

"Generally speaking," the article declares, "American talking tibus, especially those in which singing and dancing form a large part of the entertainment, are continuing to play to crowded houses in a dozen European countries, but as soon as the novelty of this new form of screen diversion wears off, agitation for talking films in the language of the country will become very marked.

Formation of the Johns-Manyille Sales Corp. at Delaware marks the entrance of the company into the foreign field.

Tipless Paris?

Paris.—One form of Americanization well liked in old Paree is the theatre usher who refuses a tip for a seat.

Paris now has two picture houses where tips are forbidden and politeness proscribed.

French people find it funny, but agreeable.

Europe Needs Own Language Product

London.—Statements by American producers announcing they would produce foreign versions of important features is received favorably at most European film renters, which are in sore need of talking pictures spoken in untive tongues.

Western Electric continues in the lead of American equipment manufacturers, despite extremely complex governmental rules and regulations and general engineering obstacles. It is predicted the company will have close to 200 actual installations on the t'ontinent by New Year's, with only two countries, Jugoslavia and Bulgaria, in the Balkans without W. E. equipment at present.

Pathe-Natan Starts All-Sound Newsreel

Paris.—The first of a fleet of recording trucks is already taking shots for the new Pathe-Natan sound newsreel, scheduled to appear shortly.

W. E. Claims Two More Points In Foreign Battle

Favorable decisions in foreign patent litigation have been scored in Zurich and London, where German interests sought to interfere with the showing of sound product over Western Electric equipment, the latter states. The Swiss court has dismissed the request for an injunction against the Uapitol, at Zurich, on the use of Western Electric equipment and suspended all proceedings until an action brought by W. E. to invalidate the opposing patents involved, can be heard on its merits.

A British court refused to grant a petition under by German interests to inspect Western Electric equipment, against which patent infringement is claimed, at the Empire, London.

Seat M'f'rs Busy On Code Of Ethics

(Washington Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Washington .- Unfair methods of competition in the sale of seats to theatres and to other users of chairs were discussed yesterday by representatives of the seating industry meeting with officials of the Federal Trade Commission for the purpose of formulating a code of ethics.

Request for a Trade Practice Conference was made of the commission by the industry some time ago, following a discussion of the purposes of such a meeting and the advantages of having a definitely drawn code to guide the industry. Resolutions setting forth the practices which must not he adopted was submitted. Resolutions adopted at the meeting will he studied by the commission which then will classify them and give its approval of those which are to become the rules of conduct for the trade.

Warners and Fox laboratories in the East have lined up with Craft, Empire, Komp, DuArt, Metex, Filmlab, Film Pioneers, Photocolor, Malcolin, Cinelab and Superlab, in the association, which is the nucleus of a national unit. Consolidated is expected to join sometime next week, closely followed by Paramount and H.E.R., giving the entire Metropolitan "lah" field representation.

Officers are slated for election at the monthly meeting on Jan. 14. Arthur Gottlieb, DuArt, is serving as temporary chairman, with Richard Feidler, Empire, temporary treasurer, and S. L. Bargman, formerly with Hedwig, secretary.

It is intended to invite authorities in the chemical and technical fields to lecture at the meetings.

Minneapolis Ordinance May Block Exchange Building

Minneapolis.—A new four story exchange building which, because of its height, will violate the city ordinance, is the latest project here. The exchange, if a permit can be obtained or a new ruling secured, will be built on First Ave. North, near Western Ave., to house Warner, First National and Vitaphone.

The ordinance may throw a monkey wrench into the plans. It prohibits any building housing films to be more than one story in height. The Paramount building which is two stories high was erected before the decree was passed.

More Westerns Slated For Paramount's '30 Line-Up

(Hollywood Bureou, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood-Paramount has decided to add several productions with a Western setting to next year's schedule. In addition to a series of Zane Grey Westerns, starring Gary Cooper, the company plans a special to star Richard Arlen. Bartlett Cormack is writing story and dialogue, with Otto Brower and Edwin Knof assigned to direct.

Warners To Go Ahead With Plans For Jersey House

Ridgewood, N. J.-Approval of plans for a proposed theatre to be built by Warner-Fabian has been given by the local real estate board and actual construction date is set for next month.

Fox And Warners Get Until Jan. 6 To Answer Gov't Suits

Attorneys for Fox and Warners who have been cited by the Government in conspiracy actions, have until January 6 to file their answers. The suits filed several weeks ago called for replies to the complaints within twenty days, but lawyers for the defendant companies asked and secured an extension.

The court records in the Federal court for the Southern District of New York carry an interesting slant. The praccipe subpoena was not served on William Fox, but on Mrs. William Fox for her husband who is president of Fox Theatres and Fox Film Corp.

The Government charges the Fox companies and Fox personally have run contrary to the law in acquiring control of Loew's, Inc. The Warners are similarly charged in connection with their control of First National.

148 Of Iowa's 300 Houses Are Equipped For Sound

Des Moines.-One hundred forty-eight of the 300 houses served by Universal in Iowa are now equipped for sound, states Al Yarowsky, assistant manager of that office. This survey indicates that practically all the rest are lined up for sound equipment or are closing.

Fiddlers and Other Music Hounds Busy in St. Louis

St. Louis.—Violins are fiddling and cornets are tooting in St. Louis again. Pit orchestras are back in the pit and exhibitors and musicians talk to each other once again. Loew's State is the only big house in the city without an orchestra. Mechanical music holds forth there completely.

Singer Gets Razzing

"Get The Hook" used to he the cry at amateur nights many years ago, but the term will prohably be resurrected by film patrons to voice their disapproval of various sound short reels.

A Pacific coast theatre presented a famous musical comedy and vaudeville headliner in a sound short one evening last week. The star sang one number, and began the second one. His name meant nothing to the audience-they started giving the picture plenty of "razz"; with the theatre manager pulling the picture off immediately.

1911 he came to the United States and formed an association with LeRoy who had been a contributor to the development of silent pictures. Working together in LeRoy's machine shop on Third Ave., near 13th St, they produced, in 1911, a synchronous film record of motion picture and sound. Shortly after Lauste returned to England and the association was interrupted to he taken up again in their later years when Lauste returned to America to live in Bloomfield.

"The purchase of this apparatus by Bell Telephone Laboratories which maintains a very complete museum of the electrical arts of communication with early apparatus or replicas of the work of Morse, Bell, Gray, Blake, and Berliner, insures for posterity a fuller record of the now widespread commercial art of sound pictures. It will also preserve for posterity the records of two early inventors whose contributions might otherwise have been lost sight of in the rapid development and commercial utilization of today."

Merritt Crawford is responsible for the Merritt Crawford is responsible for the entire development. For some time now be had been endeavoring to interest influential film men in the cases of the two pioneers who were practically destitute until the arrangement with Bell was finally made. Crawford is understood to have appeared before the Paramount board of directors on their behalf and was turned down cold. He then wrote a letter to the editor of "The Nation" outlining what Lauste and Le Roy had done and at the same time challenged the claims advanced for Thomas A. Edison that the latter was the father of motion pictures. Terry Ramsaye, author of "A Million and One Nights" refuted Crawford's stand and there ensued a long tussle in correspondence, the substance of which appeared in Motion Picture News. Crawford was then successful in interesting Western Electric with the result that Lauste and Le Roy are now out of financial difficulties. Crawford has been engaged by Western Electric to do sound re-

Television Placing Electrics At Cross-Roads Of New Development

Television Near?

Is television slated to become the next important development in the industry, following closely upon the heels of sound, color and wide-films?

Leaders are giving serious thought to its development. In some circles, it is believed, television and wide films will enter the field hand in hand. In others, the prediction is made that its important relative value to the industry will be created over-night, in much the same manner as sound.

Sees Difficulty In Fitting Television

Washington. — Realignment of assignments of broadcasting stations to eliminate interference, assignment of frequencies for general communication purposes, and provision of a proper regulatory basis for rapid development of radio industries, in which television, it is predicted, will play an important part, constituted the principal efforts of the Federal Radio Commission in 1929. Congress was thus informed in the annual report of the board.

Television and visual broadcasting present one of the future problems of radio regulation, the commission states. Even in its present experimental stage, says the report, television requires frequency bands at least 100 kilocycles in width, or 10 times the width of the broadcasting channel.

"Some scientists estimate that a band in excess of 1,000 kilocycles in width may be necessary to give satisfactory detail in a moving picture transmitted by radio. Very serious problems will soon confront the commission if frequency bands are to be made available for regular television convices."

Coast Unit Launches New Television Set

Los Angeles.—Perfection of a new radio television instrument said to be adaptable to home use at a price well within the purchasing power of the average radio fan is announced by W. W. Charles, president of Kemper Radio Corp.

Charles said his company had received its license to manufacture the instruments and distribute them nationally. Manufacture is to begin immediately, while plans to broadcast the sound pictures are being considered.

Philo T. Farnsworth of Provo, Utah, is the inventor.

"The set is small, 12 by 10 inches," Charles said, "and reproduces pictures in natural colors. It has been successfully demonstrated to be practical for commercial application in connection with radio for the home."

Sarnoff Tells Gov't Communications Committee That Sight Broadcasting Is Beckoning To The Industry

Washington.—Practical, commercial elevision is beckoning, David Sarnoff, executive vice-president of RCA has told the committee now investigating the advisability of establishing Federal control of radio.

"The radio art is now at the cross-roads of a new and perhaps far gretter development than broadcasting, studio, theatre, phonograph and other industrial electrical

Talker-Television, Jenkins' Latest

Talking television, which consists of ordinary radio broadcasting synchronized to films, transmitted by radio, will soon be offered as an adjunct to home form of entertainment.

A new television receiver soon to be shown the public is being demonstrated in the Jenkins laboratories in Jersey City. In the commercially made model for home use, the apparatus is housed in a cabinet. A tunnel-shaped opening in the front leads to a magnifying lens, behind which are the scanning disk and drum. The image, of the "lime half-tone" or shaded type, is large and bright, those who have seen it assert. It measured four inches on a side and was brilliant enough to be very clear in a room where a floor lamp was lit.

One feature of the demonstration is that an ordinary motion picture is run off. Heretofore, demonstrations have been either specially posed and recorded or "close-ups" of persons or objects before the scanner at the transmitter. While the system used by Jenkins is also adapted to direct and silhouette transmission, it now is also reported possible to see such "dramatic" episodes as a posse pursuing a man on horseback by television.

The company is operating three 5-kilowatt television transmitters, two of which are located at Washington, D. C., and operated on 100 and 139 metres, under the call letters W3XK. Their schedule at present is 8 to 9 P. M. daily, except Saturday and Sunday. The third transmitter, in Jersey City, is 2XCR, 107 metres. Its schedule is 3 to 5 and 8 to 10 P. M. daily, except Saturday and Sunday. It is planned to increase the hours when the receivers are put on the market. Sound accompaniment is sent out through the De Forest experimental station in Passaic, N. J., on 190 metres.

The programs at present consist of silhouettes, or shadowgraphs, presenting one-act plays and half-tone pictures bust size. It is planned to present plays in half-tone in the near future.

A hand of 100 kilocycles is permitted for television transmission by the Government. It is claimed it is possible to get a picture made up of almost 100 lines in this band. The present equipment is, however, earried ou on a band only forty kilocycles wide and produces a forty-eight-line picture.

phonograph and other industrial electrical devices at present employed in radio communications," Sarnoff said and added, "full provision must be made in proposed regulatory measures governing the field of radio communications.

"Again a new series of vastly complicated scientific, technical, industrial and service problems arise for solution in the radio industry. New channels of transmission must be provided in the air. Improved instrumentalities of transmission and reception must be created for the art. New services of entertainment and education must be established for this purpose," Sarnoff continued.

"At a time when the nation calls for industrial initiative, when our Government is properly using every effort to quicken and develop private enterprise, when large capital investment requires encouragement and security, and when a new art is knocking at our doors, an open road for radio development would help to maintain public confidence in the radio industry.

"Onerous legislation that would place the radio art in a straight-jacket, isolate it from fields and activities with which it has a natural kinship, and restrict its service possibilities, would retard the advance of the radio industry at the most vital moment of the development and defeat the very purpose which your committee is trying to accomplish."

Atlantic States All Set For Television Programs

Eastern New York, Eastern Pennsylvania and almost all of New Jersey are all set for synchronizing the receivers with Jenkins transmitters, it is reported. It is necessary only to plug in the receiver to the sixty-cycle A.C. lines and synchronous motors do the rest. New York City and Long Island are not yet included.

Favors Control

Washington.—"I am in full accord with what I understand to be the primary purpose of the hill now before the Federal Radio Communications control committee," David Sarnoff has declared to government legislators.

The RCA chief stated that the measure should control radio and communications "insofar as is practicable." He agrees "with the principle that the assignment of wave lengths should be in the regulatory powers of such a commission," and believes the new agency will work successfully until it commences to "restrict the progress of the communication arts."

Three Big B'way Grind Houses Hit Hard By Pre-Holiday Slump

The three big Broadway grind houses were the hardest hit last week by the pre-holiday slump. The Capitol with "The Song of Love" struck its lowest gross of the year with $48,777; the Roxy with "South Sea Rose" hit the lowest week but two, with $83,512, while at the Paramount, "Half Way to Heaven" did $66,200, there having been but nine weeks worse than that in 1929.

Strange to say the Strand with "The Gold Diggers of Broadway" in its first week played to $43,692 and was held over. In the extended runs with a grind policy "The Taming of the Shrew" in its second week got $41,200, giving the picture $121,-901 at the Rivoli in two and a half weeks. and Gloria Swanson in "The Trespasser" at the Rialto got $25,200 for her sixth week, giving her $253,000 on the engage-

"Skinner" Disappoints

"Skinner Steps Out" at the Colony played to $9,289 which was a disappointment and "The New Babylon" in its second week at the Cameo got $4,978.50.

The Warners have the lead among the extended runs in legitimate houses with "Show of Shows" at the Winter Garden doing $26,053 and "General Crack," the new Barrymore picture at Warner's getting $24,637 in its first week. "Disraeli" at the Central in its eleventh week played to $16,313 which is exceptional at the house. The four Warner houses, the Strand, Winter Garden, Warner's and Central, came through with $110,696.50 on the week.

"The Love Parade" at the Criterion fell off $5,000, going to $15,500 which is still very profitable at that house. "The Hollywood Revue" is now playing its final week, got $9,910, giving the picture a total of $317,803 on a seventeen weeks' run at the Astor. "Rio Rita" at the Carroll finshes this week after eleven weeks at that house. Last week's business was $9,743. "The Vugabond Lover" finished a three weeks run at the Globe with $6,117 after which the house changed to a popular-priced grind policy with "Dance Hall." "Condemned" at the Selwyn fell off to $10,500.

New Arrivals Next Week

"The Sky Hawk," which came in last week at the Gaiety got $5,220 in four days, while "Hunting Tigers in India" did a complete nosedive at the Cohan with less than $5,000 on the week.

"Sally" is next scheduled for the Winter Garden opening on Dec. 23. Richard Dix in "Seven Keys to Baldpate" opens at the Carroll Christmas and the Astor gets "Devil-May-Care" tomorrow.

Sound Films and Producer Tie-Ups Revive Music Publishing Business

Fox Music Unit, Red Star, Ready

The Red Star Music Publishing Co., new Fox subsidiary and the latest producer entry into the music field starts activities Jan. 6 with Pat Flaherty as general manager. The event will be well attended by music men and will be photographed in motion pictures, as per the usual procedure.

The staff will include Bill Jacobs, formerly of Irving Berlin, Inc., as director of sales; Jack McCoy, formerly with De Sylva, Brown & Henderson, professional manager; Jules Von Tilzer, assistant professional manager, and Lon Mooney, from Forster's, band and orchestra manager.

Headquarters at 729 7th Ave., consist of over 10,000 square feet of space, and will have nine piano rooms. A large reception room and an adequate professional staff will be included to accommodate the artists.

Cliff Friend is the latest song writer to sign up and has already left for Hollywood, where he will team up with Jimmy Monoco. Other song writers who now comprise the staff are Joe McCarthy, Johnny Burke, Harry Pease, Ed. G. Nelson, Dave Stamper, James Hanley, Byron Gay, Harlan Thompson, George Little, Troy Sanders, Dudley Nichols, Harry Stoddard, Marcy Klauber, Fred Strauss and Ed. Brady.

The opening catalogue will include songs from the Fox production "Happy Days."

"Battle Of Music" Impends

What has all the earmarks of a battle in music will take place Christmas Eve when the new Vincent Youmans score for "Hit The Deck" will be played almost simultaneously by Paul Whiteman on the Old Gold Hour, broadcasting from the Coast at 9:00 P. M. Eastern Standard Time over the Columbia chain, and by Leo Heisman on the RKO hour, broadcasting from New York over the NBC chain, at 10:00 P. M. Eastern Standard Time. Three of the songs will he "Keepin" Myself For Yon, ""Hallelujah" and "Sometimes I'm Happy." The picture will have its premiere at the RKO, Los Angeles, on Dec. 25.

Two Texas Managers Fined For "Blue Law" Violations

ordinary popular song to cope with, they claim. Old "Tin Pan Alley," with its song pluggers, act men and large professional departments, is rapidly becoming a thing of the past. The performer, who formerly was urged at the stage entrance by act men to sing certain songs, now heads straight for the offices of the publishers of picture song hits, thus reversing the old order.

"Not only does the music publisher benefit by the synchronization of his songs, but so does the exhibitor," states J. J. Robbins, president of Robbins Music Corp., an M-G-M affiliation. "The song, synchronized in a picture is a vital aid to the exhibitor, and he is quickly getting to realize that to book a picture containing real song hits, means to bolster up his box office returns. It is commonly known that the success of musical comedies and legitimate productions, depends entirely upon the songs, and this holds true in the case of the talking picture."

"Buddy" Morris, executive of M. Witmark & Sons, controlled by Warners, says.

"Realizing the mutual benefit derived from co-operation with exhibitors, a special accessories department was created, where posters, balloons and streamers, containing the names of hit songs, are sent the exhibitor, aiding materially in putting over his picture. Because of the large quantities of this special material bought by this department, the exhibitor is afforded an upto-date means of exploitation at a very nominal cost. We are teaching him what the song means to his box office."

"The picture song is one of the most interesting features of the 'talkies' and is here to stay. More and more do producers realize the value of good songs to a picture, and to this end Warner Bros. have already spent millions of dollars in order to obtain established eatalogues, and to sign up the best writers available. As for our own catalogue, we find that one hundred per cent of our outstanding hits are picture songs."

Several prominent publishers, including Irving Berlin, Inc., Sherman-Clay and Shapiro-Bernstein, are still independent but are publishing theme songs for various productions.

Smaller publishers profess not to be much alarmed over the situation and still feel that a good song will sell, but the preponderance of opinion is that the odds against the ordinary popular song are mounting higher and higher daily.

Sees Quality Product Maintaining U. S. Hold In Non-English Nations

"Dumping" Is Out And Talkers Must Be In Tongue Of Land They Reach, NEWS' Berlin Correspondent Says

Once the patent situation is cleared away, the American export business in non-English speaking markets will be developed and held along lines of quality, rather than quantity.

"Dumping" is out and the day for any one American company to send all of its output overseas is gone for all times.

This is the situation abroad as analyzed by Heinrich Fraenkel, German correspondent for Motion Picture News who is now in this country on a trip around the world during which he will survey picture world during which he will survey picture conditions.

"Whereas, in the old days of the silent picture, the big American companies used to spread through their world-wide distributing organizations, almost 100 per cent of their product regardless of particular suitability for particular markets, in the future it will be a case of careful selection of stories particularly suitable for German-speaking markets, for the French, for the Spanish, and maybe one or two for all of them, for the Spanish, and maybe one or two for all of them, Fraenkel states.

"These pictures, produced in separate versions and catering to individual markets, should easily re-imburse extra-production cost and inculentally serve to keep or increase, even in the age of talkies, that footing which the American industry has gained in the world's markets by building up an international distributing organization during the hey-day of the slent picture.

"Once the patent situation is settled, there seems to be every prospect for American production to regain continental markets at a regular source of revenue; the other barrier, the Inquistic one, certainly holding up no problems which would defy solution.

"As to this particular situation, I do not think that the scheme of super-imposing titles—giving the gist of the dialogue to foreign audiences—can claim more merit than that of a provisional compromise. Nor can I see any more than a temporary boon in the efforts to select or shape stories with a view to bi-lingual or even multi-lingual possibilities in order to avoid double versions. The new Jannings picture being made in Berlin where the bi-lingual element is introduced by the star being cast as a German teacher of English is one. Another is a big German production for which an immigration story has been selected in order to give all sorts of languages a chance of their own.

"This sort of thing may be quite interesting once in a while; in the long run, however, there is, of course, only one solution to the linguistic problem: produce as many

The situation in Germany is completely fogged by the patent mix-up between Western Electric and the Tobis-Klangfilm group, according to Fraenkel. But there is another factor which has left its impress on that market. In Fraenkel's own words, this is it:

"During November the German Exhibitor Associa-tion's delegates from all over the country were in con-ference about the sound sutuation. A resolution was passed which might seem incredible to anybody who is not aware of the present market situation in Central Europe.

"The gist of it is that it would be very unwise for exhibitors to be rushed into hasty decisions as to equipment; that it would be premature to think that the slent picture is dead and that talkers are here to stay for good.

"To anybody not knowing Germany and the particular circumstances prevalent at present, such attitude might seem so preposterous as to hardly warrant discussion.

tide might seem so preposterious as to hardly warrant discussion.

"Why is it that Germany and with her all the Central European markets—that this clever and industrious nation, well ahead and leading the world in so many branches of the industry, science and art, is something like two years behind the times, so far as the most modern and universally recognized form of entertainment is concerned? Why is it?

"It would be a negligible although obvious argument explain the position by linguistic harriers; for although most of the American talkers would, obviously, be lost to Continental markets for that reacout, there are German versions ready or in preparation, There would be considerably more, if it were not for the all important factor: the failure of German sound film leaders to come to an amicable and speedy settlement of the patent war and the interchangeability

ment of the patent war and the interchangeability problem involved.

"Of course, things have at last, although about two years late, been set moving, Ufa and also some of the smaller companies have at last embarked on more annitious talkers, and if, as everybody hopes, they come up to expectations, this will certainly go a long way to improve the situation. For the time being, however, exhibitors, the press and the general public simply do not know as yet what a modern talker looks and sounds like unless they have seen some in London. The position is all the worse, since, in a fatal eagerness to show their stuff and at least see some returns German talkers, mostly shorts, have been publicly exhibited which, it would have been far wiser, never to have allowed beyond the laboratory. Thus, talkers generally have been still more prejudiced, so far as the press and the general public are conterned, which means that still more lost ground will have to be covered.

"On the other hand, what with the general nervousness in the trade and finance diminishing with narrowing export markets, silent production obviously had to considerably deteriorate in Germany this year. So much so that the exhibiting business is seriously feeling the pinch already and much of the ground conquered by many years hard toil in huilding up quality product has been and is still being lost.

"Of course, there is only one remedy. Talkers must and will come to the rescue, recouping for the exhibitor money lost. But this will hardly be possible until the 'patent war' is amicably settled. This, in turn, means that the financiers controlling the situation will have to sacrifice their own ends to the interests of the exhibitor and the general public."

130 Features Planned By Soviet Government

Washington-Soviet Russia will release 130 features, 100 of them of domestic origin, from Sept. 15, 1929 to May 1, 1930 it is estimated by Russian trade papers, states a report to the M. P. Division of the Dept. of Commerce. The Russian films will be manufactured chiefly by Sovkiro, which, after its recent amalgamation with Goswoenkino, is to turn out 40 per cent of Soviet production.

Sees End Soon To German Patent War

Speedy settlement of the patent situation in Germany which is retarding the growth of sound in that country was foreeast by James V. Bryson, managing director of Universal Pictures, Ltd., prior to his departure for London. He is now on

Commenting on sound in Great Britain today, Bryson declared English production interests are concentrating on development of Continental markets as a fertile field

"Producers in London are in a more advantageous position to serve the talking needs of Continental countries, than American companies, only because they can quickly command sufficient foreign talent to enable them to produce numerous versions while making an English version, he said. Although English producers are expected to turn out more and better prodnet before they will realize sufficient returns on their product to lanneh enlarged production schedules concentrating on quality product,

"England developed its sound industry very rapidly. At this time last year, there were five houses showing talkies throughout Great Britain and today, 800 have all-sound policies. Ireland took to sound over night. English producers, for the first time in film bistory, are receiving substantial returns on distribution in that country.

"Fly-by-night outfits, originally plugged by quota requirements, have increased greatly hecause of apparent future of sound. Many of them are rapidly falling by the wayside, however. This, of course, is reacting unfavorably in public stock fields. Sound has given the English industry a new lease on life, unoustionably.

"While there has been no trouble in the musicians' ranks, sound has put 6,000 out of work.

"Western Electric has made more than half of all British installations, with Schlesingers' British-made De Forest machine the most important of home devices. Showing of silent pictures is decreasing on a wholesale scale."

""All Quiet on the Western Front' has a highly important international angle," Bryson stated in setting at rest reports which mentioned a possible resentment of the picture in certain countries which fought against Germany during the World War. "It is any man's pacture, in any country, and will do more to create friendly relations and a desire for armament than two-dozen peace conferences," be said.

Foreign Language Talkers In Vogue

Kent After German Theatres, Is Report

Sidney R. Kent's European trip is being linked with a move to acquire German theatres a la wholesale. The general manager of Paramount is now en route for the continent.

German houses, advices from Berlin indicate, are being pinched principally because of their inability to get sound pictures. With the exception of the Warner output and a few others, that market is compelled to play silents particularly in view of the fact that German studios have not as yet made any sizeable strides in the production of talkers. For these reasons, many reports indicate many German houses are available.

Motion Picture News radioed Kent aboard the Berengaria and on Thursday received a two-word reply. He wired

The Warners, in a long-standing tilt with Western Electric, have thrown overboard all restrictions and are showing their talkers over German apparatus and cleaning up. The same right has been rigorously denied by Western Electric to its licensed companies and many are consequently complaining plentifully.

> The situation, irksome to companies like Paramount, M-G-M, Fox, Universal, United Artists and others, has been further aggravated by the fact that Pathe, RKO and Tiffany, which are licensed under agreements with RCA, are understood to be kicking over the traces and attempting to operate in Germany as far as talkers in English will permit. At a recent Hays meeting, Lee Marcus, vice-president of RKO, is reported to have demanded reasons for staying out.

Western Electric is moving actively in efforts to clarify the sound entanglement and with a possibility that an agreement of some nature will be reached shortly with German sound interests which at the mo-ment are successfully keeping many pictures of many American companies out of Teutonic markets.

Move To Shut N. Y. Studios, Labs, Described As Hysteria

Wholesale closing of New York theatres, laboratories, public projection rooms and studios, indicated in wild rumors following the Pathe fire is nothing more than "hysteria," an important city official informed Motion Picture News yesterday. Buildings housing laboratories, studios or theatres are always under close watch by the Fire Prevention Bureau, it was pointed out, and there is nothing to worry about if occupants steer clear of fire violations and obey municipal ordinances governing storage of films.

"Panie and slow-thinking in failing to sound an alarm was responsible for the great loss of life in the recent studio fire, a situation which might easily arise in almost any plant, or place of public assembly," an investigation by one division of the city fire department revealed. It shows that film was in no way responsible for the catastrophe, or resultant loss of life.

Three local studios, the Victor-Gramercy, American Sound, on West 44th, and the old DeForest plant on East 48th St., are understood to have been tagged for violations and ordered closed until changes are made. Projection rooms and theatres will be unmolested unless violations are found. A check-up made at all laboratories in town during the week unearthed only a few minor violations, which were cleared immediately.

Corrigan Postpones Hearing For Flinn

Hearing of John C. Flinn and Henry F. Lally before Magistrate Corrigan in Homicide Court has been postponed until Feb. 5th. The Pathe executives are technically charged with second degree manslaughter following the fire at the company's New York studio.

John C. Flinn's friends in the industry are hopeful that the legal situation will work out favorably. His voluntary assumption of responsibility for the disastrous fire is held to be unfortunate. They believe it misjudgment on his part to assume the obligation for something over which he had no control.

Drapes Force Chi Houses To Close

Chicago.-One hundred theatres will be forced to tear out present aconstical materials and replace them with materials in conformity with regulations of the fire department at a cost approximating $50,-

At a special meeting called by Jack Miller, head of the Chicago Exhibitors' Association, exhibitors were unanimous in their eagerness to cooperate with fire department officials. Drapes will be removed from walls and ceilings, and horns which do not meet the requirements of the law torn out. Orders already have been issued by Patrick J. Egan, fire prevention chief, ordering removal of condemned material from ten houses and others will follow as quickly as fire inspectors tile their reports.

Where acoustical materials have been found hazardous, immediate closing of such theatres has been ordered unless the law is complied with by the next performance. Firemen are being stationed in front of such houses and the public is not permitted to enter. Egan in a department letter states:

letter states:

"This bureau has made numerous tests on felt wool burlap and other similar materials which have been installed in various theatres throughout the city for the purpose of improving the acoustics in the theatres. This is to advise you that every test so far conducted has shown these materials to be wholly unfit for the purposes intended and contrary to Section 1337 of the fire prevention ordinance.
"You are, therefore, requested to ascertain the names of all theatres in your district using these materials and to prepare proper notices ordering the removal of these materials from the theatres at once."

$2,500 A Seat For Eight Seats In Hughes' Theatre

(Hollywood Bureou, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood,-Howard Hughes is spending $20,000 for a private sound theatre at the Metropolitan sound studios.

The little theatre, equipped with the latest Western Electric improvements in sound projection is costing the producer-director of "Hell's Angels" about $2,500 a seat for his private house, as it will have just eight finely upholstered loges.

In order to install the reproducing horns behind the screen it was necessary to creet a balcony over the sidewalk outside the

No Plans To Replace "Hip"

R-K-O, which vacates the Hippodrome, New York, next summer upon expiration of its present lease has made no plans to replace the theatre landmark, according to Joe Plunkett. The present building is to make way for a 1,000-foot skyseraper.

Smoking Ruled Out

Smoking is positively taboo in the Pathe home office, a measure enforced by company executives following the fire at the company's New York studio.

Employees will be fired on the spot if caught smoking in the building. new orders provide for an immediate shutdown in the projection room if news and trade reviewers light up during screenings.

Johnson Heads Allied Unit In Pacific N. W. For 1930

Seattle.-Leroy F. Johnson, managing director of the VonHerberg interests in Scattle, was elected president of the Allied Amusements of the Northwest for the coming year, at the annual convention held this week. Arbitration was discussed by exhibitors representing Washington, Idaho and Montana, but it was decided to await further action on the Thacher decision before making an absolute ruling for this territory. In the meantime, the exhibitor body continues to maintain its former status of having withdrawn from arbitration. F. C. Weskil, Sand Point, Idaho, was elected vice-president and James M. Hone again re-elected secretary and treasurer. The meetings were presided over by Al Rosenberg of Seattle, retiring president. About 100 attended. Trustees elected were: About 100 attended. Acoustics, Bad Tone Arms, Vibration Common Causes of Poor Reproduction

HE national survey conducted by the M-G-M school for sound has brought many interesting slants on theatre reproduction into the light of analysis. Common among the reasons for lack of tonal quality are these:

1.—Bad acousties.

2.—Overweighted tone arms.

3.—Vibration in operation.

Coupled with this triumvirate of trouble go disc plates which get out of line and the current fluctuation that is characteristic of small town power plants. This article, second in a series published by MOTION PICTURE NEWS, delves into actual instances and explains how simple the remedy is—if the exhibitor knew it.

This exhibitor was a conscientious and progressive showman. In the days of the silent motion picture he had prided himself upon the quality of his entertainment, but since installing sound equipment he had not given one show which measured up to his established standard.

He was greatly worried. He had sought almost everyone's advice, and had adopted every suggestion which seemed reasonable to him. His original investment in equipment—quite substantial for him—had been materially increased by experimental work.

He was about ready to give up when he heard of M-G-M's sound service department. Perhaps a sound technician could tell him what the matter was. In any event, it wouldn't cost him anything to find out

The case is summarized here because it involves in one experience practically every trouble to which sound reproduction is heir. A summary of the technician's report shows how utterly at the mercy of conditions the inexperienced exhibitor, is.

Vibration the Fault

The machines were not securely bolted to the floor and there was very bad vibration. There was a decided flutter, due to a poor connection between the projector and the disc plate. The tone arms were heavily over-weighted. One disc plate was very much out of line.

The sound which came from the reproducer made the technician's hair stand on end. He whistled and counted four distinct echoes in the house. He clapped his hands and there was a loud rattling around the side walls which lasted for five seconds by his watch. The ceiling ventilators were built so that they made a perfect sound box of echo. The horns were boxed in so that nuch of the sound did not reach the front of the house, but exhausted itself rattling around back of the screen.

Five hours were spent merely in locating successive sources of trouble. When the technician completed his survey the exhibitor had plenty of definite reasons why the quality of his sound pictures did not meas-

File Them

This series of articles on sound, published exclusively in Motion Picture News in collaboration with M-G-M will probably run over a period of ten weeks. Today's is the second.

Theory plays no part in the discussions. The theatre man's problem, what caused it and how it was remedied—this is the type of information embraced.

It is suggested that the exhibitor file the entire series for constant reference. Nothing like it has been published to date.

nre up to his previous entertainment standards. Strangely, though, the correction of difficulties was comparatively inexpensive. A little draping and a few feet of Celotex eliminated much of the trouble and some adjusting, fastening and replacements took care of the worst of the rest of it.

This case, of course, is extreme. Yet it well serves to show that sincerity and the desire to give good entertainment will not alone insure the success of sound motion pietures. A comparatively few dollars, rightly expended, would have materially improved this exhibitor's sound reproduction. His willingness to spend the money was not a factor; he had already spent much more than was necessary. What he needed was information.

Nor is the case here cited an exception. There is plenty of evidence in M-G-M's nation-wide survey of theatre sound reproduction that exhibitors have been willing to invest substantial sums in equipment without taking full advantage even of the information about operation which the equippers have made available to them.

Thus, we find in a town in the Central West, a theatre which has a tin ceiling, undraped side walls, an unbalanced tone arm on the reproducer, open ceiling ventilators, pick-up arms which are delivering less than 4,000 cycles, an uncovered and unused orchestra pit and heavy hangings in front of the horns and a deep and high open space back of them—conditions, of course, which make dialogue almost unintelligible, but which could largely be inexpensively remedied in a few hours.

Power Plants Troublesome

Bad acoustics, overweighted tone arms, vibration in operation, disc plates out of line—these seem to be general difficulties of small theatres which have equipped for sound at a minimum of expense. And, in addition, there is the current fluctuation characteristic of small town power plants.

One technician, during two consecutive weeks in the field, did not visit one theatre in which bad reverberation was not found from undraped rear walls. There was only one of these theatres where much more than fifty per cent of the voluone developed at the horns was being thrown out into the theatre. Every theatre which had an orchestra pit had left it open and sound was suffering in consequence. A large percentage were getting vibration because machines were not bolted or concreted to the floor. Most of them were losing quality and suffering inconvenience through some sort of tormble with the reproducer arm.

Perhaps the strangest record of an attempt to convert a silent theatre to sound purposes is one reported from a small town in the Northwest. The projection booth, located in the center of the main floor, was high and uncovered. The floor was of solid concrete and was not earpeted. There were numerous pilasters, none of which was draped. The seats were wooden benches and the rows extended entirely across the theatre in front of the projection booth and then narrowed down alongside of and back of the booth, to the rear of the auditorium.

Another Typical Case

The equipment had been assembled from a great variety of sources. Sixteen-inch records were being played on a turn-table of regulation phonograph size. Old style phonograph pick-up arms, stiff and improperly balanced, were used. The walls of the booth were a mass of wires, most of the connections having been made by twisting, instead of soldering.

The sound, of course, was tubby and no high frequencies were being reproduced. The undraped, tlat wall of the projection booth was alone causing enough reverheration to have ruined the sound effects of ten theatres. And this was being emphasized by the cement floor, wooden seats, open pilasters and hard side and end walls. Being well removed from serious competition, the exhibitor was "doing very well," as he expressed it, but he did want to get into the exchange city some day and see if the big theatres there were really giving a better show. At latest reports, however, he hadn't "found time."

Such eases, obviously, are extremes. But they serve to show part of the problem involved in providing the public with better sound entertainment. Equally, they serve to show the length to which the troubled exhibitor will go.

Widespread exhibitor inexperience with sound and an almost complete lack of knowledge of its fundamentals are the basic reasons for poor reproduction. The first two in this series of articles narrated a number of cases brought to the attention of and remedied by the corps of sound technicians maintained by M-G-M. Next week' a third chapter in this practical sound history will appear.

An Exclusive Motion Picture News Feature

In Your Seat At 8:45 At This N. W. Theatre

Carlton, Minn.—A policy more unique than practical perhaps has been inaugurated in the Leb.

Only one de luxe performance is to be given each night with the exception of Sundays. Each performance is to begin at 7:45 P. M. during the week. A program of short subjects is offered until 8:25. While they are being shown late comers are being seated. At 8:45 the feature is presented.

The doors are closed and those who arrive late must return the next night if they want to see the show. Another odd feature is that no ushers are used. It is a case in point to prove probably that the enstoner can find a better place to sit than that designated by a uniformed attendant.

The Leb was recently redecorated. It has been transformed into an atmospheric theatre with a Spanish motif.

Second-Run Squawk At RKO Return "Rita" Engagement

Syracuse.—Newspaper ads announcing a return engagement of "Rio Rita" at the Ketth house were cancelled when Frank Sardino, three-theatre operator, protested it would hurt his second run play on the picture.

Deaf Patrons Hear With New Acousticon

theatre in downtown Brooklyn

Kansas City.—Eight deaf patrons heard sound films for the first time, by use of the new Acousticon, or acoustic receivers, at a trial performance given at the Royal.

The Acousticon is an idea conceived by E. S. C. Coppock, manager of the Royal. By means of the contrivance, deaf persons are able to hear talking pictures. The instruments are manufactured by Dietograph Products Corp., New York, and the installation at the Royal was the first.

The receivers, similar to telephone receivers, are attached to seats in a section of the loges. Wires from the receivers lead to four microphones and battery box on the front wall of the baleony rail. These microphones pick up the sound and earry it to the volume controls on the back of the seats in the loge section. The deaf person connects the receiver to the volume control and places it to his ear, adjusting the control to suit himself.

The deaf person pays no extra admission price, according to Coppock. He is given the receiver at hox office when he buys his ticket.

The Acousticon is not an invention, but the utilization of the principles of the radio and telephone. Coppock, who is a graduate electrical engineer, conceived the idea and the Dietograph Company is to manufacture the instruments for theatre use.

Puts Lots Of Pep In Shorts House

"Success of all-short and newsreel houses, aside from Broadway stands, depends entirely on heavy and consistent plugging," according to Alfred Ferraro, manager of the Momart, on Fulton St., Brooklyn, now operating as a short-subject theatre.

Ferraro plastered the town with fifty 24-sheet stands, 50 three and hundreds of window cards and one-sheets, appealing particularly to shoppers in the downtown shopping district. He changes twice weekly on Wednesday, opening at 10 A. M., playing until 11 P. M. The scale is fifteen cents until six and a quarter after that hour, including Sundays.

This is the type of newspaper copy the theatre is using:

The Momart is a 600-seater and plays over W. E. equipment, and unlike the Newsreel Theatre in New York, runs conedies as well as newsreels.

Loew's Switches Three In Metropolitan Shake-Up

A three-cornered change in the New York Loew circuit places M. Seidlitz, manager of the Greeley Square, in charge of the Canal St., while D. J. Helgeson goes from Loew's Circle to the Greeley Square. Walter Gutteridge, of the relief staff, is appointed manager of the Circle.

Managers Secure Operators Licenses After A Walk-Out

Buffalo.—Support of non-union men by managers with projection licenses prevented interruption of programs at 12 neighborhood houses, where union booth help declared a strike.

Twenty theatre owners applied for municipal licenses to operate machines when it became known that the union planned to strike.

Gift Program Gag

Richmond.—Children attending Stewart Tucker's gift matinee at the Byrd brought everything under the sun from apples and potatoes to baskets and blankets.

Newspapers helped put the show over, publicizing Tucker's idea of helping unfortunates at Christmas.

Christmas Spirit Hits L. A. Grosses

Los Angeles.—Christmas and its usual inroads into the public's pocketbooks are responsible for off business this week. George Bancroft in "The Mighty," playing the Paramount, was the week's best bet. The picture grossed $31,000 or exactly 24 per cent over normal.

Joan Crawford in "Untamed" gave Baneroft a close race, all factors considered. Her picture finished with $30,600, which draws a rating of 113 per cent. These films nabbed the bulk of downtown business.

"Three Live Ghosts" did $14,000 at the United Artists. In percentage, the figure is 104. "Tiger Rose," at Warners Downtown, finished up at 129 per cent or $19,300; R-K-O, with "Song of Love," at $15,000, or 94 per cent, which is under par; and the Palace, with "They Had to See Paris," with $8,100 or 90 per cent for its third week.

In Hollywood, Warners Hollywood led the procession nabbing $18,000 or a rating of 129 per cent with "So Long Letty," Charlotte Greenwood's legs apparently attracted. "Condemned," in its second week at Grauman's Chinese, finished with $16,500, which gives it a percentage of 103. "Rio Rita," in its fourth week at the Carthay Cirele, did $14,100, or 113 per cent; "Marianne," at the Egyptian, $11,600; and "Hallelujah," at the Criterion, with $11,200, or 112 per cent.

PRR Backing Ballyhoo For Railroad Short At Colony

An exploitation campaign ballyhooing a sound short reel, "Broadway Limited," for its Colony, New York, run next week, is one of the most elaborate plugs for a two-reeler witnessed on the Main Stem to date. It winds up with a brass-band concert on Broadway tonight, in front of the Colony, with the Pennsylvania R. R. hand performing.

Visuagraphie Pietures produced the reel for Pennsylvania, which plastered 1,248 Long Island and Pennsylvania stations in a radius of 50 miles, with posters and electric displays, and placed 100,000 one-sheets in all trains running into New York daily.

Both companies tied up the short with all current newspaper and magazine train advertising.

Futuristic Marquee Takes Bow At Stanley In Philly

Philadelphia—Futuristic trend in theatre construction has reached the marquee. A new marquee, of pronounced modern design, the first of its kind in Philadelphia, is attracting considerable attention at the Stanley. It is wrought of solid copper and contains 2,960 electric bulbs, using about 48,000 watts per hour. Marquees of similar design are planned for the Earle and Stanton.

Publix After Another New England House

Needham, Mass.—Negotiations are under way by Publix to acquire the Needham.

Conscience Money

Ottawa.—Receipt of 25 cents in conscience money started an endless string of difficulties for Joe Franklin, managing the Keith's here.

An accompanying note said the sender has passed a lead coin at the box-office and wanted to make amends. The plugged quarter could not he traced by Franklin, who publicly announced an offer to make good if the coin had heen given out to any patron. This brought a flood of claimants with lead quarters.

Publix Making Extensive Use Of Radio-Truck Bally

Publix is operating a fleet of 12 radiotruck ballyhoos throughout the country and will soon ship one to Europe. The truck resembles a miniature locomotive and is equipped with a radio receiving set, phonograph and public address system. No attempt is made to receive broadcast from any particular station, different ones being tuned in from time to time by the operator. The trucks were built by the McGee Mfg. Co., Indianapolis, Ind. Paramount institutional ads are plastered on the sides.

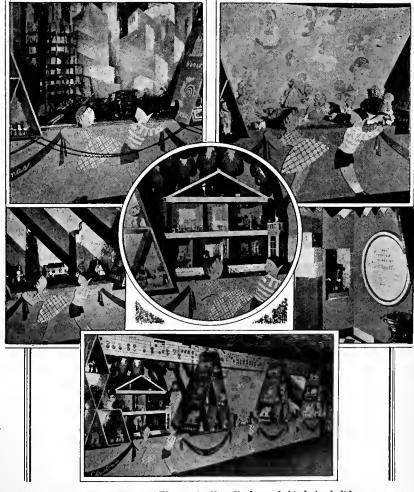

Toy Display Nabs Fans' Attention

A toy display, featured in the Elizabethan Room of the Paramount, New York, is attracting plenty of attention from theatregoers and suggests a similar plan for other houses throughout the country.

The plan was developed with R. H. Macy and Co. and behind it is the idea, as explained by Harry Royster, of Publix to give the prospective buyer of toys an opportunity to view an extensive array of children's playthings in the quiet atmosphere of the theatre, and thus elude the hustle of a toy department, crowded with Christmas shoppers.

The Paramount-Macy exhibit is in charge of a uniformed Publix attendant who demonstrates any mechanical toy or gives other information to the prospective buyers. The collection covers practically every article in the line of modern toys and the booth decorations in keeping with the spirit of the holiday season.

A reporter for Motion Picture News noticed that a large number of theatre patrons expressed interest to the point of asking for demonstrations and prices of various toys.

Producers Center Efforts On Reducing Waste In Story Buys

Hollywood.—A closer check-up on story buys is being instituted on the coast. Producers, handing out large sums of money for books, plays, novels and originals, have discovered that many properties made valuable by virtue of the money they have paid for them, are not suitable for pictures after they are bought.

At the present time there are hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of screen rights to plays, books and originals reposing in the files of the various coast studios, a small percentage of which can ever find a way to the screen because it is impossible to transform them into film form.

During the past year, most of the larger studios have instituted a system which provides for assignment of a screen writer to prepare a film adaptation of a book or play that is under-consideration. If the writer is able to get a screen version meeting with the approval of the producing executives, negotiations are then started.

But if the writer cannot deliver what is considered a suitable adaptation, or one that shows that the book or play can not be transposed to pictures, purchase of the story is forgotten, leaving the studio with only the writer's salary during his work to be charged off. This is naturally only a minor portion of the asking price for the sereen and dialogue rights to the property. and such a procedure over the period of a year must naturally result in the saving of thousands of dollars for each studio.

Watching Their Step

When an author offers to the producer the rights to a work that seems a possibility in talker form, dialogue writers are assigned to the story and told to bring in a complete layout. If the dialogue version is acceptable, negotiations are started to acquire the talker pieture rights. There have been several recent instances where former successful plays that were made as silent pictures could not be molded into suitable talker scripts, and dialogue rights were not bought as a result.

Previously, producers often purchased screen rights to properties without due consideration as to their possibilities in screen form, and in many instances executives discovered they could not get satisfactory sereen adaptations from best-seller plays or books after the latter had been purchased for prices ranging up to $50,000 each. There were many cases where properties were purchased for the title, and new stories written around them.

This procedure seems to be definitely out. Stories are not purchased for specific stars or directors unless the companies are certain that they can go into production within a reasonable time. And the same goes for dialogue rights on re-makes.

Christmas Gag

Tickets are dis-tributed by business men of the section. Vaudeville, pictures and other forms of entertainment are provided, and toys and gifts distributed.

Producers generally have come to the realization that too much money has been wasted in the purchase of story material that eventually went into the scenario department files, and their attitude now indicates that they want to see just how a property will look in adaptation form before expending the purchase price for film and dialogue rights.

Determined to Cut Waste

It is understood that one of the largest producing companies on the coast has saved over $100,000 during the past year by watching story purchases. Inside reports declare that this particular company has only acquired two original stories in that time that were definitely abandoned after being approved and readied for actual shooting. The story loss on these two, if reports are correct, means that less than $20,000 has had to be charged off as bad story purchases during the year.

A reverse on the above conditions was uncovered this week at one of the largest studios. A staff writer had been assigned to write an adaptation and script for a certain book. His work was approved and the story turned over to a producer to line up a director and east. But then the legal department of the company discovered that the firm did not own the picture rights to the book, and these would have to be acquired before production could proceed any further. A deal for the sereen and dialogue rights is now pending.

35 Theaters Now Wired In Mexico

"If the rapid progress of sound in Mexico during the past four months is maintained during the next six months, over twelve per cent of theatres there will he showing audible pictures," George Pezet, Mexican sales representative of Pathe, told a reporter of Motion Picture News this week. Pezet is now in New York for conferences with company officials.

"The general business of theatres showing sound pictures is good," according to Pathe's Mexican chief, who pointed out that "with but one exception, only American-produced English dialogue features have been shown. However, there have been numerous Spanish-spoken scenes in

Daylight Saving Killed

Toronto. - Chatham, Belleville, Sarnia and Stratford will not have daylight saving in 1930. Voters repealed the ordinance at recent elections.

Concurrently with the Cohan announcement comes word that Al Jolson actually commences work under the United banner in Cohan's first production. Cohan will write, direct and produce the vehicle, including songs.

> Jolson's agreement, originally influenced by a close friendship with Joe Schenck, is to run indefinitely and provides for one feature a year. The Cohan deal, it is understood, is a partnership arrangement with Schenck and its length depends entirely on the outcome of the first picture.

> The story will be an original, straight musical number. It is understood Cohan is now working out details for the use of his current play, "Gambling," for a second talkie. He is expected to play short "Gambling" runs on a tour to the Coast, arriving in Los Angeles late in March, and continuing the play there while working on the United lot.

> He told a Motion Picture News reporter that talkies did not need names as much as they did good play material of an unsophisticated type, inasmuch as the audience in the motion picture theatre now represents the masses, almost entirely. "They want fast stuff, and it must be light, to click in all quarters," he added.

Bromfield Replaces Howard

Samuel Goldwyn, prior to his departure for Europe, placed Louis Bromfield under contract to write dialogue. Bromfield, who won the Pulitzer prize for 1927 with "Early Autumn" leaves for Hollywood in January. It is understood he replaces Sidney Howard, playwright who wrote the dialogue for "Bulldog Drunmond" and "Condemned" and who is now doing "Raffles." Howard has secured a release from his Goldwyn contract and will devote his future time to plays.

Noiseless Camera For Sound In A Year, Is Coast Forecast

Hollywood.-In a year the camera will shed the soundproof clothing forced on it by the delicacy of recording microphones and return to its unencumbered presound state, according to Jesse L. Lasky who bases his prediction on a report made to him by Virgil Miller, head of the camera department at Paramount.

Miller's survey points out that there have been five different styles of camera enclosures invented since the first talking

closures invented since the first talking picture days.

"Our first experiments proved definitely that it was impossible to photograph talking pictures with unenclosed cameras." Lasky says. "The whir of the machinery was plain audible above the thalogue. Therefore, we decided to enclose owners and cameraman in a boothike arrangement which had a glass front.

"The first booth constructed was far from satisfactory. In the first place, the cameraman mearly stifled during the shooting of a seene because no preparations had been made for ventilation. Secondly, the glass front was so large—it was five feet vertically and two and a half teet horizontally—that extreme care had to be taken in the placing of the set lights, because the large surface of glass picked up reflections.

"Then, too, the moving of this first hooth required from eight to ten men to lift it bodily and carry it from one set-up to another.

"The next booth evolved corrected some disadvantages. A catacomb ventilation arrangement that allowed a draft of air to be forced in and out of the hooth through a compressed air system made it possible for the cameraman to stay within the booth an unlimited time.

"The front of the booth was broken up into a series of windows that could be fronted either with glass or fiber-board. This allowed the cameraman to set his camera at any normal height, and yet eliminated much of the danger of reflection.

"This feature had its economic value also. The pure white, optical plate glass needed for talking pictures is costly, and the ratio of the cost increases tremendously with the increased size of the plate Too, the glass must be polished by the cameraman after each seene is made, and it is inevitable that the glass becomes scratched and must be scrapped."

New Booths An Improvement

According to Miller, the new booths were equipped with a chassis which, when lowered by means of a quick-acting jack screw, made the booth portable.

"Although the new hooth was highly satisfactory for interior photography, it was impossible to make the panoramic or 'follow shots,' said Miller. 'Follow shots,' desirable indoors, are absolutely necessary to exterior photography.

"We decided, therefore, to develop a camera that could be taken out of the booths and yet be noiseless. The first step in this direction was the blimp camera."

The blimp was a regulation silent camera mounted on the regulation tripod, but with a covering placed around its working parts to insulate the operation "whir" from the microphones. The lens was left free of covering, and it was this item of construction that caused the failure of the blimp. By a peculiar phenomona of aconstics, the telescope-like affair in which the lens are mounted, carries the noise of the inner working of the camera through the many thickness of lens glass.

Describes "Baby Booth"

"As a result, the blimp could only be used by plac-ing it out of the hearing range of the microphone, and equipping it with a long focal lens," Miller continues.

ing it out of the hearing range of the microphone, and equipping it with a long focal lens," Miller continues.

"Our next step was the first baby booth." This differed from the blimp in that the entire camera, lens and all, was enclosed in a box like affair three feet long, by one and one-half feet wide, and two and a half feet deep. The box was made of heavy their and other insulating material, with its edges protected by strips of duralium metal. The glass covered aperture against which the lens was set was seven inches square.

"Recause of its heavy weight, the baby booth had be mointed on a specially constructed tripod. The noteworthy feature of this tripod was its chassis which could be lowered by a jack series, making the baby booth portable.

"A sound-proof door gave access to the camera for loading and adjustment purposes. The cameraman was given complete control of his camera had a series of push lattions and pull chains.

"One of the interesting improvements was the installing of a synthorizing marker. This marker is a small light built which when illumnated exposes a tipy spot on the edge of the film, which becomes, when developed, a dark mark. The light is operated from the outside of the hooth by a push button

Experiments On

Bell and Howell have been at work on a noiseless camera for months. It is understood experiments have been progressing satisfactorily and that the company is almost ready to put its new mechanism on the market.

"Since the invention of the first haby booth, we have evolved another camera booth that is in most respects the same as its predecessor but is much smaller and lighter, and is easier to transport and to manipulate.

manipulate.

"This camera booth was tried out for the first time on the all-talking production, 'Men Are Like That,' and it was discovered that it was almost as easy to transport from one camera set-up to another as the old silent camera, and no more manpower was needed than with the unencumbered camera.

"As a result, we are now obtaining all the photographic angles that were possible in the talkieless days."

"Rio Rita" Grosses $30,000 At Seattle, Breaks Records

Seattle.—All records on any individual run in Scattle were smashed during the two weeks' run of "Rio Rita," at the New Orphenm, vandeville house. Abandoning "vaude" entirely, and playing six shows daily at a 50c-60e scale instead of the regular 25c-75c rate, the house stacked up a first-week gross of $30,000, which represents a 200 per cent rating at this house. The second week was reported to be over 120 per cent, with a gross of about $20,000. The film had the road show attraction as opposition during the second week, playing at the Metropolitan at $3 top.

"Rio Rita" Breaks Attendance And B. O. Records At Houston

Houston. - Single-day attendance and box-office records of all Houston houses were smashed by "Rio Rita" at the Kirby, a Publix house. Holden Swager, manager, claims the RKO vehicle grossed 250 per cent on the opening and 150 per cent for the entire full-week's run. It is estimated that 1,000 were turned away on the first Hollywood.—Charles ("Chuck") Reisner has been definitely assigned by M-G-M to direct the "Hollywood Revue of 1930," as exclusively reported by Motion Picture News some weeks ago.

M-G M expects to "shoot the works" on the production, with budget reported at over $1,000,000. Besides including stars and featured players under contract to the company, the revue will present stage stars of twenty years ago in a series of novel Sound Forcing Cleaner Pictures?

Portland, Ore.—"Dialogue makes censorship extremely difficult to handle, because cuts may mean elimination of important factors in a story. Consequently, there is no question but that producers are taking additional pains not to offend," Col. Jason Joy, Hays' public relations director, told the local Motion Picture Board, in the first of a series of conferences planned for key centers in the Pacific Northwest and in Canada. Joy admitted that "there will be some exceptions for a time, but clean pictures are being made in ever-increasing numbers."

In discussing the part which the organization plays in warning member companies against the production of ill-advised, or radical subjects, Joy revealed the fact that "Volga Boatman" was banned in 38 countries having unstable governments because of its revolutionary theme; one of John Barrymore's vehicles was not permitted on the screens of eleven countries, while 13 governments turned thumbs down on Jannings' "Last Command.

In And Out In One

Hollywood.-An actress with a ceputation for being hard to handle, secured an engagement in a short feature at one of the big studios after she had been off the screen for over a year.

The first day on the set, temperament hurst forth in all its glory-she is reported to have argued with the director over her lines-voiced dissatisfaction over lighting, and refused to work with any onlookers except those directly concerned with the picture.

As a result, the picture went over schedule and budget and the actress is out of that studio.

"U" Starts Sales Push In Mid-West

Chicago. - Universal branch managers and sales executives from the western and southwestern division have just completed a meeting at the Stevens at which the new Universal selling season in which Carl Laemmle has designated 14 pictures as "Red Letter Product" was launched.

Speakers were M. Van Praag, general sales manager; Fred J. McConnell, sales director of short product; H. M. Herbel, Chicago branch manager, and Louis Laemmle of the Chicago office.

The gathering was snapped exclusively for Motion Picture News on the roof of the Stevens and what the camera caught is reproduced elsewhere on this page.

Canadian "Legit" Wallows In "Red"

Toronto.—"Legit" business has been taking it on the chin in terrific fashion in Canada this season. The road hung on much longer in the Dominion than in the United States, due to the number of British companies on tour. This year has been almost one hundred per cent in the red for every undertaking.

The big blow, so far, came this week when Dumbells, all-Canadian revue which has been packing them in for eleven years folded up. Complaints from road attractions in the outlying regions have been pro-longed and persistent. Not an outfit is re-porting money-making business.

Talkers, the wheat crop and the market erash are all blamed. By present indications, the road show is almost ready to vanish. Picture houses are indirectly affected, of course, by this general situation but a number are more directly concerned, since with the exception of Montreal, Toronto. Winnipeg and Vancouver, road companies in Canada have played houses with a combined picture-legit policy, most of them in the Famous Players Canadian chain.

Coulter Trust Suit Hanging Fire Pending A Settlement

Richmond,-An out-of-court settlement is expected in the Sherman anti-trust suit brought by Walter Coulter, chain operator, against the Washington Film Board of Trade and distributors, who were charged by Coulter with discriminating against his local string. Distributors, it is understood, were successful in checking the action before it reached trial, inviting Coulter to bury the hatchet and get together regarding a settlement. In the meantime, Coulter is said to have been flooded with more product than he can use.

Coulter declined to discuss the situation when questioned. Gabriel L. Hess, general attorney for the Film Boards of Trade,

Lists 12 Companies In Conspiracy Suit

*Kansas City.-Walter O. Burkey, former owner of the Admiral, suburban house, has filed suit in the Jackson County court against Paramount, Fox, Warners, First National, Universal, M-G-M, Pathe, United Artists, Tiffany, Educational, R-K-O and Mid-West Film Distributors for $95,000.

Burkey charges these companies maintained a trust in restraint of trade which resulted in his being forced out of business. His refusal to accept block booking and the enforcement of arbitration awards are claimed to be the cause of his withdrawal from the business. No date for trial has been set.

Burkey asks $95,000, basing his claim on the fact that his wealth would have totaled that amount at the end of his life, calculated on his income at the time of his retirement in 1928.

Two years ago Burkey filed suit against Fox and Paramount, charging conspiracy. He also has a suit against Mid-West Film Distributors, an independent concern, which he claims tried to enforce an arbitration award. These suits are expected to come up for trial this winter.

Dividends In 1930 Likely To Be High

Earnings and dividend records of corporations during the past eight years give no indications that the anticipated 1930 business recession will be sufficiently severe to impair dividend payments, Dr. David Friday states in the current "Bankers' Magazine.

"Best predictions as to business activity in 1930 seem to agree that we may expect a decline more severe than in 1927 but less serious than in 1924," he says.

Assuming, however, that the percentage decline is as great as in 1924 and that profits fall off commensurately, nevertheless, he points out the average level of profits of all corporations would still be well above total dividend payments in 1929.

"The corporations will, therefore," he says, "he able to maintain their dividends on the high level of the current year if they choose to do so. In the depressions of the past eight years they bave never allowed them to recede,"

Dr. Friday has prepared a table of corporate income and profits to show the stability of American industry. He points out dividend payments have increased each year, even in times of business depression and that in no single year were aggregate dividends unearned. Figures for 1922 to 1927 are based on the Treasury's statistics of income, while 1928 and 1929 estimates are based on samples of published corporate reports.

Sees Sound As An Aid To Grand Opera

Sound pictures will have a tendency to increase patronage of grand and light opera, in the opinion of Nino Carboni, Italian baritone of Royale Opera House, Rome, who is visiting in New York.

who is visiting in New York.

"The sound film has demonstrated the public's desire for high class film entertainment," Carboni claims. "This has already been shown by the success of 'Rio Rita,' which comes nearer to light operathan any sound picture I have seen to date and shows that American producers are catering to the intelligentsia as well as to the masses.

"When full length operas, such as 'Girl of the Golden West,' 'Carmen,' 'Madam Butterfly,' 'Grand Duchess' and others are produced, films will naturally open its doors to music lovers and at the same time will educate the regular motion picture goers to a desire for that type of music film. 'This new film audience, getting its taste for grand and light opera via the curema will be an added potential andience for the legitimate opera houses."

Exhibitors To Aid Product Selection

Type of product to be produced by Equitable Pictures for the Motion Picture Congress will be largely determined at monthly zone meetings of exhibitor members, according to George W. Stout, new president of Equitable.

Stout, a veteran in coast production circles and more recently an executive at the First National Burbank plant, told a Mo-TION PICTURE NEWS reporter that complete details for the physical operation of the plan are now being worked out and that they provide for direct reports on each picthre or unit show played by members and as well as from the committees of national representatives provided for in the Congress plan.

"In each zone, there will he a committee of from three to five exhibitors elected by members." Stout stated, "and this committee will sit in on all disputes and differences which may arise, and serve as a nerve center in the question of all policies as well as an appeal board for various subcommittees."

Dr. Marston, Emotions "Expert", Joins Equitable

George W. Stout, Equitable chief, has appointed Dr. William M. Marston vice-president of the M. P. Congress production subsidiary. Marston, psychologist, will act in an analytic capacity on reactions of theatre audiences to certain types of pictures, according to Stout.

Sound Equipment Co.

A progress equal to the advancement in radio is predicted by Carter for talking pictures. There is a need for simplification of equipment, he states. Better amplification will also be achieved, he says, when there is more power in tubes. Carter likewise foresees television as an important unit of future programs.

He speaks with authority. Carter is a well-known scientist, the founder of the Radio Manufacturers Ass'n, a member of the Institute of Radio Engineers, and a pioneer in television broadcasting. Carter, who is sponsoring the Carter Sound Equipment Co., is head of the Carter Radio Company which he organized in 1922 and which is credited with the development of a number of contributions in the radio field.

In his television experiments, Carter has used a transmission system hased on the use of a 24 line image, and has essayed to pick up or televise his subjects without the use of the intermediary film employed by most present day experimentors.

Sales offices of Carter Sound Equipment Company have been opened at 910 S. Michi-

Hollywood.—Sammy Lee, dance director at M-G-M, has no less than 34 ensembles in preparation. Lee is directing 18 numbers for the new M-G-M Revue, as yet untitled; three for Joan Crawford's "Montana," three for "The Song Writer" and ten for "Good News,"

Large blocks of Famons Players Canadian stock offered on the Toronto exchange are responsible for reports that Nathanson is now unburdening his extensive holdings in F. P. C.

N. L. Nathanson prefers to remain somewhat vague about a proposed Canadian chain under his auspices. He has just rounded out a few days' visit in New York and prior to leaving told a reporter for Motion Picture News that his plans were indefinite at this time.

Zukor-Nathanson Squabble Over Theatre Site Put Off

Montreal.—The legal tilt between Adolph Zukor as president of Famous Players Canadian Corp. and N. L. Nathanson, former managing director of the company, over a theatre site on St. Catherine's street which reached court yesterday and was postponed until Jan. 17. The property, a choice parcel, was bought by Nathanson for the corporation, Zukor alleges. Nathanson, in turn, claims he closed it in his own name and for his own use.

The case is significant because the site is reported to be part of Nathanson's proposed $25,000,000 circuit to be built in opposition to Famous Players. Sir William Wiseman of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., accompanied Zukor here.

Chase, Leaderless, Milliken's Reply To Demand For Probe

"Dr. Chase has had at least one hearing before the Congress and has recorded his views, which illuminate the quality of his mind. Canon Chase is a leader without an army," Gov. Carl Milliken, M.P.P.D.A. secretary, declares in reply to a demand for a Congressional investigation of the industry and Will H. Hays made by Chase as secretary of Federal M. P. Council.

As an alternative to a proble by Congress, Chase suggested creation of a Federal commission to supervise films along the same lines as those established for the government regulation of radio broadcasting.

Church Body Against Film Representation

Loss of directors' posts on the Church and Drama Board by Will II. Hays and Gov. Carl Milliken, is explained by Rev. George Reid Andrews, secretary, as the result of a decision of association executives to divorce motion picture representation from the directorate.

It had been charged in certain quarters that Hays and Milliken had used their affiliation with the Andrews' unit to promote the industry in Protestant circles.

Lese Majeste!

Walking majestically on a stage in flollywood the other day the production chief of a large studio spoke rather roughly to a busy director: "Why do those things that way?" yelled the big boss.

The director attempted an answer. Again, and louder, the big fellow shouted: "Don't you talk back to me!" And that's the way it goes.

Small Town Battle Wages In Little Minnesota Town

Nauswauk. Minn.—In this small Minnesota town, a drama of business is raging.

Several years ago, Crockett Brown manged the Unique. The Grand, opposition house, gave him plenty of competition. Eventually he secured the lease on his competitive theatre and serapped it. Now the owners of the building housing the Grand have jacked up the price. Brown couldn't see his way and the theatre has passed to E. II. and Julius Edelstein, who formerly operated in Hibbing. Brown is without a theatre.

But he has been in exhibition for twenty years and refuses to be licked. Therefore, his plan of battle includes dramatic stock offerings in the town auditorium one day a week and sound pictures twice a week. He is further planning to creet a new theatre.

Nauswauk is too small to successfully support two theatres and it then becomes apparent that either the Edelsteins or Brown will be trimmed if the battle is carried too far.

"Necking" Discouraged But Levey Is Polite About It

Port Washington, N. V.—The "necking" problem may or not be more serious at the Beacon than elsewhere, but William A. Levey, thoughtful manager of the theatre, has a nice way of disposing of a delicate managerial problem.

"When an usher discovers a couple engaged in heavy love-making a la Corse Payton in 'Three Weeks' style," explains Levey, "she very gently places a little message in the gentleman's lap. It reads like this:

WOULD YOU MIND
CHANGING YOUR POSITION, PLEASE!
Thank You!

Levey is certain this method is much more satisfactory than tapping the offender on the shoulder and telling him to stop.

Sound Produces Color In New Austrian Invention

A "color piano" designed to demonstrate that a relationship exists between color and sound has been invented and demonstrated in Vienna, according to a special cable to the "New York Times." Anatol Victinghof-School, the inventor, claims his instrument will evoke colors which actually correspond in nature to musical tones represented by its keyboard.

Since sound is produced by air waves and color by other waves, both are differentiated by the length of their waves, and the inventor sought to ascertain waves, to ascertain whether one stimulus could be made to produce the other. He found that if he directed the light of a certain color on the strings drawn to a certain tension he could make them vibrate, producing sound. Reversing the operation, he found that vibrating the strings, after a prolonged exposure in a pitch-dark room, affected a photographic plate, and that by carrying the tension he could produce different colors. Finally, it hecame possible to correlate with a certainty greater in the case of some times than of others, specific tones with specific colors. Whether his light show itself established colors correlate times than of others, specific tones with specific colors. Whether his light show itself established colors curresponding to the tone represented by the keyboard or merely reproduced colors which the inventor, by his own researches, had already discovered to correspond with those sounds, he did not explain. Scientists who heard it "played," therefore, viewed its performance with a certain skepticism, according to the "fluines." All who saw it throwing on the screen colors which changed and danced with every key played admitted, however, that it was an extraordinarily interesting exhibition.

the was notable how the tone C evoked a deep red while, in a rendition of Chopin's Minute Waltz, the colors danced like will-o'-the-wisps and seemed to support the inventor's contention that, by relating to musical tones the corresponding colors, the effect of music is doubled

New Contract, Protection Changes Sought By Allied

Arbitration Society. The alternative would be three exhibitors and three distributors as it exists today with a seventh to be selected from the list of five submitted by the arbitration society.

However, Allied argues for eases to be determined upon their merit and not necessarily on the provisions of the contract. The moral backing of exhibitor organizations and a denial of the privilege of arbitration as a penalty where exhibitors fail to fulfill the decisions are construed by Allied as sufficient assurances that the plan will work out.

Exhibitors thus serving would be paid $5 a day traveling expenses under Allied's proposal.

Want More Simple Contract

The propositions further include a complete rewriting of the standard contract to the end that it is made more simple. When such a contract is secured, Allied asks that a master copy be placed in exchanges and exhibitor organization centers with the actual contract to be used containing only the terms peculiar to the individual transaction and by reference to the clauses in the master contract.

It is proposed to include press books and work sheets as part of the contract. Likewise, that the form contain the right to exclude poor pictures up to ten per cent without payment therefor. Allied also seeks:

To make contracts for films and discs contingent upon the other and not separate transactions as is the general practice today.

to eliminate the score charge.

The right to play pictures in the order of release.

As a method of climinating overbuying to compel the distributor, if the pictures are held up, to assign playdates to the first run and to forbid their sale to subsequent runs until the prior run is sold, or to give the exhibitor the right to cancel pictures so held up if he is compelled to buy other film to fill gaps in his playing time.

A statute of limitations cancelling all contracts in the event a theatre is closed unnety days. The contention here is that a house closed for sufficiently good reason should not be handicapped upon re-opening by playing old pictures.

Protection Definition Sought

Allied also wants a zoning committee of exhibitors and exchangemen to define protection limits for each territory, specifying the maximum protection to be granted each theatre from the last day of a previous run. Generally, the group seeks protection over theatres, not over areas bearing in mind that the system must change as new theatres open.

Disagreements would be referred to a national appeal board of two distributors, two affiliated exhibitors and two exhibitors appointed by the national exhibitor association. Decisions of this board would require five or six votes and, in the event of a deadlock, would be referred to an arbitration committee which, in turn, would be composed of one exhibitor organization appointee, one distributor and a third to be elected jointly from the five standing nominees to be named by the American Arbitration Society.

This appeal board would also have under its jurisdiction all protection problems which may arise as a result of new theatres entering a given territory.

Breaking down the irksome question of protection further, it is proposed to establish a series of key city committees, each to embrace three members—an exhibitor, a distributor and a third to be selected by the two from the list of the arbitration society. These committees would be empowered to handle local situations and settle them, but if any interested party disagreed recourse would at all times be available through the major appeal board.

Allied sees no objection to a single independent national exhibitor organization. "provided that supreme executive authority is invested in a man outside of the industry."

"Experience teaches that the head of an exhibitor organization to command confidence should have no personal interests that can be affected adversely or otherwise by reason of his efforts in behalf of exhibitors," Allied's theory declares,

Affiliated Exhibitors Acceptable

The group has no objection to regional units which include affiliated theatres as members provided such territorial organizations enter the national scheme as independents. One man elected by each unit to the board of directors is seen as a definite method of eliminating politics, the board to have the power to elect an executive committee of ten. This committee plus the governing head would be the operating group of the association. It is stipulated, however, that the ten must be independents or their representatives.

The executive committee, Allied declares, would be given power to name two affiliated theatre members who would sit with the entire committee but would have no voting power. Allied does not believe that affiliated theatres should hold office in any exhibitor associations and that the proposed national body should not interfere with regional units.

An annual budget of $100,000 is insisted upon as an operating fund, each unit desiring to affiliate paying its proportionate share. Further, chain theatres would pay dues in identical proportion with independents.

This outlines Allied's stand. How far the organization will get remains for the joint committees to work out together.

"Ruling Passion" Remade

Hollywood.—George Arliss is planning to remake a silent film, "The Ruling Passion," on Warners' next year program. Work will be started shortly after the first of the year.

East 'And West

The press agent for the Beacon which opens in New York Christmas Eve insists that "Tiger Rose" will have its world premiere there. The picture happens to be playing this week at Warner theatre in Hollywood.

New York is the East and Hollywood the West and never the twain shall meet.

Massachusetts Billboard Fight Nears Termination

Boston.—Final arguments were heard yesterday in the state's fight against bill-board interests, which are seeking an injunction to prevent authorities from passing regulations to eliminate stands along highways.

The state contends billboards are a menace to automobiling, distracting attention of motorists, and, therefore, causing accidents.

Battle Against Billboards

London.—Efforts to "save the countryside of England" will culminate on Feb. 21, when the Rural Amenities bill will come before Parliament. The measure is aimed directly at billboard advertising and would abolish all ontdoor stands throughout the country.

Universal To Remake Many Of Its Silents In Sound

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)
Hollywood. — Universal is carefully combing its list of silent film rights to books, plays and novels by prominent writers for possibilities that would lend themselves to production as talkers.

The company has purchased dialogue rights to "The Virgin of Stamboul," a book by II. H. Van Loan, which was adapted for a special about ten years ago with Priscilla Dean starred. Universal also intends to re-make "The Flirt," from the novel by Booth Tarkington, and is reported to have already acquired the dialogue rights.

8 Censor Boards In Canada; Industry For Combine In One

Toronto.—Film circles are generally convinced that the time is ripe for a central censor board empowered to act for the entire Dominion. Theatre owners object to the present decentralized system.

For the nine provinces in Canada there are eight boards of censors. Film men claim that the rulings of these groups vary enormously. What is fine for Alberta,

'Third Dimension Film Near'—Hays

"I do not think that I am too visionary when I predict for tomorrow a motion picture flashed on the screen as large as the ordinary stage, the figures moving in perspective, speaking naturally, all in vivid colors of life," states Will H. Hays in "See and Hear," a book of which he is author and which has just made its appearance.

In the forepart of his 63-page booklet on the industry, Hays briefly sketches the progress of the motion picture from its infancy in the "nickelodeon" days to the time when it became one of the foremost of American industries. Its phenomenal growth was due, Hays believes, to the fact that "the nation required a method of universal expression." In these chapters the early patent situations is touched upon, credits are bestowed upon some of those who pioneered and the establishment of the major portion of production in California discussed.

In succeeding chapters, efforts of the M.P.P.D.A. in effecting organization within the industry receives considerable attention and statistics are given to prove the author's claims. Turning from arbitration and other subjects, Hays takes a not too mild rap at censorship and what has been accomplished to lessen regulation of this nature.

The closing chapters of Hays' book are devoted to the development of the sound picture. Here he pays due tribute to the Warners for their efforts in the pioneer days and details the history-making premiere of Vitaphone shorts and "Don Juan" at Warners theatre and the subsequent showing of "The Jazz Singer." Due credit is also given to the electrical companies for their research work which made possible the recording and reproduction of sound on film and dise, and projection to the screen.

Official German Trade Unit Reorganizing

Berlin.—Spitzenorganization, trade association of the German industry, by unanimous vote of members, will represent the entire German industry. A new committee of ten members will rule the body. Exhibitors, distributors and producers are each represented by two appointees, while studios, educational producers, technicians and laboratories have one member on the governing hoard. The trade association will not huy or show any picture in which an artist who has committed breach of contract appears.

gets the axe in Ontario. "Dawn," for instance, was barred absolutely in Ontario, but shown without restrictions in Manitoba and other provinces.

Film eircles, therefore, are convinced that the time is ripe for one central board which will act for the whole country. To this proposal certain objections have been raised. The question of Federal versus provincial jurisdiction arises. There is considerable revenue from the business of censoring, and the provinces, in some cases, feel that checking films is their particular business. They would object to Federal authorities taking over the task.

Joint Board Means Trouble

To offset this the suggestion has been made that a censor board made up of one representative from each province he formed, that the expenses be divided on a pro rata basis, and the revenues split up in the same manner. Here, the situation in Quebec intervenes. With a population which is overwhelmingly French, and where, for example, such things as references to divorce are stricken out, no set of rules could be drawn up which would be applicable to the French and English-speaking sections of the eountry.

Apparently, no official action along these lines is contemplated, but Canadian film circles protest that the multiplication of censorship in a country of ten millions, causes unnecessary and costly delays and also entails financial losses for them.

"Treasure Girl" First To Be Made By Santley

Joseph Santley, Broadway stage producer who, as exclusively announced in Motion Picture News recently, has signed with Pathe to supervise a series of musical comedies and revues, will probably make "Treasure Girl," by George Gershwin first.

Censors Grow Strict

Toronto.—Canadian censors are ready to tighten the screws unless something is done about what they hold to be objectionable types of stories. In such classification appear subjects emphasizing violation of law, underworld life, promiscuous use of firearms, sex problems, nudity, the helittling of or reflecting upon religious heliefs or ceremonies, excessive use of intoxicants, misrepresentations of college or social life, false versions of history.

Anything that falls into these categories will be submitted to minute inspection from now on. This was emphasized at a national censor conclave held here this week.

27 U. A. Offices Hang In Balance

London.-The future of United Artists' exchange system on the Continent is contingent upon conclusions drawn by Joseph M. Schenek on his impending European trip. He is aboard the Bremen.

A number of United Artists producers hold the opinion that silent pictures are out insofar as Old World markets are coneerned and that the flow of foreign versions of talkers will not be sufficient to warrant maintenance of the exchanges. Schenck will investigate and upon the results of his observations will the future be determined. The move would have no effect on the distribution system in England or English-speaking countries.

United Artists maintains 27 exchanges in Europe, exclusive of nine in Great Britain. In Belgium, the company operates out of Brussels. Czechoslovakia is handled from Prague; Denmark from Copenhagen and Finland from Helsingfors; French business is managed from offices in Paris, Bordeaux, Lille, Lyon, Marseilles and Strasbourg. German exchanges include Berlin, Dusseldorf, Frankfort, Hamburg and Leipzig. The Hague is headquarters for Holland. Italian exchanges total eight and are located in Rome, Bologna, Florence, Genou, Milan, Naples, Trieste and Turin. There is one office in Norway at Oslo; in Spain at Barcelona and in Sweden at Stockholm. The Balkans are handled from Vienna and Berlin.

Lane Going To Europe

Lupino Lane arrived in New York yesterday from Hollywood, en route to London where he will soon appear in "Silverwings," a musical, at the London Hip. Prior to his departure from the Coast, Lane appeared in "Bride of the Regiment" for First National.

Women's Club Wired

San Francisco.-The Western Women's Club has installed Preddy sound apparatus to screen foreign product, operating along lines of the art theatres.

Apple And Spud Show

Indianapolis.-The newest wrinkle in freak admissions is the potato and apple matinee program to be sponsored at neighborhoods by local exhibitors in cooperation with the Indorsers of Photoplays philanthropic committee. The "stock" admissions will be turned over to charity.

In "Conference"

Hollywood.-Much interest was aroused in the film colony when the country's greatest "pro" golfers appeared in action at Hillerest Country Club.

One prominent producing executive wanted to see Walter Hagen in a semifinal match. A story conference with two writers interfered with his plans, so the executive informed the writers he had an important engagement with his attorney that afternoon and the conference would have to be postponed till the following day.

The writers, having nothing to do, decided that it would be a good time for them to take in the golf tourna-ment—so away they went. Naturally they met the executive at the fifth hole! No explanations were necessary or given.

Films At 5,000 Ft. Above Ground Shown By TAT Unit

Transcontinental Air Transport now provides film entertainment in all planes, which connect with trains in a 48-hour coast-to-eoast schedule.

The projector used weighs only 9 pounds. The complete outfit, including batteries, weighs less than 45 pounds. A screen is erected in front of the passengers, just behind the pilot's coekpit, in such a position that every one gets a good view of the program, which consists of two cartoon comedies and a newsreel, changed twice weekly.

Conncil To Consider Plans For F-P Vancouver House

Vancouver.—Amendments to the zoning by-law to provide for erection of a theatre on Broadway, between Fir and Pine, by Famous Players will be prepared by a special committee, which also will consider the question of eliminating a lane through the property desired for this development. Mayor W. H. Malkin appointed four aldermen to consider the difficulties.

Business Normal. Zukor Declares

Washington.—General business conditions in the motion picture industry are normal, and leaders are very much encouraged over the outlook, Adolph Zukor reported to the President at a conference attended by Jesse L. Lasky, Sam Katz, and Emannel Cohen.

"We are looking forward to increased activity in the motion picture business next year," Zukor declared, "and we will go ahead with our next annual program just as we had planned, without any let-up, because we do not anticipate any slump. So far, we have not felt a slump anywhere. If pessimism exists in the ranks, it is concentrated in the minds of the theorists and financiers. The rank and file of the public are going along just the same as ever.'

Zukor supported Hays in the latter's statement that business in the industry was 15 per cent ahead of 1928.

Love Comes Along

(RKO-All Dialogue) Big Box-Office

(Reviewed by Alvin Meyers)

BEBE DANIELS may have surprised in "Rio Rita." In "Love Comes Along" she will absolutely goal them. Her work in "Rita" is nothing to compare with this latest effort. All of which simply means that "Love Comes Along" is box-office and hig box-office at that.

The story has its weaknesses. The virtuous dancing girl—the bold bad caballero who has designs on her—the simple seaman with whom she falls in love and the South American at-mosphere have all become familiar. But here it is done in a charming manner.

Lloyd Hughes as the sailor uncovers a pleasing singing voice—he will be much in demand. Ned Sparks as his buddy is a panic—can get more laughs from single line than were written in it. Montagu Love, handicapped by a broad dialect and a broad characterization does excellently. Rupert Julian directed with a fine understanding.

Without pomp, with no scenes in color, devoid of the revue complex "Love Comes Along" can stand with any in its appeal to the public. Comedies will go well.

Pointed Heels

(Paramount-All Diologue) Neat Programmer

(Reviewed by Alvin Meyers)

WITH a title that lends itself to all sorts of excellent exploitation "Pointed Heels" should draw them in. It joins the procession of back-stage stories, but it has individual merits on which it can stand. A chorine marries a rich boy—he is promptly disinherited. She supports the house. They part when both are convinced they are hampering each other's chance for success.

William Powell as a rich theatrical producer is his usual suave self. You may be sure that he will be well liked in this. Fay Wray as the girl is sweet in a role that offers her little in the way of opportunity. Phillips Holmes as the boy, although a newcomer to the flickers is the boy, although a newcomer to the flickers is excellent and convincing. Watch him closely in future efforts. Comedy is supplied by "Skeets" Gallagher and Helen Kane. The former is really funny and will get plenty of laughs—the latter hoop-a-doops in her own inimitable manner. Edward Sutherland's direction keeps this moving at an engaging pace. "Pointed Heels" is not outstanding but it is of satisfactory program calibre and will please of satisfactory program calibre and will please the majority.

Use broad comedies and novelties-you won't need music.

Hell's Heroes

(Universal—All Dialogue) Fine Outdoor Talker

(Reviewed by Walter R. Greene)

PLENTY of audience value in this for all types of audiences. Should do substantial business with a proper advertising campaign behind it. Adapted from Peter B. Kyne's story "The Three Godfathers," the picture is an excellent presentation of characterizations through both action and dialogue. The story is particularly strong.

Presenting Charles Bickford, Raymond Hatton and Fred Kobler as three bandits of the western country, the story opens with a bank robbery and a wild dash across the desert. They find a new-born baby in an abandoned wagon, and promise the dying mother to take the child back to the mining town. Tense drama is provided when the three start back although certain death awaits them for the robbery. A scant water supply serves to heighten the dramatic punch during the trip over the desert. There is no romantic interest but plenty of punch in the transformation of the bad men. Charles Bickford again demonstrates he is starring timber in talkers, while Raymond Hatton and Kohler give exceptional characterizations.

Broad comedies with "draw" names needed to help get them in.

Produced and distributed by Universal, From "The Three Godfathers" by Peter B, Kyne, Adaptation, scenario and dialogue by Tom Reed, Directed by Wi-liam Wyler, Photographed by George Robinson, Length, 6,300 feet, Running time about 1 hour, 20 mins. Release date, Ian. 5, 1930,

The Fighting Legion

(Universal—All Dialogue) Action Western O. K.

(Reviewed by Don Ashbaugh)

HE FIGHTING LEGION" has an interesting, although no particularly creditable story. But it has plenty of action, a good cast, and Maynard's remarkable riding. Andiences that like westerns—and there are many-will find this one entirely to their liking.

From the time Maynard and his pal, Cloudy, find their way to Bowden to get the man who shot their ranger friend, the fast action never lags. The start of the friendship between the ranger and the pair is presented with a new and interesting twist. The Hook Brothers, three of the wildest hombres in the country, add a needed bit of comedy to the production. Romance is provided by Dorothy Dwan, who is especially good as a type.

"The Fighting Legion" will prove decidedly satisfactory with audiences that go for action pictures of western setting.

Surrounding bill should consist of broad comedy and short musicols.

Produced by Ken Maynard Prod. Released by Universal. Story, adaptation, scenario and dialogue by Bennett Cohn. Directed by Harry J. Brown. Photographed by Ted McCord. Length undetermined. Running time approximately 1 hour, 5 mins. Release date not set.

Hit The Deek

(RKO-All Pialoune Another Filmusical Hit

(Reviewed by Walter R. Greene) THERE'S plenty of musical entertainment in "Hit The Deck," and the production rates to do substantial business. Transposed to the screen deliberately as a filmed musical comedy that enjoyed success on the stage, the picture has everything of the stage show plus the added advantages of picture construction.

The song hit "Hallelujah" provides the standout number in the film, which easily tops any other sequence. It was an original number inserted in the picture for a spectacle chorus en-semble. Jack Oakie is the most prominent film semble. Jack Oakle is the flost profilment film name among the leads. Others are recruited from the stage. Oakle is a hit as the tough tar, while Polly Walker is excellent in the feminie lead. Ethel Clayton, Wallace MacDonald and Harry Sweet—all film players, are good—but have small parts. Tiger Rose

(Warners-All Dialogue) Lukewarm, That's All (Reviewed by Alvin Meyers)

THIS is a veritable Babel. Too many dia-lects. Monte Blue's Irish brogue does not sit right, nor does Tully Marshall's Scotch burr. Added to these are Lupe Velez natural accent, Grant Withers as the Yankee and a French Canadian lover. The effect is none too pleasing.

In this story of the mounted police officer who gets his man and lets him go for love of the girl, Lupe Velez is the outstanding feature. She handles her role very nicely. Aside from her performance the only noteworthy aspect of the picture is its magnificent scenic setting. The melodramatic nature of the story is overplayed almost to the point of heing made satirical.

The combination of the title, which is well known, and the cast should help considerably. Play this cast to the utmost but do not promise too much for the film.

Use brood comedy and cartoon shorts-the feature is heavy.

Meistersinger

(Moviegraph—Silent)

Heavier Than The Opera

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

THIS is a German-made picture based on the Richard Wagner opera, "Der Meistersunger," All Wagnerian works are heavy, but this picture is heavier than the opera itself. In addition, this has the drawback of a costume period film. The only chance that it has to get any more it in wighterfreed that are the second secon any money is in neighborhoods that are strongly German.

The story is that of a German who has ambi tion to become mayor of his town. The town crier is willing to aid providing he can have the hand of the daughter. The town's shoemaker also loves her, but she, in turn, loves a young man she believes is apprentice to the shoe and tribulations of the lovers are played up, with the nobleman finally being cast into jail only to be freed when the town crier is convicted of plagiarism of the poem written by the shoemaker and given to the nobleman to

Lilies Of The Field

(First National-All Dialogue)

Just A Lot Of Film

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

A FAR-FETCHED treatment of William J. Hurlbut's play to which is added nothing by way of distinction in performance, dialogue or direction—put them all together and they spell "Lilies of the Field."

This yarn of a young woman who turns lily only after an unjust divorce loses her baby for her is artificial, stilted and more often impossible than otherwise. Through it, Corinne Griffith moves at leisurely pace, striking a level in her performance that never interests. Miss Griffith is an outled treat that never interests. Griffith is an optical treat, but an audible pain. Her voice is dull, lacking in modulation and singularly so in dramatic inflection. Talkers won't help her any.

The treatment, furthermore, is quite suggestive. You are never permitted to make any mistake about the girls and how they get by. It's all there, right down to a prosurace toward the close. Unnecessary and merely a considerably out of gear. It directorial touch considerably out of gear. added nothing to the picture except perhaps a bit of realism which isn't that at all. The Lost Patrol

(Pro Parria Films, Ltd.-Silent)

Fair War Story

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

THIS looks like most typical British-made productions. It couldn't have cost more than a little nickle to make. There are eleven men in the cast, a few shots of some desert sand dunes and the best of the action is all in one outdoor set. The result is a good two-recler that has been dragged out to feature length. From the box-office standpoint, the best bet that the picture has is the fact that the "Mc-Laglen" name can be used because Vic's brother, Cyril is in it.

"The Lost Patrol" is the story of eleven men of the British Army lost in the desert of Arabia. They go out on patrol and from that point there is shown how they die off one by one. No love interest of any kind, although there are brief snatches to show the reason for the men being in the army. Cyril McLaglen hicks as though he might develop into a trouper if given the chance.

A couple of good shorts with laughs are necessary to lighten the tragic note of this one,

Dangerous Business

(Tiffany-All Dialogue)

Very Good Box-Office

(Reviewed by Walter R. Greene)

HERE'S another picture of wild youth with plenty of complications, parties, jazz and music to make it box-office. The story is not nusic to make it box-office. The story is not particularly smooth in unfolding because of necessary cutting down to release length; but, withal, it moves in fast tempo.

"Daugerous Business" is the initial production of Halperin Brothers for Tiffany. It has a racy, sexy, fast story, a good cast of "draw" names, sext is read to expect the production of and is made-to-order fare similar to "Our Mod-ern Maidens," that should rate it plenty of bookings in week-run houses.

The story has a new setting for a rather worn theme. A rich college youth becomes the target for a blackmailing "party girl" and the usual complications are ironed out before he can return to his real sweetheart. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., is entirely capable in the featured spots and Marie Prevost gets over big in a semi-comedy role. Jeanette Loff is satisfactory, and the same role. Jeanette Loll is satisfactory, and the same goes for Judith Barrie, a newcomer.

Cartoon comedics or slapstick should fit well, Produced by Halperin Prod. Released by Tiffany. From novel by Edwin Balmer. Adapted by Monie Katterjohn. Good Program Feature

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

HERE is a dialogue feature that is a semi-western with Hoot Gibson as star and just misses being a good one. It starts out like the 20th Century and finishes like a slow freight. All of which is too darn bad, for good pictures are scurce enough, especially those that have a little western atmosphere. In the class C and D theatres it should be sure fire.

Gibson plays the role of the son of steel mill owner. Dad wants him to go to work in the mill, but the boy has other ideas. He'd rather loaf, so he pleads ill-health. Finally his dad calls in a doctor who advises that the boy needs some strenuous outdoor life and suggests a touring wild west show. The hoy joins and finds a girl with the show who is a wildcat. He makes up his mind to tame her and finally succeeds. Eugenia Gilbert who plays opposite the star looks like a real bet.

Put a good fast comedy right after the feature as the finish lets down badly.

The Awful Truth

Clever, Amusing, High Class

(Reviewed by James P. Cunningham)

A DARB of a comedy. Essentially a class picture. Ina Claire, long a darling of Broadway, demonstrates here that she knows all that Hollywood knows and a few additional She is a tonic and a splendid comedienne.

The picture deals with the drawing room. It's one of the smartest affairs since sound came Story slight, but the dialogue, culled directly from the stage play of the same name, is charming and scintillating. Miss Claire is the young society matron who suffers from lack of her husband's attention. An affair with another man develops—you never know whether serious or otherwise—also a separation. Then the deadly female of the species moves calculatingly and with precision in her efforts to win back the husband, since she loves him and he loves her. How she does it? Darkened Rooms

(Paramount-All Dialogue)

Satisfying Entertainment

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

As satisfying entertainment as the reading of a good short story would be. Evelyn Brent is starred and gives a most convincing performance, while Neil Hamilton playing opposite delivers as he usually does. From a boxoffice standpoint there is nothing about the picture that will cause them to break down the doors, but it could be handled along the lines of an expose of fake spiritualistic mediums.

Hamilton, in the role of a photographer at a beach amusement resort, decides to take up fortune telling and spiritualism in order to clean up a young fortune. He has as his assistant in the photographic gallery a chorus girl who has gone broke. She's in love with him and wants to stop his get-rich-quick scheme be-fore he gets caught and goes to jail. She manages to do this successfully and the two live happily ever afterward shooting shots of sailors and their ever-changing sweetics.

A couple of good musical numbers and a gag comedy would go nicely with this one.

Talk Of Hollywood

(Sono-Art-Warld Wide-All Dialogue)

Hokum Comedy

(Reviewed by Don Ashbaugh)

A S long as "Talk of Hollywood" is confined to Jewish wise-cracks dispensed by Nat Carr it passes muster. But after it wanders into tawdry romantic melodrama it falls flat.

The story concerns a picture producer and his trials and tribulations when the talkie era hits the business. If the picture had been confined to this theme it would have had possibilities of getting across as a hokum comedy. It keeps moving until about the third reel but dies thereafter. The plot rambles off into slush about how father is taken to the cleaners and the boy friend pawns his shirt to save the bacon.

Fay Marbe, a graduate of the New York musical comedy stage makes her screen debut here. A couple of songs are spotted for her. She has a mean pair of eyes and a cute wiggle. However, she needs much more to get by. Hope Sutherland and Sherline Oliver do nice work, Nat Carr is the standout.

It will take exceptionally strong shorts of varied nature to put this across.

The White Sheik

(Sono-Art-World Wide-Silent) Fairly Interesting

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

I F you like reading literature like "Revolt In The Desert," the chances are that you will find something interesting in this British International production. That pegs its appeal as one of those things that the literary set will go for. In the regular run of picture houses it will do nicely as part of a double feature bill. In the "arty" houses it will undoubtedly get a little play.

The story is an adaptation from the novel "King's Mate" by Rosita Forbes and concerns an English girl who travels into the hills surrounding Fez and is taken captive by the hill tribe headed by a White Sheik who detains her for her own safety because he knows a bandit tribe has occupied all the passes leading to the city. The sheik is compelled to fight a duel and after that marries her as a protection from the natives. In the end she discovers that she really loves him. Of the cast Jameson Thomas carries away honors. Lillian Hall-Davis plays the lead indifferently. The outstanding woman in the cast is Julie Suedo as a native servant.

With a silent picture, the best in shorts is necessary. That's what you need in this case.

Nosferatu, The Vampire

(Film Arts Guild-Silent)

Morbid And Depressing

(Reviewed by Freddie Schoder)

THE program states that this picture was "inspired by motives from 'Dracula'." The word "Dracula" is played up as strongly as the title and in the advertising in front of the house the same general scheme is carried out. The picture itself in procedure is carried out. picture itself is a most morbid and depressing affair without entertainment value. It will not be acceptable anywhere except in the "arty houses. For the regular picture houses it is a "bust" before it starts.

This is a foreign-made production directed by F. W. Mirriau. It must have been made in the early days of his directorial efforts. The story deals with a vampire who spreads plague and death wherever he goes and is a vague yarn hard to follow with several sequences that have a tremendous part to do with the plot introduced most haphazardly.

There is no one in the cast that bears mentioning for none of them is known in this

The Film Guild ran a double feature bill with this one using Raymond Griffith's old silent com-edy, "Hands Up." That saved the show.

The Manxman

(British International-Silent)

Ordinary, That's All

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

HALL CAINES "The Manxman" is here again. Seems as if every so often a producer decides that one of the Caine works must be remade. This edition proves a fairly inter-esting silent version of the novel and the chances are that in the Class C and D houses with a daily change of program it will get by.

The cast on this occasion is a fairly good one with Anny Ondra in the role of Kate giving a performance that at times suggests she might be capable of far greater things. There is the suggestion of a blonde vamp about this girl that might make her valuable for America.

The story of the triangle love affair between Pete Quilliam, Philip Christian and Kate Cregeen is too well known to detail here. In direc-tion there are several neat touches, but they are so few and far between that there is no general strength to the production.

The principal objection to the production is that it has been made in routine tassion is nothing of brilliance about the direction to that it has been made in routine fashion. There lift it out of the ordinary run of pictures. have seen dozens exactly like it.

Even in the daily change houses a strong comedy bill should be played with this feature to make it hold up.

Produced by British International Films. Distrib-uted by Ufa Eastern Div., Inc. Story by Hall Caine. Scenario by Elliot Stannard, Directed by Alfred Hitchcock. Photographed by J. J. Cox. Length, ap-prox. 6,800 feet. Running time 1 hr. 11 mins. Re-lease date, Dec. 14, 1929.

With Car And Camera Around The World

(Wanderwell Expedition-Silent)

Freak Travelogue

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

THIS is a freak. In some of the small towns the picture might get over on the strength of a ballyhoo with the principals of the expedition and their automobiles parading the streets and making personal appearances. Otherwise there isn't a chance for it anywhere.

The picture is just a serial diary of the trip that two or three couples made from Paris to the Orient, into Manchuria, to South America and finally to South Africa. It covers a period of ten years of traveling by automobile in which time more than 100,000 miles were traveled. Capt. Walter Wanderwell, accompanied by his wife and their two children, made the entire trip. At times there were three cars in their party and at other times two. The most interesting portion of the trip are the views of China and South Africa. But it is just a travel picture and nothing more. No thrills, no laughs, no nothing.

Mrs. Wanderwell-looks like a coined name incidentally has a camera complex. She ca-vorts before the lens until the procedure be-comes both tiresome and boresome. All of which makes an unimportant picture decidedly more so.

If you do happen to play it build a strong show around it. You'll need it.

Produced and distributed by Capt. Walter Wander-well, Author, God, for He created the earth and its people. Scenario by All Peoples. Photographed by Walter Wanderwell. Length, about 6,000 feet. Run-ning time, 1 hr, 10 mins. Release date Dec. 14, 1929.

Sound Comedies Highlight The Week's Short Subjects

"Sleeping Cuties"

(Darmour-RKO-2 Recls) A Laugh Getter

THIS will get plenty of guffaws. A combination of Witwer story, Lewis Foster direction and Alberta Vaughn should be good for laughs—and is. An acrobatic troupe suffering a lay-off is invited through the young girl of the outfit to attend a reception in her honor, there to meet the family of her fiance. reception is very high-hat. That is, until the troupe heeds the artistic urge and starts doing its stuff. Tumbling, handstands and trapeze gyrations panic the affair. Just when the girl is taking a walkout powder in disgrace it is discovered that her would-be father and mother-in-law are ex-troupers, an old sharpshooting team. The guns are brought out and all ends happily, though noisily. The idea is novel although far-fetched even for slapstick.

Will suit any program-especially fine to lighten a heavy feature.

"Brother For Sale" (Universal Talkie-2 Reels)

Sunny-Jim Scores Again
'UNNY JIM, and "Frisbie," furnish a darn good comedy number. Baby "Frisbie" is cute, but Sunny Jim doesn't think so, especially when nother's bridge friends fondle Frisbie, to the exclusion of young Jim. A little jealousy, coupled with the "nurse-maid" reputation de-veloped when the gang pipes Jim pushing baby brother in his carriage, results in Frisbie being "lost" to a passing stranger, who is caught by his sweetie with the baby in his arms. She breaks the engagement on the spot, thinking the boy friend was married, and influences her big brother to beat him up, which is done after some funny capers and a wild chase. winds up in a baby parade on the main stem, where Frisbie is abandoned. He cops first prize right out of a clear sky, and finally reaches home safely with Sunny Jim. Directed by Harold Beaudine.

The audience will get a kick out of the kiddies' dialogue. They will appeal to all.

"Pathe Audio Review—No. 35"

(Sound-1 Recl) Good Material In This

N Unit No. 1, the camera reveals an underwater battle between two Betta Splendens Cambodia, famous fighting fish of Siam, which, Pathe claims, appears for the first time in films. They supply lots of action before the battle ends with the death of one. In the second unit, Sue Hastings stages another marionette show, dealing with talking headliners on a vaudeville bill. It provides good entertainment. The Bowery—old and new—is pictured in the third and last vest of this real. part of this reel.

Diversified sound material suitable for almost any place on your program, working in well with a short comedy-drama.

"Sitting Pretty" (Universal Silent—2 Reels) Fair Comedy

NOTHING to get excited about. Arthur Lake falls in love with Marillyn when he sees her picture in a newspaper, just hefore he is sent by his boss to make a jewelry delivery. While on the train, Arthur accidentally meets her. His clumsiness messes things up a bit, a la slapstick, and when the principals reach their destination, Marillyn holds a pretty low opinion of our hero. Arthur soon discovers the jewelry was purchased by Marillyn's parents for her birthday, and is invited to stick around for the party, which starts off with horseback riding and sports. Arthur's freakish "green" antics in the saddle are mistaken for trick stunts, and, when he suddenly downs a thieving butler who is about to skip with the family plate, is proclaimed hero—and wins the girl.

A fast comedy—but not too funny, support of other short material.

"The Last Stand"

(Universal Silent—2 Reels)

A Hard-Riding Stock Western

THEY use plenty of gun-fire in this one, and "don't spare the 'orses." After all, that's the same principle for all Westerns. Ed Kemp, the same principle for all Westerns. Ed Kemp, government scout, rescues John Romain's two children who are attacked by bad men. One of the "kids" is, conveniently, old enough to furnish the love interest. Kemp comes to the rescue a second time when the vandals raid Romain's cabin. Things look pretty bad, Kemp and Romain having used all of their ammunitions but the sheriff person sellent with the sheriff person tion—but the sheriff's posse gallops up just in time for a rescue. Billie, Romain's four-year-old son, is a clever little cowboy and handles his pony like an old rancher.

"A Very Merry Christmas"

"The Audience"

A certain theatre chain was inclined to discourage its managers from contributing to the pages of the Round Table Club (although they encourage the reading of same) because they felt that their own house organ may be neglected.

That is an entirely wrong attitude to take because they have far more to gain by encouraging their managers to be active on these pages than otherwise.

Why?

A man may be flattered day in and day out by the members of his immediate family, but it won't be long before such praise becomes monotonous and ceases entirely to be an incentive for greater things.

A manager is a man in the show business, out to accomplish all he possibly or humanly can for his organization, but he should be entitled to play to a larger and more representative audience than his own circuit.

The very men who have climbed to the top of the ladder at this time, were helped along the way by trade paper publicity. They were playing to the larger audience. And they reached a fine goal.

Then why should they in turn ask their present subordinates to hide their ability or confine it to the circuit they are working for?

Why not give them all the same chance to mount the ladder?

Not that we encourage the exploitation of vanity. Nor do we would want any manager to become a publicity "pest." But after all, we don't give them the opportunity of falling into that class. We never publish a man's own good opinion of himself.

What we do broadcast is his ideas. His method of operating a theatre. The way he sells his shows. The manner in which he advertises his attractions. Various problems always popping up in the line of a manager's duty.

If a man has ability he should have every right to let the rest of the industry know about it. If his "bosses" are afraid that someone else will give him a better job, then they don't deserve the faithful services he is rendering.

We could name, and with pride, several of the real outstanding circuits in these here United States who are always encouraging their managers to belong, and contribute, to our pages.

They recognize the good of this section for stimulating the efforts of their managers and they also recognize the right of their men to gain national publicity whenever they deserve it.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABL

I' ROUND TABLE CLUB

CHICAGO

Our trip to the mid-west capitol of the country was neither one of conquest or even in the nature of a good-will excursion. Primarily, it was just to say hello to a lot of old friends and perhaps meet one or two new ones. That we really met several dozen new ones made the trip all the more interesting. One impression, however, remains; Chicago can teach the whole wide world plenty about running theatres and honest-to-goodness showmanship.

"CHICK"

Must be some truth in that story about the crooks in Chi stealing anything and everything. Even the sun was missing during the time we were in the Windy City and if Ilal Young had not told us otherwise, we might still be sleeping, under the impression that they have twentyfour hours of night in that town.

Of course, they DO have nice theatres in Chicago. They have so many of them that Mr. & Mrs. Chi, with the children, must have one tough time trying to figure out which one to patronize. We were so bewildered with the rapid succession of monster picture palaces in the neighborhood sections that we found it rather difficult to believe we had left the Loop at all. But, according to friend guide (?), we were miles away from down-town and they WERE neighborhood houses.

Aaron Meltzer

One of the first citizens it was our pleasure to meet was Aaron Meltzer, manager of the Milford Theatre, a house of some fifteen hundred seats and busy passing along the latest styles in "sound pictures." We have a hunch we are going tt get better acquainted with Meltzer and perhaps some of his activities might even find their way to these pages. Who can tell? We shall see.

Tess Heraty

Of course, Tess Heraty will assuredly remain a most pleasant memory of our visit. Sort of makes you feel "right to hum" and there we were chatting away like a couple of long lost relatives, and funny thing how we both said nice things at the same time about Kitty Sullivan and New Haven, here's hoping Tess tells Kitty all the nice things we did say. You can never tell ichen Ell get to New Haven again and we always visit Kitty first shot out of the gun. Maybe it's because she has the same knack as Tess on making one so durned comfortable that they forget to say goodbye and just stay on forever and ever. Amen.

Jack Hess

No part of a story about Chi would be complete without some reference to Jack (J. J.) Hess, genial Director of Publicity and Advertising for the RKO Circuit operating in and around this part of the country. His wideawake activities in the show world among his theatres ought to make corking fine stuff for our own Club pages. And we've not despaired to interesting him sufficiently to come across with something very soon. You will find more about Jack and his advertising on "Great Gubbo" in next week's issue of the News. If you are on the alert for a good angle or tico, here is your chance to see how a highpowered publicity man makes up ad copy that "pulls 'em in," and how. . .!

Aaron Saperstein

Then, to get back to things theatrical, there was good natured Aaron Saperstein of the Garfield and Lexington Theatres, both closing for five days to be reopened with the latest sound equipment, Saperstein, is typical of the showmen that we know in days and years gone by. He can still "know what it is all obout" regardless of the big pressure and opposition and from some of the reports we heard about him and his brother, we shall look forward to seeing him on the next visit we make to Chicago.

Nat Ruttenberg

The Keystone Theatre, out on Sheridan Rd., was, of course, one of the stopping off places, even if only for a few moments, but it gave us the opportunity of meeting Nat Ruttenberg, the manager and also to look over one of the sweetest sounding sound houses in the town. Classy clientele, and a classy looking crew handling the house, Maybe Nat will eventually loosen up enough to tell something about his activities in handling that house. Especially how he trains his ushers to hand out that "downtown service appearance. It sure dresses up the place and gives it a nifty look. What say, Nat?

Bill Adler

And then Bill Adler, assistant to Jack and as nice a chap as you'd meet in many a mile of wondering. Bill takes a lot of worry off his chief's shoulders and unquestionably is filling an important post in the general scheme of things in the Chicago RKO office. We'd like to know a whole lot more about Adler and here's hoping we can get him steamed up enough to come across with some gossip. How about it, Bill? About eight thousand readers of these pages would like to know you better.

Jack Fink

It was just like old times to meet and shake hands with Jack Fink of the Fox Terminal Theatre. Jack is really our God-son by reason of a certain rechristening (???) and so we hold more than a possing interest in the gentleman. He has been out in Chi since he left us up in the wilds of Connecticut and as a booster for Joe Leo, he is second to none. There is a marvelous thrill in liking your own boss so much that you rave about him to everyone you meet, and Joe Leo holds that distinction as far as Jack Fink is concerned. Jack has promised to become a regular Club booster and member from now on and we are certain that his activities in that Terminal Theatre will make darned good reading on these pages. We will introduce Jack more intimately within the next few weeks and also tell you something about his house and staff.

Jules R. Moss

Jules, in the event you do not know it, was once the Publicity Director for the Lubliner & Trinz Circuit, and what memories that name brings forth in the history of theatrical activity of the middle west. But just the same Jules was one of the Charter Members of the Club and is still interested in our manifold doings for the managers and members. Right now his time is occupied as sales manager for the Chicago Show Printing Co., and his past experiences more than qualify him to make his post an important one. We sure hope that he continues to be an active Round Table Club member. What say, Jules? Oak?

CHICAGO!

Dave Dubin made that flying trip to New York to become an executive and now he's back in Chicago, without the executive post but with an interest in what looks like a movie gold mine in the shape of "Her Unborn Child." From all reports and indications, this one is going to clean up. Publix thinks so, because we understand they have booked it over the whole circuit. So here's wishing Dave all the good luck he so well deserves. (Listen, Dave, when you get into the millionaire class will you still say hello to us poor pepul? Hey, Hey. Attaboy?)

Can't mention things about the Windy City without bringing forth pleasant recollections of some of the boys who are right on the firing line putting the theatres over. And we don't mean all of these big four and five thousand seat palaces either. Just plain everyday movie houses, but serving the public to their best ability and presenting shows as they should be presented:

All of which brings to mind men like: . . . Irv Barr, of the Windsor Theatre, and . . who don't know about Irving's house down along fillum like: Itv Barr, of the Windsor Theatre, and ... who don't know about Irving's house down along fillum row! And then there was Alex Binanfield ... keeping in shape operating the Pershing Theatre ... while Hugh S. Borlaud spent at least thirty-five cents ... trying to get us on the 'phone ... the joke was on the telephone company ... we were in our room all the time ... if that wouldn't burn you up don't know what will ... and the same with Charlie Ryan ... he also called in vain ... and we did like wise ... but all's well that ends in Coffee Dan's ... so let's drown our troubles ... (if we have any) in a stein of mocha ... such Chi dissipation ... but our head is still aching from the racket down in Dan's ... but here ... let's not get away from the gang ... this time Dave Brotman who hold forth ... or maybe fifth ... at the Avaloe Theatre ... and yon have already heard ahout him right on these pages ... more later while we pass on to Henry Goldberg, of the Lincoln Hippodrome fancy name ... eh, wot! the theatre we mean ... not there? ... but listen here Henny ... but listen here Henny ... but listen here Henny ... but listen here Henny ... but listen here wait a bit ... while we introduce Samuel Blatt, of the Biograph Theatre ... twill be the the Hollywood Theatre ... what a team of running mates ... and two corking fine chaps. too ... Harry Hilmes from out the West End Theatre ... Tommy Hungerford, of the

THANKS HAL!

THANKS HAL!

It's kind of hard to use mere words in trying to express our thanks and appreciation to Hal Young, of the National Screen Service Chicago Office, for the thousand and one courteses he extended to us during our visit. As a guide, he is top-notch and as a "regular fellow" you must go a long distance to find his equal. Thanks, Hal, and maybe I'll have the opportunity of reciprocating. Who can tell?

Morris Rosenthal Goes West With St. Paul First Stop

Morris Rosenthal, whom you may recall as having been connected with the Century Circuit in Queens Village and more recently with the Publix organization in the big Times Square theatres, has now accepted an assignment to manage the Strand Theatre in St. Paul, Minn.

This assignment is distinctly a credit to Mr. Rosenthal, because it is not the easiest house in the world to handle, and if any one is capable of putting it across, we believe that Morris, will fit the bill.

It will be mighty interesting for the rest of us to note how he is going to make a success of this latest assignment by reading of his activities on the pages of the ROUND TABLE CLUB.

However, before we can do that, we will have to depend on Rosenthal sending us the necessary information regularly.

So long for the present, Morris, and best regards to Mollie.

P. S.—Do you want me to send you some earmuffs? P. P. S.—Latest news from the North indicates that Morris and Molly were last seen headed further North to locate at the Lyceum Theatre in Duluth, Minn. Listen Morris, drop me a post card when you reach the North Pole. Oak? (Regards to Santy Claus.)

CHICAGO NEWS!

A page cock-full of "meaty" news all about Chicago showmen will be a regular feature of Motion Picture News. If you are interested in the doings and personalities of this great centre of theatrical activity, read Chicago News every week in the trade publication that presents all the news while it is news.

A very serviceable hektograph for making schedules, bulletins, etc., for service staffs and other departments can be made at a reasonable cost by procuring the following: I quart hektograph compound, 2 tin pans about 10 in. by 18 in. by 2 in. in depth and a bottle of hektograph ink. Hektograph ribbon may be used in place of regular typewriter ribbon but is very hard to handle and soils easily.

Heat compound and pour the melted contents into the tins, allow to stand till hardened and the hektograph is ready for use.

Write or print the original copy of schedule or bulletin on good grade paper, using the hektograph ink. Let dry and your hektograph is now ready for use. It requires 24 hours for the ink impression to soak to the bottom of the compound making that space ready for use again. That is why it is well to make two hektographs instead of one.

Every member of our service staff is given one of these hektograph schedules with each change of programs and is thus always ready to answer all questions asked by patrons.

We also make special bulletins regarding attractions, etc., giving information about play-dates, pictures and events.

Art Smith Moves Out To Marion For The Publix Circuit

Art Smith, whom you may or may not recall from the wilds of New Jersey, but still more recently from the wilds of Publix and its big Broadway houses, has now settled down to demonstrate his livewire and high powered showmanship at the Paramount Theatre in Marion, Indiana.

It was our great pleasure to meet Art personally not very long ago, when he was just "raring to go" as they say out in the great wide open spaces (of New Jersey).

Here's wishing you all the luck in the world, Art, but remember you've got to keep the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages posted on what you are doing to make a rep for yourself with the Publix outfit. So long and lets hear from you early and often.

J. H. Webster says:

"I want to say that you have created a wonderful section in MOTION PICTURE NEWS that is read every week by our employees, and we assure you that it has been of great help to us on a great many pictures."

A. L. Lashway Used Novel Methods To Exploit This One

To give the two Black Crows in "Why Bring That Up?" effective publicity, when playing at the Olympia Theatre, Lynn, Mass.. Manager A. L. Lashway sent out 100 telegrams.

The telegrams were sent to all the larger factories and stores-being delivered by Western Union boys. In three of the department stores, permission was secured to have the telegrams passed around so that each employee would be sure to read it. This little stunt cost a pair of passes to each floor manager, but it was more than worth it.

By passing the telegrams around to each employee, it proved to be more effective than just posting them on the bulletin boards which aren't always read by every employee.

A ballyhoo was also used in the form of a loud speaker, three feet in height being placed before the main entrance three days in advance of picture. The advertising record used on a phonograph in the inner office was broadcasted to the loud speaker. The horn was draped and carried advertising matter on the picture. And the volume of the record could be lowered or raised higher just as deemed best. When at a high pitch, it could be heard for several blocks away.

Stolte Took Advantage Of A Good Advertising Angle

Manager A. G. Stolte used 150 danger signs with cooperative copy selling "Cock Eyed World" playing at the Paramount Theatre, Waterloo, Ia.

Most of these signs were placed on sidewalks through the business sections of the city and quite a few of them were placed where streets and sidewalks had been dug

Although the signs had no relative bearing on which theatre the picture was playing, it did, however, create the impression that the picture was a corking good comedy and had a decided influence in making the people want to see it.

And "SEZ ME" who is going to start any kind of an argument that Stolte put over a doggone good stunt? And another thing, "Sez Me" how come this guy Stolte ain't never contributed to the Round Table Club before this late date? And what's more, "Sez Me," if he don't come across with some "dope" about the great stuff he is engineering out there for Publix we are apt to get kinda peeved and go out there and tell him a

But, kidding aside, "A. G.," how about some information about your own past experiences in the show business. We would like to tell the rest of the "gang" more about you. Oak? Attaboy!

Harry Herman, Manager of the Paramount Theatre, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, has gained a tremendous amount of good will for his theatre by presenting a silver football trophy to Moray Elby, coach of the Coe College football team. The occasion for the presentation was a student rally held in the theatre prior to the Midwest conference championship game between Coe and Knox colleges. Horace "Cap" Hedges, Dartmouth grad and wellknown sports official, made the presentation speech on the stage of the Paramount Theatre, The football squad and school band were on hand to see their coach receive the handsome trophy. The show was interrupted long enough to permit the school band to play a few rousing football marches and let the cheer leaders do their stuff.

Needless to say, the students and the sport-minded townspeople turned out en masse to cheer themselves hoarse at the rally. The only cost to the theatre was the price of the football trophy and the house got that back many times on the night of the rally to say nothing of the good will they gained. It is stunts like this that establish the theatre in the good graces of a local college and permit the house to crash football parades with floats and distribute advertising literature at the home games.

For the opening of that boisterous comedy of marine life. "The Cock-Eyed World," Harry intend in a body. The mem-ballyhoo in front of the Paramount.

From reports that have reached CLUB headquarters, we are given to understand that Mr. Davis has one of the most perfect sound installations in any theatre of that size, and we are certain that the theatregoers in and around Reidsville, will respond with their patronage for the fine product that the Rockingham Theatre will show.

The ROUND TABLE CLUB wishes to extend to Mr. Davis and his associates its heartiest congratulations for the success of the new theatre.

Still Another Angle!

I once used the rather peculiar expression, that to the observing and alert showman there is evidence of showmanship on all sides of him if he would train his mind and his eyes and his sense of hearing to be on the lookout for it.

I will admit that this is rather a queer way of leading up to a subject, but, at any rate, it best describes the very point which I am coming to. There are always ideas that can be taken, regardless of where they originate and turned to good advantage in the show business. For example, on my recent visit to Pittsburgh, where I was the guest of "Ace" Berry, Larry Jacobs and the Stanley Circuit boys, I went to the hotel to rest up before going to the meeting, and in looking through a hotel publication under the name of William Penn Points, on the inside cover of this most interesting book, I found a subject headed "The Eppley Pledge of Contact Employees," which read as follows:

I will, to the very best of my ability, Try:

To be a gentleman.

To render 100 per cent service.

To be courteous to PATRONS and to fellow employes.

To work willingly and cheerfully. To be pleasant and wear a smile.

To be alert to anticipate PATRONS' desires and to surprise them with services and attentions they do not expect. To speak pleasantly, to say "yes sir," and "no sir," and "I thank you," and "please," in a pleasant way.

To obey our rules because I realize that rules are necessary in a business organization.

To interpret intelligently the policy of our organization.

To practice headwork and heartwork because I know that these virtues are indispensable to success.

To strengthen myself by study, observation and practice.

To keep my temper.

To avoid arguing with PATRON.

To make every PATRON satisfied and happy.

Note: We have substituted the word "patron" for that of "guest" which appeared in the original.

H. G. Santos Now Using Colored Program Covers

Our good friend Henry G. Santos, manager of the Tip Top Theatre in the Hawaiian Islands, continues to surprise us with each succeeding issue of his house organ. You may recall that we reproduced one of the latest of his house organs of the wonderful strides he has made in the get up of this important piece of advertising used by the Tip Top Theatre.

Now we have before us one of the prettiest colored-front programs that we have seen in quite a long time, and it comes from this far off showman.

Santos has made wonderful strides in his exploitation and showmanship, and it is naturally a great satisfaction to us here at CLUB headquarters to be able to note how he takes advantage of every angle that means more business or more prestige for his theatre.

Great work, Santos, and let's hear some more about what you are doing down there in Hawaii.

Matt Reilly Continues To Use High Pressure Tactics

Just because you've been seeing a lot about Matt Reilly on these pages should not give you the false impression that Matt is a particular pal of ours.

As a matter of fact, we haven't even met Reilly as yet, although we are in great hopes of meeting him on our prospective trip through New England right after the first of the year.

But all of the above was not intended to detract from this unusual window display which was made up by Matt Reilly to sell "The Sophomore" when that timely football attraction played at the Victory Theatre in Providence, R. I. Just look over this photograph carefully and we are certain you will agree 100 per cent with our opinion that it is a business-getting piece of work.

You might also keep in mind that the sign above the top of the window was likewise good publicity, and this sign painted on white paper, set so as to conceal the store window lights, gave it added attractiveness, by reason of the bright lights reflected behind it and made the letters stand ut. Maybe this was an accident, or maybe it was carefully thought out. At any rate, here's a window that Matt Reilly, or anyone else could be proud of. Get wise to yourself, boys, there's something doing every minute if you're on the alert.

Talking about Matt Reilly, and his great exploitation and hallyhoo activities, just cast your showman's eye on the two gay troubadors who were helping to make things quite merry during the showing of "Rio Rita' at the Victory.

We wonder which of the good looking gentlemen in this picture answers to the name of Matt Reilly. Not being able to tell you at this moment who grahs the honors, we will have to trust to luck and to Matt's good nature, to send us one of his own photos in the near future.

What do you say, Matt, haven't we given you enough good breaks to warrant a come back with a good photo? You answer it, will von?

George A. Delis Finds Our Pages Very Interesting

Introducing new members via their photographs, happens to be one of our pet and most pleasurable pastimes. In this instance, it is not one whit less, in our introducing to our large membership and followers of these pages, Mr. George A. Delis, who manages the Olympic Theatre in Steubenville, Ohio.

This town has already become famous on the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages through the activities of William Hendricks, and we shall expect Mr. Delis to continue the live interest of Steubenville, by passing on to us his different and varied activities along the lines o f showmanship and exploitation.

One of the little stunts that he happened to pass on to us was used in connection with "The Gold Diggers of Broadway'' and consisted of a little pay envelope with large type reading "For Men Only" in smaller type at the bottom of the envelope was "Confidential Tip."

Upon opening up the envelope, we found a neat little eard much smaller than the envelope itself, which carried the warning to beware of the Gold Diggers of Broadway.

It's a great little stunt, and while not new in any way it is always good for any house that has not been using this type of stuff too frequently.

Let's see what else you can pass on to us, George, and see if you can't continue the fine reputation of Mr. Hendricks who in our opinion is a doggone fine showman. Best regards to Bill.

Fox Metropolitan Activities

Gleaned from "Fox Progress," official house organ for Fox Metropolitan Circuit.

H. D. Goldberg is striking the key-note for an economy drive which it is expected will lope off a lot of unnecessary expense on the overhead of the various houses on the Chain. More power to you, "H. L."

Manager L. H. Raymond, of the Fox Pontiac Theatre, at Saranac Lake, N. Y., tied up with a local radio station for a onehour broadcast every week. Besides music furnished by the theatre organ and non sync, the title of the feature is announced and Manager Raymond gives a brief synopsis of it. Good stuff, Raymond.

Morris Ratoff just joined the Metropolitan Chain where he will work in the Publicity Department. Programs, paper, trailers and other incidentals of this nature come under his detartment.

Tom Olsen, who has been the editor of several of the Fox Progress issues, is now Pub licity Director for the upstate division with headquarters in Utica. He is succeeding Jack Harry Yette, the manager of the Liberty Theatre in Herkimer, N. Y., with the assistance of several of his theatre employees, built a knock-out airplane display for above the marquee of that theatre.

Phil Michalson, manager of the Ogden Theatre, in the Bronx, N. Y., comes to the theatre operation end of the game fresh from a good deal of experience in the production and distributing part of the industry. These other angles should stand him in good stead in the proper operation of his theatre.

Ed Emmery, of the Sunnyside Theatre, has finally put over his opportunity night with great success. More power to you, Ed.

A. E. Ford, manager of the Colonia The-atre, at Norwich, N. Y., grabbed off two full columns of space in his local paper in publicizing the style show which was staged at his theatre. This was a great angle for the house and Ford deserves a lot of credit.

Walter League, managing director of the Fox Park Plaza Theatre in N. Y. C., credited with being one of the finest houses in the Chain. continues to make new records for himself and his house. We have heard many things about this wideawake and aggressive manager, and it seems that he is destined to become a sig-man in the future doings of the Metropolitan organization.

Fred Stein, who assists Mr. Rinzler over in the Brooklyn Division recently gave up his freedom to marry Esta Sacks, who is Mr. Rinzler's secretary. Their first child ought to be office boy for Mr. Rinzler, and that would make the trio complete. However, congratulations are in order, and we hasten to extend them.

Manager Wally Hass, over in the Jersey Division, has brought several useful musical aggregations to his stage and has succeeded in packing his house on each occasion. Great work, Wally, keep it up.

Alvin Greenwood, manager of the Fox Plaza

Theatre in Jersey has the whole town talking about his many exploitation outbursts. He re-about his many exploitation outbursts. He re-cently staged a regular circus parade to her-all the arrival of a midget troupe in Engle-wood when it played at the Plaza. Exploitation is the spice of the show business, so Alvin is more than living up to his fine reputation. (Editor's Note.—We should hate to close this first botch of paragrophs about the Fox Metropoli-tinn Playhouses without a word of praise for who-ever is responsible for getting out Fox Progress, the official house organ. It is chock full of inter-esting items to everyone on the Circuit, and should he an inspiration to the organization os a whole, Here's hoping that we see more of it.—"Chick."

Oscar M. Linn Used Novel Display To Attract Patrons

Having the available space in his foyer to work it out, Oscar M. Linn, Manager of the Comerford Theatre in Bloomsburg, Pa., picked up an entirely different sort of lobby display on both "Speedway" and "Why Bring That Up."

We are showing one of the two fine photographs that he sent us on this sort of display, and close inspection will reveal that he has hit upon something hoth attractive and different. His statement that the effect has drawn quite a little comment from the local and out of town patrons is sufficient proof that he has succeeded in what he started out to do.

This is fine work, and we certainly would like to have some more details as to how he is handling it with a view to passing on the information to our other members and readers. How about it, Oscar, can't you send us some more dope? Is this up against a wall, or on a shelf, or just what are the inside details of this fine looking display?

Sorry that I didn't get up to say hello to you as promised. Linn, but a bad cold kept me in my bed all during this week when I expected to be in your part of the country. So you will have to pardon the delay and we will both continue looking forward to shaking hands in the very near future. Remember me to Byron, and the rest of the Comerford boys who are regular followers of the ROUND TABLE CLUB activities each week.

"Four Feathers" Campaign Was Effective For Kenimer

Following along similar lines the stunt used by Earl Holden at the Fairfax Theatre, Manager Guy Kenimer used numbered conpons to sell "'Four Feathers' playing at the Victory Theatre, Tampa, Fla.

3,000 heralds—numbered 1-2-3-4 were distributed throughout the main section of town; the heralds showing a cut of a feather as well as copy about the picture, theatre and play dates and details of a free admission.

To the persons finding the numbered heralds 1-2-3-4 were admitted free but since there were only a comparatively small number of the number 3's, there weren't many free tickets issued. However, the stunt caused a lot of favorable talk and undoubtedly helped to publicize the picture.

This type of exploitation and advertising has been used with great success on any number of different attractions and is therefore valuable to all of us. Don't wait for "Four Feathers" to use it. You can tie it in with most any picture outstanding enough to warrant special exploitation or building up.

REMEMBER THE PHRASE:—"THE STUNT IS NEVER MARRIED TO THE PARTICULAR PICTURE WITH WHICH IT IS USED."

You can always switch it around to meet the picture or your local conditions. That is if you are awake.

Local Board Of Trade Boosts House For Reisman

Jules B. Reisman, wideawake manager of the Fox Criterion Theatre in Medford, Oregon, again demonstrates his fine showmanship hy crashing into the Local Chamber of Commerce Bulletin, which carried the following item conspicuously displayed:

Through the canriesy of the FOX THEATRES, a special CHRISTMAS MATINEE will be held on the morning of December 21, the Saturday before Christmas, at both the Criterion and Rialto Theatres, at which ALL CHILDREN WILL BE ADMITTED FREE. Special films are being obtained by Mr. Julius Reismann, manager of the Fox Theatres, and there will be a Santa Cluss present at each theatre to talk to the children. The object of this party is to get the children off the streets, and away from the parents so that they may do their last minute Christmas shopping unhampered by children. The object of this party is to get the size this fact in their newspaper ads a few days previous to the Christmas party. Fox Theatres are also cooperating by running a special "Shop Early" film during the next ten days.

It is hoped all merchants will cooperate in this program. If you have any questions, call 63.

This is fine work, Jules, and we would certainly be delighted to pass on any more of your activities, if you would just take the few moments necessary to keep us posted.

In addition to the activity above, Mr. Reisman is running a "Cast Off Clothes Matinee," which will be held on the morning of December 14th under the auspices of the ladies of the Lions Club, who will assume the responsibility for the distribution for all cld clothes coming in at the time.

He has enlisted the aid of the local Boy Scont Troop to assist at both theatres by receiving the clothes from the children as they enter the theatre and to also aid in the maintenance of order during the matince.

Both of these items are of tremendous interest, and we know that they will sound the right chord in the mind of every showman who reads this item. Thank you again, Jules, and our best regards to our many memhers and friends out on the Coast.

his experiences via these pages.

We shall look forward to hearing from you often and regularly.

Vogel Gettier used the old guessing contest to whip up lots of enthusiasm for "Sweetie" playing at the Capitol Theatre, Grand Island, Nebr.

One of the prominent confectionery stores located in the business district not only had a co-operative window display but also exhibited a huge bar of eandy of which persons might guess the weight—the nearest correct estimate entitled such person to free tickets to see the picture.

The candy weight estimates varied and although the winners were limited to a certain number, the contest evoked a lot of interest and caused a lot of talk which reflected itself in the excellent box-office receipts.

Gettier also had a full page co-operative layout—each ad making some reference to SWEETIE. Although there was no contest connected with this page tie-up, the page itself lent valuable publicity to the picture in making it one of the most popular attractions of the season.

Vogel is no stranger to these pages and it is mighty natural for us to pass along some feature of his exploitation activities. He has plenty of 'em up his sleeve. Now with a little encouragement he ought to keep passing them cut for the henefit of his brother members. What say, Vogel? Is it "Oak" with you?

Harry Goldberg A Fox-Met. Dynamo!

When you start listing the go-getting type of chain executives, please make certain that said list includes, among all others, Harry D. Goldberg.

In case you don't happen to know it, mny we take this means of informing you that Harry is the Supervisor of Theatres in New York. Bronx and Westchester County for the Fox Metropolitan Playhouses, and it is not idle flattery when we say that his division is one of the finest in the outfit.

Goldberg was, for many years, an independent theatre operator on his own hook, which accounts, in no small way, for the knowledge he has of the business and how to handle the house managers so as to make his division produce the best possible results.

Produce the best possible results.

He had been nssistant to H. B. Franklin when that gentleman was head of the Paramount Theatre Chain. later nssisted Dun Michalove in the operation of the Universal Chuin Theatres, (when Universal had some theatres to chain). He was the gentleman nuch read about in the trade press os handling the taking over and disposing of theatres, for the latter chain.

But, here, this is beginning to sound like the life history of Harry and after all we only set out to let you know just a "wee bit" about this most interesting personality of the metropolitun show-world.

When we conclude his story by telling you that his group of houses in the Fox Metropolitim Chain is turning in a big profit each and every week, then we have paid Mr. Goldberg the finest compliment we can think of. "CHICK"

Nat Silver Used Real Showmanship To Sell "Disraeli"

Nat Silver invited several influential townspeople to a private screening of "Disraeli" that later proved to he of material assistance in publicizing the picture playing at the Merrimack Square Theatre, Lowell. Mass.

Among the invited guests to the private screening were the entire faculty of the High School, the City Librarian, teachers from the Rogers School for girls and teachers from the Keith Academy. All present heartily endorsed the picture which made it a simple matter for Silver to effect numerous tie-ups.

All schools represented at the private screening allowed notices to be posted on the school bulletin boards; the book 'Disraeli' was discussed by the English classes and a one-sheet card appeared on the main bulletin board in the public library.

The Headmaster of the High School was so impressed with the picture that he announced to the entire student body at the Monday morning assembly that he hoped all the students would see it while it was playing the Merrimack Square Theatre.

Appealing to this certain type of people had a tremendous effect in making the picture an exceptional box-office attraction—even many of the students being numbered among the ''Disraeli'' patrons.

Remember, boys, we warned you that al-

Remember, boys, we warned you that although this is a corking picture, you would have to use "different" tactics to put it across. This is another good method and we are grateful to Nat for passing it along.

we are grateful to Nat for passing it along. The Grand Theatre in Pittsburgh, Pa., used one along similar lines in a special midnight preview which brought out over two thousand representative citizens and all combined to help make the run of the picture a tremendous success.

Ripley's Unique Contest Offers Something Different

R. L. Riply with an eye to his coming attractions, had a newspaper contest that sold the titles of his forthcoming pictures at the Codman Square Theatre, Dorchester, Mass.

Ten theatre tickets were offered to the first ten persons correctly naming the titles of the pictures.

The paragraph in which the titles appeared was written thusly:--''You'll have to SALUTE the VIRGINIAN, because he was out on the ISLE OF LOST SHIPS with MARIANNE, his SWEETIE. THE TRESPASSER was the only GIRL IN THE SHOW, who had seen FAST LIFE, and although she was behind with the FOOT-LIGHTS AND FOOLS, she has really seen BIG TIME; this made her very HARD TO GET. Way down on SIDE STREET, they were celebrating the RETURN OF SHER-LOCK HOLMES; this was HIS GLORI-OUS NIGHT. WISE GIRLS would not consider this place a WOMAN TRAP, because the SATURDAY NIGHT KID was there with one of the GOLD DIGGERS OF BROADWAY. It was there that the TAM-ING OF THE SHREW occurred, and a good time was enjoyed by all.'

In most cases, the titles are given and the contestants are asked to put them in story form. However, Riply reversed the proceedings and got a bundle-full of replies.

The idea of the stunt was principally to combat the usual December slump and to help fix in their minds many of the outstanding pictures to be played at the local theatre.

If the number of replies received is an indication of the number of persons sold on the coming attractions, then Riply should be all smiles as far as his coming business is concerned.

(Editor's Note: The caps in the third paragraph are ours. We used them so that our readers could note the titles.

E. E. Bair's Newspaper Advertising Is Worth Following

We cannot help but show a tremendous respect for any manager whose theatre is producing real theatrical advertising, and in this respect, we must again call our large membership's and readers' attention to E. E. Bair, who manages the State Theatre, East Liverpool, Ohio.

Rarely have we enthused so much over one man's advertising as we have over this showman's.

From time to time, he sends us copies of his newspaper ads, and each succeeding batch produces more ideas or variations on suggestions that he gleaned from the pages of the ROUND TABLE CLUB.

Being alert to originate, as well as to take the other fellow's idea and to use it for his purpose, is what we would term 100 per cent showmanship. And among the latest of one of his batch of ads was one that originally appeared and was credited to another member whose name at this moment we do not recollect.

We are certainly delighted that Mr. Bair has accepted the Regional Chairmanship of the MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB in Eastern Ohio and we are certain that much good will develop for the CLUB itself from his affiliation in this particular office.

Thank you very kindly, Mr. Bair, for your continued interest and fine CLUB spirit, and keep sending us those newspaper ads, because we like to pass them on to the rest of the boys.

You Should Be Wearing Your Club Emblem!

Now we want you to see the wording that appeared on the front of the house program as well as being sent out to over 1,000 on the mailing list.

Havana, Cuba Now Represented By L. J. Grossman

Among the latest batch of new members to enroll in the ROUND TABLE CLUB we take particular pleasure in announcing that Leonard J. Grossman who is the managing director of the Teatro Fausto in Havana, Cuba, has just become an active member.

You may recall that we made some mention of Leonard not so many weeks ago in relating a visit of Earle Holden to Havana. Now we shall look forward to hearing from Grossman at frequent intervals so that we can get an idea of how a livewire showman in Havana puts over his pictures and sells his shows.

We would also appreciate Mr. Grossman's photo with his next letter, so that we can introduce him more inti-mately to his many brother members. How about it, Leonard?

Shake Hands With Walter Morris Of The Publix Stanley

Having told you so much about his activities in the Stanley Theatre at West Palm Beach, Fla., it is about time we told you something about the gentleman himself, so you may accept this little story as a personal introduction to Walter Morris, manager of that theatre for the Publix enterprises.

Walter was educated in the Public Schools, Knoxyille, Tenn., and entered the University of Tennessee in 1924. He has been working on and off in theatres throughout the time he was being educated, so that when he was finished with his education, he was pretty well versed in the art of showmanship and theatre management, even more so than many of the men who are brought up in the business.

Having served as usher, chief of service, assistant manager and house manager he was well equipped for any house that was placed under his direction. We, therefore, find that he has been connected with many theatres in Knoxville and Chattanooga, Tenn., and in the summer of 1926 he was placed in the Tivoli Theatre in Chattanooga, as assistant manager.

In August, 1927, he came to the Plaza Theatre in Asheville, N. C., also as assistant manager and in March, 1928, to the Florida Theatre, Jacksonville, Fla., as house manager. All this time Walter was accumulating more and more experience and knowledge of the show business until he was placed in charge of the Stanley Theatre at West Palm Beach, where he has remained up to this date.

Among some of his recent activities you will find a mind reading lobby display used on the "Unholy Night" for a week before the attraction opened. Also an animated shadow box on the picture "The Lady Lies" which title was fastened to a treadmill in the background and passed before varicolored lights, which made an unusually attractive display as you will note from the reproduction with this story.

Another one of his recent tiews on exploitation was the use of a prescription on which the center portion was blank, but by following the directions and holding a lighted match on the back of herald, the copy for Richard Dix in "The Love Doctor" came to light. This is something a little different and out of the ordinary, and if and out of the ordinary, and if you are looking for a new angle in the line of a throwaway, we suggest that you give this a little bit of attention.

Walter again demonstrates his ability to take the other man's idea and remould it or revamp it

Walter again demonstrates his ability to take the other man's idea and remould it or revamp it for use in his own house, when he took advantage of Jimmy Mc-Coy's novelty herald entitled "The answer is always the same" and used it in connection with a laundry announcement card by making a sort of a contest of it.

Lack of space makes it impossible for us to reprint the entire card as Morris used it, but we are certain that his ability to jump at

We hope that Walter continues to keep us posted on all of the live-wire stunts that he is pulling down there in West Palm Beach, and we know that his experiences and activities will always be of great interest to our host of members and readers. Just keep up the good work, Walter, and we'll keep on passing it along to the other boys, so that they in turn can benefit by it.

Give our regards to Wally Allen and the rest of the gang Elwin W. Seymour Is Earning A Great Rep. Out In Mich.

Elwin W. Seymour, manager of the Regent Theatre in Battle Creek, Mich., undoubtedly has a great booster in the person of James L. Brown of the Enquirer and News, the daily and local newspaper of that city.

Mr. Brown has conveyed to us some mighty fine information about Seymour, as well as some signs of his showmanship recently executed by this wideawake showman of Battle Creek.

Lack of space has made it impossible for us to reach this article sooner, inasmuch as first consideration is always given to the regular enrolled members, but we could not resist the temptation to call attention to this unusual tribute paid to a showman by a newspaper man and we hope that he finds the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages sufficiently interesting and profitable to enroll as a member himself.

In the very near future we intend to set forth in more detail the activities of Mr. Seymour that has won him so staunch a friend as Mr. Brown and many others in that progressive city, but for the

Leon O. Mumford, managing director of the Roth Strand Theatre in Summit, N. J., recently worked a marvelous community goodwill angle by tying up every church of every creed and every denomination in and around his community into a united community service of thanksgiving and worship which he arranged to have at his theatre at 10:30 a.m. on Thanksgiving Day.

This represented but one of the fine angles which Mumford is taking advantage of for his theatre and we would also add at this time, that he has prepared a marvelous holiday program for Thanksgiving Day which will, no doubt, click 100 per cent at the box office.

Another feature of his community activity is the tieup with the American Legion, whereby a radio set is going to be given away free, and this likewise has been worked out so that the event takes place at the theatre, thereby increasing the attendance for what would be a weak night otherwise.

Great work, Leon, and we are glad to hear from you again because we were wondering whether or not you were

May we quote from "Now", the house organ of the Fox West Coast Circuit, to say—"YOU'VE GOT TO RUN LIKE HELL NOWADAYS TO STAY WHERE YOU ARE!"

And besides, think how much faster you must go to get ahead?

Opportunity knocks on the showman's door more often than he really knows about. Don't wait for it to send you an engraved invitation.

Jack Rosenberg Took Advantage Of High School Games

We are showing with this story a reproduction of the score card that was turned out by Jack Rosenberg, manager of the Park Theatre, San Diego, Cal.

This tieup, which is familiar to many of us, consisted of furnishing the score cards for the local football game, and this score card carried much copy about the theatre and the attraction. We are sure that this suggestion will give an opening to many other showmen to make use of the same idea for any other kind of sports that are prominent in their city.

SCORE CARD

Don't get that mistaken impression that just because the football season is over you will have to wait another year before this suggestion can be used. There are still plenty of sports during the winter months with which this tie-up can be worked.

Use the old "dome" for something besides parking the Stetson and thou shalt soon reap your harvest of B. O. receipts. Yes, verily. And a cup of coffee.

receipts. Yes, verily. And a cup of coffee.

Thank you, Jack. Shoot us a lot more of your stuff and we'll pass it along to the rest of the crowd.

Fred S. Perry To Pass On Some Suggestions For Club

Step up this way, folks, and shake the hand of Fred S. Perry, Manager of the Capitol Theatre in Binghampton, N. Y.

Fred has been such an enthusiastic booster for the ROUND TABLE CLUB that we are sure that his own contributions will soon make doggone good reading on our pages.

The Capitol Theatre is one of the outstanding theatres in Binghampton, and opened up, we believe, about a year ago under the Comerford banner.

There isn't much to say about Perry at this time, but we would hate to pass up the opportunity of reprinting a small portion of his letter which we believe will convey his feelings about the CLUB to our other members, here it is, fellows, read it for yourself.

"I am already na enthusiastic render of the CLUB pages In MOTION PICTURE NEWS and I find them to be a very effective clearing house for excellent ideas and helpful suggestions.
"It is possible that I shall eadearor during my membership to pay a portion of the debt I owe other managers for their interesting articles, by contributing something of value to them from my own experiences."

I'hat's the spirit, Fred, and we know that anyone feeling the way you do, is bound to get somewhere in the show business. It will be our extreme pleasure to publish on these pages any stunt, idea or suggestion that you want to pass on to your brother managers and others who are constant readers of our pages. But make it soon, won't

Local Tie-Ups Are Just Part Of Frank Celoud's Activities

Frank J. Celoud who manages the Liberty, Sedalia and Strand Theatres in Sedalia, Missouri, recently worked out a mighty clever single truck newspaper tie-up on "Madame X" in connection with that attraction when it played at his Liberty Theatre in October.

Somewhat similar to the successful campaign engineered on this same attraction by Carkey up in Spokane, he likewise made use of a mysterious "Madame X" who visited any number of establishments, especially those connected with the full page advertising stunt.

The many interesting newspaper items which resulted from this stunt made a mighty valuable medium to publicize the picture. and the result of fine business is a credit to Mr. Celoud and his keen showmanship.

Although only a recent member of the ROUND TABLE CLUB, his beginning as an active member was to send us many interesting items for publication on these pages. We are certain that the "Madame X" stunt is just one of his ordinary campaigns and that he will have many others of even greater importance to pass on in his future activities in the CLUB.

Welcome, Frank, and let's hope that you enclose one of your pictures with your next letter so that we can introduce you properly to the rest of the gang.

Earle Holden's "4 Feathers" Worked Well For Business

On the picture "The Four Feathers" Earle Holden, manager of the Fairfax Theatre, Miami, Fla., worked out a rather unusual form letter addressed to all the bachelors, and having a long white feather pinned to it.

The attractiveness of the idea, plus the copy of the letter itself, were both typical of fine showmanship, and it is with pleasure that we had the opportunity of reading over his latest activity.

This is another "feather" in your own cap, Earle, and we are certainly glad that you sent us a copy of it. Let's hear some more from you and about what you are doing down that way. Best regards to the rest of the gang of ROUND TABLE CLUB boosters and members down in your part of the county.

Roy Brown Puts Over A Marvelous "Potato Matinee"

Manager Roy Brown of the State Theatre, Cedar Rapids, Ia., landed plenty of good will publicity in the news columns of the Gazette - Republican recently when he put on a vegetable matinee for children.

On Saturday before Thanksgiving, Manager Brown secured an old comedy and announced that any child who brought some vegetable to the theatre would be admitted free. The theatre was jammed with kiddies who had raided the family larder the night before. The accompanying pho-tograph illustrates the success of their raids.

The food collected was all distributed to the needy by charitable organizations.

Thank you kindly, Ray. This is just what we wanted, to convey the thought we have been trying to put across to our members and readers for the past few months. You have succeeded and besides you show us the results of your worth-while efforts.

As the photos show, the vegetables accumulated made up over two truck loads of stuff and we can just imagine the whale of publicity the theatre must have got on this one.

Program Layout An Important Factor On "Filmusicals"

Only recently we made mention of the value of laying out the house program when you play the big Broadway talkie musicals the same as a program would be laid out for a regular musical production.

The points we stressed were the cast of characters, the various themes and acts and the musical numbers in each

Here we show you the program of the Fox Criterion Theatre as used for "Married In Hollywood," and one of Frank Whitbeck's creations.

You will note on the inside spread how the program is laid out for the entire performance, with the cast of characters and the entire right hand side of the inside spread being devoted to the melodies from the picture.

HOLIDAYS!

Jan. 1st, New Year's Day.

Jan. 8th, Battle Of New Orleans (La.)

Jan. 19th, Robt. E. Lee's Birthday.

Plus the usual local dates and events all ready to be tied in with some stunt whereby your theatre gets added receipts and prestige.

Keep The Ball A'Rollin-!

M.R.T.C.

Here is a corking angle that lends a dignified and distinctive touch to this type of attraction and if you are not taking advantage of it, you are missing out on a great bet.

Fred Cruise is the manager of the Fox Criterion and worked many other angles in connection with this fine film musical picture that helped put it over to great success.

This One Gave Wally Allen A Darned Good Break

We don't know whether this was a laugh at Wally Allen's expense, but at any rate, he was a good enough sport to admit that he started something in the line of publicity that went wrong. However, he can boast of this fact in his long career of publicity and exploitation man, this was the first time he got a good break in a newspaper on account of a stunt that went wrong.

In order that you may appreciate what it is all about, we are reprinting the story exactly as it appeared in the paper in a very conspicuous right-hand break at the top of the page. Read it over and laugh, and you will then admit that Wally clicks again, even when the stunt fails.

HIPPO—HIPPO—HIPPO-O-AW SHUCKS "The early bird gets the zoo."—"Well, who wants a zoo?"—Well, Wallace R. Allen wants a zoo.—Well whaddaya want a zoo for?—For exploitation, goof! And the daya want a zoo ior?—For exploitation, gooi! And the story is that...

Into town today rushed Mr. Allen with a bee in his bonnet looking for a zoo—with wild animals in—preferably hippopotami. He was crazy for just one hippopotamus, if that must be, to try out the sound effects of a new moving-picture on. He thought it would be a front page story (with art maybe) all about how the hipp-etc. reacted to his brothers' voice from a mechanical horn, and all that—shed tears of homesickness, and all that.

There are lots of hipp-etc.; in the picture, which is (no.)

There are lots of hipp-etc.-i in the picture, which is (no big secret now) "The Four Feathers," dynamic, dithyrambic, big secret now) "The Four Feathers," dynamic, dithyrambic, ambic hit coming soon to your Victory, and said Mr. Allen has the imposing title of district supervisor of exploitation for Publix (but he was really doing a little advance work for F. F.) but he found no zoo here.—Then he wanted to advertise in Times want ads, they get results, for someone who might have a pet hippo, but Manager Collier of the Victory thought that would look like a stunt.

So Tampa, by having no zoo, lost this golden opportunity, and the sun sank with a sob. . . .

Did You Order Your Club Pin?

Billy Spragg Took Advantage Of A Well-Known Game Following along the lines of printing theatre tickets to advertise some former stage success or an extraordinary attraction, Manager William Spragg used the football ticket idea in exploiting Spragg used the football ticket idea in exploiting Eddie Quillan in "The Sophomore" playing at the Publix-Stadium Theatre, Woonsocket, R. I.

These football cards have a resemblance to the football tickets and proved to be one of the most-sought for novelty heralds used during Spragg's managership in Woonsocket.

With the words, Yale, Harvard and Stadium standing out in bold type, it made these pasteboards one of the best advertising media used in some time; especially in view of the Yale-Harvard football classic to be played about that date.

Stubs on the tickets also bore a resemblance to the regular football ticket; and this carried further copy about the picture, theatre and play dates.

Denny B. Dixon's Latest Was The Talk Of The State

One of the most remarkable booster campaigns for any local community was staged recently through the backing of Denny B. Dixon, the manager of the Belmont Theatre, one of the chain of theatres operated by Tony Sudekum.

The Belmont is located in the Hillsboro section of Nashville, and the stunt was to direct attention to the marvelous community spirit of that particular locality.

Column on column of newspaper stories featured the entire campaign and naturally the theatre came in for a raft of free publicity because the y sponsored and backed the entire movement.

The Belmont Theatre entry in the parade of floats is shown with this story and is unquestion ably a beautiful piece of work.

That it must have attracted plenty of attention along the line of march goes without saying and all in all the big parade which took place on Tucsday, October 15th, must have caused plenty of talk and no doubt they are still talking about it.

All of the advantages of the Belmont Hillsboro section was set forth in the campaign as well as in the parade and the marvelous spirit of cooperation which predominated among the business houses and merchants of the community spoke volumes for the high esteem which Mr. Dixon, Mr. Sudekum and the Belmont Theatre were held by the Community in general.

SID BRATTER has succeeded Dick Kirschbaum as manager of the Lincoln Theatre, Arlington, N. J. We don't seem to know very much about your experience or activities in this man's business, Sid, how about contributing something to these pages, and include a photograph of yourself while you are at it, will you?

-Wear Your Club Pin!!--

MAX ABRAMS manages the Capitol Theatre, Shenandoah, Pa. From what we can glean, this sound-equipped house is the last word in photoplay entertainment. Let's hear some more about you and your activities at the Capitol. I am sure your experiences would make interesting reading on the CLUB pages, so come along, Abrams, and loosen up with an account of yourself.

-- Wear Your Club Pin ! !---

J. H. LUTER was nominated for membership by his superior, Earle M. Holden, of the Fairfax Theatre, Miami, Fla. With such a leader to inspire him to greater efforts, we can expect great things from this new member. We would like to hear what you are doing down there in the line of exploitation and publicity. How about a line or two, Luter, and try to dig up a photo that you can send along at the same time.

WHAT ARE YOU WAITING FOR?

I. B. HARDY, manager of Loew's Mall Theatre out in Cleveland, Ohio, which is a twelve hundred seat house. What about sending us a little letter telling how you handle your exploitation and publicity for the Mall, "J. B."? And a photo of yourself wouldn't go bad to use with the story we expect to get from you.

---Wear Your Club Pin! ! !-

ALBERT GONTKO, who is assistant to Harold Garfinkle at the Avalon Theatre. Brooklyn, N. Y., joins the CLUB with the proper spirit, all right. He sends in for a pin and requests that his Membership Certificate be sent him "toot sweet." That's the right spirit, Al, but you forgot one thing. Where's your photograph that we need so badly to give you the proper introduction on these pages?

-Wear Your Club Pin ! !-

GEORGE BROCK, manager of the New Dorp Theatre, New Dorp, S. I., makes the Island just about 100 per cent tied up in the CLUB. Competition is pretty keen down in Staten Island, George, so let's see the stuff you're made of by contributing something on how you are helping put your theatre over theatrically down there. From what Sid Finkelstein tells us, you're a pretty aggressive showman, but we're from Missouri, Brock, we've got to be shown.

C. J. LATTA, manager of the Roger Sherman Theatre, New Haven, Conn., certainly starts his membership off like nobody's business. We wish you could see the folio he sent us on his activities and even included a photograph of himself. That's the stuff, Latta, here's hoping you continue as you started.

EUGENE PARRISH is the aggressive manager of the Publix Rex Theatre in Columbia, S. C., and judging from the enthusiasm displayed in his letter, we can expect "big things" from this showman. What do you say, Parrish, are we going to receive an account of how you are selling your attractions, down there in the Sunny South?

---- Wear Your Club Pin ! !--

M. S. PHILLIPS, manager of the Publix Strand in Spartansburg, S. C., joins the CLUB by saying he has received many valuable ideas from the columns. Well, "M. S.," that's what we expect you to do; but what about passing some of your own ideas along, so that the rest of the members may take advantage of a few of them. Why not let us know how you exploit your attractions down there in Spartanburg, and your own photo would not be amiss. And don't forget to remember us to the rest of the Publix boys down there in S. C.

Colored Sound Pictures

Now—at low cost—sound pictures can be printed without sacrificing any of the delicate tints formerly used.... Eastman Sonochrome Tinted Positive Films have given the industry a wider range of tints than was ever available before—in films so adjusted that they give amazingly faithful sound reproduction. And though they combine sound and color, these new Eastman films cost no more than regular black-and-white positive.

It takes something hot in the way of a two-reel talking comedy to break into this fast company of best pictures, and this Louise Fazenda howl is the bright baby. "Faro Nell" is a scream—an airtight, perfectly acted burlesque of the old-time Western thriller. Louise, in long yellow curls, is a panic. This is just what we've long wanted—a two-reel talkie we could bellow at.

omance Still lives

A MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR TO YOU

here was romance in the olden days when Knighthood was in flower. Consider in this holiday season the magnificent Knight-Templar, mighty Crusader, defender of the Holy Land. Eight centuries ago, clad in shining armor, astride a war-steed pawing the earth of Jerusalem. Leading toward its ancient walls his doughty company of knights, squires, men-at-arms

There was romance in those days, yes—but there is just as much romance today. The newsreel camera-man clambers up icy peaks, descends into volcanos, perches on airplane wings, goes through fire and flood that your patrons may be kept informed of world events.

Pathè Sound News, mightiest newsreel institution of them all, is proof that romance still lives.

Vol. XL

NEW YORK CITY, DECEMBER 28, 1929

No. 26

What Kind Of Year Will '30 Be?

HE dying days of December are again turned over to crystal gazing and peeks into the future. A quaint custom, this practice of doping out what the new year holds in store.

The leaders tell you that the next twelve months will be the most prosperous since film first found its way out of the can. So it was last year, and the year before, and all the years before that. What they think is encouraging, even if the phrases are stock, age-old and familiar. And yet, as a matter of fact, 1930 does launch itself under generally auspicious circumstances, press agents notwithstanding.

Sound, A. T. and T. and the Public

The industry has capitulated to sound, and will continue to acknowledge its master so long as the fickle fidelity of the public and the business acumen of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company permit.

Sound, then, stays. Undoubtedly. But how to use it is something else. You must remember that, sound or silent, types of pictures can be matched in parallel columns right down the slate except one—the musical. Therefore, producers, as good business men, have annexed what is obviously the ingredient to annex and are playing it to death.

In doing so, thirty years or thereabouts of motion picture fundamentals have been hurriedly packed, tied and dropped out of the window. Logic in story treatment; the ordinary, accepted formulas for dramatic suspense have been knifed—clear to the hilt. And musical comedy adopted for motion pictures. Each is separate and distinct as is well known, yet producers, in their wisdom, expect to mix both and have them stay that way.

How Long for the Musical?

It is true they are getting away with it principally because the system brings to the backbone towns of America a form of entertainment hitherto unexcelled in lavishness and appeal. But for how long? Perhaps for another year, but certainly not beyond that. Musicals and operettas in limited number have their place, it is, of course, a fact, but a surfeited market is already well within sight merely because a good thing is being played to a fare-the-well.

What to do about it will be an early 1930 problem. It is our opinion that a speedy return to motion picture formulas as the world at large knows them is imperative. Music should not be overlooked. It is invaluable when properly used, but the percentages and the ratio have to be evolved.

Then color. An innovation and, as such, of immense appeal to the public. The Warners are demonstrating that eminently well with their current product. But, like everything else, the danger is in overemphasis, a practice of which this industry is notoriously guilty. Color, like sound, is commercially saleable when properly used. Again a new year job is to figure what the happy medium is to be. This will be governed more by competition among producers than good judgment. An unfortunate situation for the industry, but nevertheless true.

Wide Film And Other Matters

Over wide film, considerable speculation prevails. Paramount, Warners, Fox, and RKO are pursuing their separate ways and standardization has been suggested. That's all. Yet the appalling consequences to this business unless a general agreement is reached are so obvious that to discuss them further is useless.

Economies in operation must be affected. Not in dabs, but in wholesale. Violent, headlong expansion has checked itself, aided by declines in the stock market. A lucky event, despite that the business played no part in bringing on itself this happy safety valve.

One of the most vexatious difficulties of all which has been dodged fervently for a number of years now concerns protection. The arguments in favor of the system are old and well known. Nobody objects, provided drunkenness induced by buying power is tempered with orderliness. But when the effects of unbridled power travel to the head, it is not to be expected that the mob, less fortunate, will remain goodnatured forever. The chains have been getting away with what is tantamount to murder. They should be made to understand what it means to be reasonable before Washington stands them before a legal blackboard and explains.

A Note of Warning

These are merely some of 1930's problems. There are others. The mass of forecasts published in this edition touches on them. One viewpoint stands out. Where generalities were indulged in by most, Harold

An Insider's Outlook

That 5-5-5 funfest got away to a pleasant start. Maybe it will stay that way. But matching up what Allied wants as against what the affiliated theatre group, for instance, is willing to give indicates that weighty words may fly ere the parley terminates.

Allied seems particularly anxious to curb overseating and has set up a national appeal board to handle situations as they arise. The affiliated theatres, as is natural, frown on any such idea. Why not? From their angle, any other course would seem like an unnecessary concession.

What Allied must understand is that expansion must continue if any business is to progress. No other reason is necessary to explain why big circuit operations will continue to expand as their heads determine.

After all, Allied, it is to be presumed, is anxious to curtail overseating because of its effects on its own members who, in the main, are small, subsequent runs. If this is correct—and any other purpose seems hard to imagine—it would seem that protection might easily take care of the contingencies which Allied is attempting to avoid.

There you have one angle. Myers and Lightman, as representatives of Allied and the M.P.T.O.A. jointly, are in agreement that the standard contract as an instrument has lost much of its effectiveness. Therefore, it will be rewritten, a bit of news which will fall pleasantly on many exhibitor ears.

Protection, than which there isn't a more vital problem confronting the industry to-day, admittedly requires a new dress. Allied has long insisted so, the M.P.T.O.A. feels identically about it and even the affiliated theatres, the favored children in any protection roustabout, openly state that there is considerable room for improvement. Zoning plans are suggested with committees, local and national, to sit in judgment and define what is proper or not.

The significant point here is that the evil is recognized. The desire to correct it is apparently present. Exactly how grasping individual interests will be, rests in the lap of the future. It is difficult, however, to imagine the affiliated theatres, buttressed by producers, relinquishing any of their rights. That is, unless the complexion of this business has changed overnight,

It does appear to this onlooker, however, that the groundwork so well laid should not remain barren. The movement toward harmony was launched some weeks ago at Columbus by Sid Kent. His sincerity and desire to end discord within the ranks were so obviously genuine that the seed took root.

This is the background. Each side now advances its first offer. It will be trimmed and efforts made to fit it to size—the size depending solely on the point of view of the one who attempts the shearing process. But the airing of the pros and cons is fraught with danger for the ultimate success of the conference. It is sufficiently important to remind all participating groups that concessions will have to be made.

Inside wrangling has long held the entire business up to a vast ridicule. That, the industry can perhaps stand. There are, however, many problems both within and without that must be met. Wide film and what to do about it is one. It is easy to envision how a uniform front in exhibition would serve to stave off a near-cataclysm as was precipitated by sound.

Likewise is it simple to understand what an upset this industry will again face if extreme caution is not exercised in introducing this development to the trade.

On the fringe of the industry reformers and agitators sit, looking in. They are the sponsors of legal and verbal atacks against the institution of the films. To combat their activities, joint action is the sole answer. These reasons and others should be remembered by the five-fiverwhers when they next meet. They have an obligation which they cannot evade.

What Kind Of Year Will '30 Be?

B. Franklin sounded a note that merits, and, therefore, receives particular mention here. He says:

"The year will be one of readjustment, made necessary because of excessive prosperity and extravagance during the country's most prosperous period. . . .

"Economy in operation will take the place of extravagance. . . .

"It may be expected, however, that the new year will see an improvement in connection with individual operations where exhibitors study the requirements of their clientele. There is a certain type of operation that will show better results under individual management. . . ."

Paper Value and Prosperity

And another. This from Abram F. Myers, president of Allied, who throws platitudes unceremoniously aside in this fashion:

"The destruction of from six to ten billions of value, even paper value, cannot be laughed away. Plans made in reliance on stock market profits are being curtailed or cancelled. Everyday business of manufacturing and selling commodities will go on as usual and our job is to see that crumbling air castles do not create a pessimism that will affect our everyday affairs.

"Exhibitors can overcome this by buying carefully, making their houses more attractive, becoming good neighbors and embracing their good-will in every way possible. They should emphasize the fact that they are selling the most valuable thing in the world: recreation; that it is a necessity, not a luxury, and that they are selling it very cheaply.

"I see no reason why the industry should not pull through 1030 in good shape, but everyone will have to work a little harder and think a little more clearly."

Pessimism has no part in the reasons for picking these two opinions from many. Rather it is because what Franklin and Myers say hits so closely to the truth and because, under any and all circumstances, the truth must be known.

Fox Fight With Otterson and Stuart Delaying $100,000,000 Finance Plan

An RKO Nosedive

Baltimore.-Two RKO pictures, "The Delightful Rogue" and "The Very Idea" nab doubtful honors among the worst flops of the year in Baltimore.

Of course, pre-Christmas spirit and competition probably had something to do with it, but Yuletide or not, there is ample proof to demonstrate the truth that the public will patronize good pictures. Evidently, Baltimoreans thought otherwise about the RKO duet which played the Auditorium and finished the week with a gross hovering in the region of $1,500, giving both films the knock-out rating of 20 per cent. The Auditorium does $7,500 in a good week.

RCA And Soviet Deal Under Way

RCA Photophone and the Soviet Government are negotiating a deal which, if closed, will sound equip a large number of Russian theatres with Photophone. The arrangement would also provide for RCA engineers to assist Russia on technical problems concerning sound on home ground and for Russian technicians to study the RCA method in the United States.

Quota Removal Seen In Doubt

London.-Well-informed observers here fail to see how the treaty signed by 19 countries to remove artificial trade barriers, including quotas, can affect the situation in England where the quota is on the English statute books. Aside from that, it is pointed out that the convention signed makes for freer trade, but not necessarily for free trade. This may be the hitch insofar as films are concerned in England and elsewhere on the Continent.

W.E. Reported In Patent Agreement

London.-Western Electric has reached an agreement on sound patents with Kuchenmeister Acoustics, Dutch sound equipment manufacturer, according to reports here from Amsterdam.

Columbia After "Rain Or Shine"

Hollywood-Joe Cook is slated for the featured role in "Rain or Shine" if Columhia is successful in negotiations now under way for talking rights to the musical comedy.

Producer Fails To Give Up Majority Hold On Directorate— Ultimatum, Unmet, May Force Extreme Action

William Fox is at loggerheads with John E. Otterson and Harry Stuart, controlling trustees on the board appointed to manage Fox Film and Fox Theatres. An ultimatum served on Fox Monday by the other two members of the committee to turn in resignations of five of the eight directors of both corporations for replacement by men representing American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and Halsey, Stuart and Co. has passed its deadline without being met, according to reliable reports.

Otterson and Stuart, it is further reported, now feel free to take whatever action they deem necessary in the light of Fox's alleged failure to comply with the agreement entered upon when the trusteeship was formed.

Action on refinancing cannot be taken until the directorates of both corporations are rearranged. The bankers involved are understood to have determined upon an issue of $100,000,000 in gold debenture first mortgage bonds on the Fox properties to he assumed directly by noteholders. They are designed to mature in either ten or twenty years, this point not having been fully determined.

Notes held by A. T. and T. for $15,000,-000 fall due on Feb. 15. Proximity of the date is understood to have placed the trustees in the frame of mind where they determined immediate action on financing had to be taken. On April 1, it is further reported, $12,000,000 in one year six per cent debentures fall due to Halsey, Stuart and Co. In addition, there are several millions in miscellaneous notes declared to fall due between now and April 1.

Clarence J. Shearn, personal attorney for William Randolph Hearst, has been retained by Fox as his personal attorney. Shearn represented his client at a number of meetings held during the week.

Fox has been making efforts to seenre eapital. A deal was practically set last week for Fischer Bros., of Detroit to participate, but a last minute hitch developed. Fox, it is understood, also turned to his many and wealthy Jewish friends-104 all told-who were invited to a meeting called for that purpose. The effort was unsuc-

Thalberg, Mayer Continue At M-G-M

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood.—The executive personnel at M-G-M remains unchanged. Reports that Irving G. Thalberg was to take over the Fox studios to give Winfield Sheehan more time to devote to Fox business in New York are learned to be unfounded.

Thalberg and Louis B. Mayer will continue at the M-G-M production helm as in the past. Sheehan is due here in a week or so on pressing matters concerning Fox production and is expected to return to New York following a short stay.

Windsor, Third In Nathauson's Chain

Montreal-A site for a big theatre in Windsor has been secured as the third in the chain which N. L. Nathanson, former managing director of Famous Players Canadian Corp., plans to build. The others are in Montreal and Toronto.

The impression is growing that Warners and Fox are financially interested in the potential circuit. Sir Herbert Holt, one of the wealthiest men in Canada and long a friend of Nathanson's, as well as a former director of the F. P. Canadian board, is another participant. The fourth important factor is reported to be the Royal Bank of Canada, and the fifth, Harry Low, a real estate man of Windsor, through whose interest the site in that town was secured.

Warner Denies

H. M. Warner denies published reports that his company is backing N. L. Nathanson in the purchase of property in Montreal and other Canadian cities for a chain of theatres.

U. K. Franchise Plan Ties In J. D. Williams

London-J. D. Williams is linked with a new company now formulating plans for the establishment of a franchise system for exhibitors. First intimation of the plan was revealed by Alderman Trounson at a C. E. A. meet in Liverpool.

San Antonio A Two-Chain Town; Publix, Fox Control

San Antonio, Tex.-With acquisition by Publix of the Aztec, an independent theatre, Publix and Fox are in complete domination of the local field. Publix now controls three de luxe houses—the Texas, State and Aztec, while Fox has the Greater Majestic, the de luxe house recently purchased from the Interstate Amusement Co.

Publix has secured a ten-year lease on the Aztec at a gross rental of $750,000. The contract includes the Rialto, a second run house, lease on which expires next September. It is understood the plan to build a first run here will be dropped in view of the Aztec acquisition.

Warner Profits Increase 168 Times In Period Of Six Years

Net income of Warner Bros. Pictures for the year ended March 31, 1924, totaled $102,813. In the last fiscal period, ended Aug. 31, 1929, the company netted $17,-271,805, an increase of 168 times or more than $17,159,000 in six years. These earnings are the subject of considerable discussion in financial circles.

Profits for the initial quarter, beginning Sept. 1, are expected to show a big jump over the $3,400,000 net in the corresponding period of the previous year.

In the following table is given a comparison of earnings of the company since the beginning of 1924 fiscal period (the company in 1926 changed its fiscal year to end Aug. 31 instead of March 31):

Columbia Earnings To Show Increase

Earnings of Columbia Pictures for the last quarter of 1929, ending December 31, are expected to show a considerable increase over the previous three months, when the company netted $227,048, equivalent, after preferred dividends, charges, taxes, etc., to $2.08 a share on the 100,000 shares of no-par common outstanding, and contrasted with a net loss of $22,441 for the corresponding period in 1928.

Miller Succeeds Chanier As Pathe Lab Supervisor

Gaston Chanier has resigned as general laboratory supervisor for Pathe in the East, effective today. M. Miller, Chanier's assistant, and in charge at the Bound Brook, N. J. plant, becomes acting chief in charge of both Bound Brook and Jersey City labs.

Chanier is one of the oldest members in the Pathe organization and was brought over from France by the original Pathe Freres group, about 25 years ago.

Profit Of $29,894 By Pathe For 12 Weeks

Pathe Exchange, Inc., reports a net of $29.894 for the twelve weeks ended October 5, for the parent company and all subsidiaries. For the 40 weeks ended October 5 the profit was $554,231. The 12-week figure was reached following charges for depreciation, interest, amortization of discount, and after transferring from surplus $129,397 to absorb excess costs of sales over normal costs.

New Fox Houses Take Bow In Calif., Ga. And Montana

Five new theatres in California, Georgia and Montana, all operated by Fox West Coast Theatres, opened this week.

The largest and most important was the Fox in Atlanta, a 5,000 seat theatre, finished in Moorish architecture and equipped for screen and stage attractions. The stage will be given over to Fanchon and Mareo "Ideas," music in charge of Don and Iris. R. T. Newton is managing director.

Hanford and Visalia, both neighborhood cities in the San Joaquin Valley in California, have new Fox theatres. Each represents an investment of $250,000. The policy will be straight pictures in both.

The two new houses in the Montana division to come under the management of Will Steege are the Fox Oriental in Montrose and the Fox in Butte. Former approximates an investment of $200,000 and the Butte $250,000.

Tiffany Preparing For Big Production Spurt In Jan.

Hollywood—Preparatory to an intensive schedule to be lannehed in January, Tiffany is preparing several scenarios under guidance of A. P. Younger, scenario and story department head. Lois Leeson is adapting "Paper Profits"; John Russell is adapting his own novel, "Song of the Island"; Eve Unsell just completed script on "The Medicine Man"; Ben Westland is working on "The Luxury Girl"; Adele Buffingain is adapting "Pardon My Glove"; Earl Snell is preparing an original, "Sunny Skies."

A few months ago he returned to Minneapolis and now leaves his home eity to join this publication.

Motion Picture Club To Elect Officers Shortly

The board of directors of the Motion Picture Club of New York has been reduced from 23 to 18 members. With the reduction, election of officers for the forthcoming year will be held shortly. Al Lichtman, of United Artists, has been president since the club opened.

Lee A. Ochs and Harry L. Reichenbach have been re-elected to the board. Al Lichtman, Moe Mark, Arthur W. Kelly and Arthur W. Stebbins replace David J. Chatkin, Earle W. Hammonds, Phil Reisman and William A. Johnston, publisher of Motion Picture News.

Van Dyke En Route to L. A.

Hollywood.—W. S. VanDyke, after ten months in Africa filming "Trader Horn," is due here in a few days. He reached New York on Monday and spent several days there conferring with M-G-M officials. Van Dyke is bringing back with him two natives, Mutia Wa Mula, a M'Kamba chief, who has a role in the film, and Riano, the director's gunbearer. The technical staff, including Bob Roberts and Harry Albiez, round out the party.

Some Critics Like, Others Sock Alice White Picture

It's two for and two against out of a total of four New York crities' opinions on "The Girl from Woolworth's," Aliee White's new picture. The Graphic describes the star as "a coarse, untalented woman," while the Telegram finds her "pert and vivacious." Boiled down, what these critics think is this:

Daily Mirror—Excellent direction and snappy dialogue lift this movie far above the usual light comedy romance. "The Girl from Woolworth's" is patterned closely after the White success, "Broadway Babies." It's a better picture.

Exeming World—. . . But it is a tame affair, at best, and it means little. . . . The star sings two or three times, and she puts over her stuff surprisingly

Passing Of Actors' Equity Seen In "Legit" Invasion By Picture Producers

Disillusioned!

Portland, Ore,—Col. G. T. Woodlaw, local exhibitor, believed in Santa Claus until Christmas when he opened a nicely wrapped "gift" package in the office of his Circle theatre. When Woodlaw came to, he was being treated for throat burns.

The package contained a bomb which contained a mixture of tear and mustard gas. Blame for the bomb was placed by the police on union operators who have been picketing the Circle for two months.

6 All-Musicals From United In 1930-31

United Artists' 1930-31 program will contain six all-musical productions, including one from Flo Ziegfeld, the first Cohan-Jolson film, Irving Berlin's "Upside and Down"; "Bride 66," to be produced by Arthur Hammerstein; a Wm. Anthony Magnire original, and Gloria Swanson in "Queen Kelly."

The new year marks the commencement of the company's second decade as a producer, having released its first picture in 1919. At present, U. A. has more pictures lined up for a new year than in any previous 12-month period.

14 Managers And Operators Arrested In Sunday Drive

Wheeling, W. Va.—Local picture fans will see shows on Sunday until February, at least, when the grand jury will hear the case of 14 managers and operators who are out on $500 bail for violating the Sunday elosing law. They were arrested at seven theatres under orders from Prosecuting Attorney A. C. Shiffler.

Europe Enthusiastic Over Future of Color Pictures

Keen enthusiasm in Europe for natural color films, especially in London and Berlin, is reported by Dr. Herbert Kalmus, chief of Technicolor who has just returned to New York from a trip to London and the Continent, during which he looked over sites for a new plant. The lab will probably be huilt in London.

Ultimate Domination Of Stage Forecast With No Place Seen For Equity—Film Interests Already Financing Plays

Defeat of Actors' Equity in the Hollywood strike some months ago may prove to be a prelude to the ultimate passing of the organization from the legitimate theatre. An industry leader in a recent conversation is reliably understood to have stated that with the growing financial interest that picture producers were taking in the legitimate theatre, it was only a question of time before they would

The lines of association between the legitimate producers and picture producers are more closely aligned during the present season than at any other time. A. H. Broadway Grosses Flop Hard On Week Before Christmas Grind houses and extended runs alike were hit a hard blow last week. It was the week before Christmas, and all through the lane not a thing was stirring, with no one to blame, except the general business depression and weak pictures.

Evidently every one knew business was going to be terrible, and, therefore, played pictures that had to be gotten rid of. The nearest approach to anything like normal was the Paramount with "The Marriage Playground," which did $70,500 on the week. The Roxy, with "This Thing Called Love," did $76,382, which is only $6,000 above the record low for the house. The Capitol, with "Hallehijah," did a nose dive with $61,785. At the Strand, "The Gold Diggers of Broadway," in its second week, did a little better than the average first week business there by drawing $36,-390 in eight days, giving the picture a gross in 15 days of $80,073,55.

Swanson Does $272,400
"The Trespasser" finished its run of six weeks and six days at the Rialto to a final gross of $272,400, getting $19,400 on the final six days. "The Taming of the Shrew," in its third week at the Rivoli, fell off to $29,700.

The Globe, which joined the ranks of the grind houses under RKO management, played "Dance Hall" to $11,942. The Colony, with "Lucky In Love," hit a low for the length of the present policy with $7,600, while at the Cameo "The Lost Patrol" came along with $5,796. After IS weeks on Broadway, "The Hollywood Revue" passed on, getting a gross on the run of $325,066, and doing a nose dive in its final week. "Rio Rita" also passed along to make room for Richard Dix in "Seven Keys to Baldpate."

"Rita's" last week was around $7,430. "Disraeli," at the Central in its 12th week, hit $14,276, while "The Love Parade" at the Criterion showed the greater strength with $15,100.

"General Crack" at Warner's played to $22,560, while the final week of the "Show of Shows" at the Winter Garden showed $21,634 for a total gross of $129,102 on five week days and a day.

Jungle Film Way Off

"Hunting Tigers" at the Cohan dropped to $4,276, while "The Sky Hawk" at the Gaiety played to around $6,500, although about $5,000 better than that is claimed for 'he picture. "Condemned" closed at the Selwyn with $7,987 to its credit for the seventh week.

Among the new ones scheduled for next week is "Blaze O' Glory," due at the Cohan, and "The Mighty" at the Rivoli. "The Virginian" is now current at the Rialto. "Sally" came into the Winter Garden Monday night.

'Sweetie' Tops 'Em All In Los Angeles

Los Angeles.—It was a pretty dull theatre week here. The Christmas holiday was entirely responsible for the general indifferent grosses rolled up by Los Angeles and Hollywood theatres.

"Sweetie" at the Paramount walked away with the others to the tune of $35,-000, or a rating of 140 per cent. The youthful appeal of the picture was responsible. At Warners' Hollywood, John Barrymore did very well in "General Crack" rolling up $26,500 on the week. In percentages this is 189.

"Three Live Ghosts," rounding out its second week at the United Artists, finished up with $11,500, or S5 per cent; the RKO with "Broadway Seandals" managed to nab $15,500, which is just three per cent under normal business at this house. Eddie Buzell in "Little Johnny Jones" didn't fare so well at the Warners' Downtown where he did $10,300 at the hox-office, entitling him to a rating of 69 per cent. "Rio did $10,500 at the Carthay Circle for the fifth week of its run, a figure equivalent to 84 per cent. The third week of "Condemned" at the Chinese was 25 per cent under normal, the week finishing off with $12,000 while "This Thing Called the carring thereby a rating of 93 per ceut.

"Hallelujah" at the Criterion had a lame week with $6.500 and a 65 per ceut.

rating to its eredit. At the Fox Palace, 'Sunny Side Up'' grossed $7,300 on the week's run, or Si per cent of normal business. Paul Muni's "Seven Faces," playing the Egyptian, reported an $8,000 gate.

Listengart Writes Score

Benjamin Listengart, in the interests of Abe Meyer, Inc., wrote the score synchronized for "Hunting Tigers In India."

High and Low Along Music Row

T • WAS a few days before Christmas, and good cheer was in the air, when this writer asked Jack Robbins of the Robbins Music lair why their catalogue of picture songs were hits from day to day. "We pick right songs from wrong," and he went on to say, "Now take the 'Hollywood Revue,' of nineteen twenty-nine, and I am telling this to you, 'twas a hit 'Your Mother And Mine.' And even tho' we're having snow and yet 'twill snow again, it's a fact where'er you go, folks are 'Singin' In The Rain.' Then a fellow named Novarro, in a picture 'Pagan' named, made a beautiful 'Dawn Of Tomorrow,' and gave.'The Pagan Love Song' fame. In 'Devil-May-Care' the latest he made, are 'March Of The Guards' and 'The Shepherd's Screnade.' In this picture he's 'Charming' as he fought and he dared, and you're in for heart-warming when you hear 'If He Cared'.' Thank you, Robbins for all your info. We'll see you next week. Happy New Year. Heigh-Ho.

A ND then we met Joe Davis of the Triangle Music Co, and here is what he gave us as the reason he makes dough. He took the writers of "S'Posin'," Denniker and Razaf were thinking of, and without more ado goes in, and publishes "Language Of Love." To you, Joe, here's all we can tell, whatever you do we wish you well.

THREE little boys that we're sure you all know, are the three Santly boys: Lester, Henry and Joe. Their firm is not old. We'll bet more than two bits, tho' the weather 'tis cold, that they publish hot hits. Let your memory stray and you'll be recalling, that first hit they had, "I've a Feeling I'm Falling." Then a trio called Tobias, Harry, Charlie and Nank brought "Miss You" to the Santly's; it put dough in the bank. Then "Sweethearts' Holiday," was very important for it helped light the way for the "Lonely Troubadour." A list like that is its own reward, and some day you'll elick with a production board.

OMEBODY TO LOVE ME" and "Get Happy," we say, are two pretty songs, in "Shannons OI Broadway." Little Helen Kane, who boo-boo-i-dooped to Iame, sang a great song in "Sweetie." "He's So Unusual" its name. Coming to the end of this story, this firm has some hits in Dowling's "Blaze O' Glory"

"SINGIN' IN THE BATHTUB," from the "Show Of Shows" is a real hit and that goes, boys, that goes. Just "Tip-Toe Through The Tulips," or roses, or woods, you'll find "Painting Clouds With Sunshine," is there with the goods. So a Happy New Year to Witmark's, Warners, too, for the many good tunes that have come from you.

A ND now with this endeavor, our resolution is to never, never, never do this column in rhyme. As Mark Anthony would say, "Lend me your ear," while we wish you this day A Happy New Year.

Reinert May Head Band

St. Louis.—Otto Reinert, former member of Harry Rose's stage band at the Missouri, may lead an orchestra for St. Louis Amusement. Irving Rose is now head of the Skonras radio band.

Distributors Avoid Gov't Action On Protection; Racine Secures Relief

Legality Of Credit Committees Affirmed

"Establishment and operation of a credit committee is not a combination or conspiracy to restrain trade and commerce" in violation of anti-trust laws, in the opinion of Judge Thacher in declaring credit committees legal and affirming his decision handed down in September in the U. S. Gov't anti-trust action against Film Boards of Trade, 14 distributors and the Hays organization.

Final decision on a second case against the same defendants, and involving a revision of the standard exhibition contract, is due soon.

B.O. Receipts Up 50 to 100% Through Sound, Says Newman

"Theatres in Upper New York and Western New England have increased their boxoffice receipts from 50 to 100 per cent with all-sound policies," according to Arthur J. Newman, New York State representative for Vitaphone now in New York.

"Eight out of every ten in the territory have heen wired," states Newman, who pointed out that exhibitors operating small houses are now beginning to contract for equipment while those who are not in a position to wire will soon be out of the picture.

"Theatres up state are suffering, temporarily, because of the holiday slump, coupled with the unusually heavy snowfall and cold snap which has closed roads, shutting out drawing populations from houses which depend largely on nearby towns for patronage."

Newman was formerly an exhibitor and later was with Hallmark, Pathe, Cosmos, and other distributors in New York.

New Fan Paper Appears; Ray Bolton Is Publisher

"Cinema," a new fan publication, has made its appearance. It sells at 35 cents, appeals to the intelligentsia and is not intended for the popular-fan field. In the first issue appear articles by Terry Ramsaye, Eileen Creelman, Jack Harrower and Gertrude Warburton.

Ray Bolton is publisher, with James Shelley Hamilton, editor, and Creighton Peet, formerly critic of the New York Evening Post, dramatic editor.

Grace Moore In "Jenny Lind" Or "Merry Widow" For M-G-M

Grace Moore's first under a three-year M-G-M contract will probably be "Jenny Lind." "Merry Widow" is also being discussed.

Protest Against Fox And Universal Houses Brings Results— All Of Wisconsin May Get Similar Treatment

Milwaukee.—Seven Racine independents who declared they faced business extinction because of six and nine months' protection clauses granted Fox and Universal theatres in that city have been granted part of the relief they have been seeking and distributors have avoided the possibility of a Federal move to spur them into action.

Levinson Joins W-E Coast Studio Staff

Los Angeles—Nathan Levinson, former "ERPI" Western manager, has joined the executive staff of Warners, in charge of sound technical matters on First National and Warner lots.

Levinson supervised installation of the W. E. equipment at Coast studios.

Kane Studio For U. S. Producers

Paris—One of the features of the production and studio development being sponsored by Robert T. Kane will be the availability of special sets for production of quota product by American producers.

"Broke In New York", Berlin's First U. A.

Hollywood.—Production starts on "Broke in New York" soon after the first of the year. This will be Irving Berlin's first for United Artists and his debut as a full-fledged producer.

On his later schedule is "Upstairs and Down." It goes without saying that Berlin will write whatever music is used in his nictures.

Brooklyn Newsreel House Opens With All-Shorts

Werba's old Brooklyn has been transformed into the Brooklyn Newsreel Theatre, which opened this week with a sound newsreel and all-short subject bill, charging a general admission of 25 cents top during the 10:30 A.M. to midnight grind.

Warner Employees Share Prosperity With Bonus

Warner employees all received salary-percentage checks as Christmas gifts, computed upon the duration of each individual's service.

The company, in announcing the plan, stated it had done the largest volume of business in their history during 1929.

Syd Chaplin Arbitrating British Internat'l Suit

London—Arbitrators are hearing arguments in the suit filed by British International Pictures against Syd Chaplin,

The seven houses—the Uptown, Allen, Rex, Granada, Crown, Douglas and Capitol—had taken the matter up with Mayor Armstrong of Racine who made a special trip to Washington to air the situation before Senator Blaine of Wisconsin with an eventual appeal to the Government as part of the plan.

However, as a result of a meeting with officers of the M.P.T.O. of Wisconsin and representatives of Fox Midwesco and Universal Wisconsin Theatres, they have obtained earlier releases on second runs and a break in first runs as well. The decision permitted the independent operators to immediately spot book for the holidays.

Passage of a city ordinance levying a $1,000 license fee on houses charging 35 cents or more will probably prove to be one measure growing out of the condition.

It is entirely probable that the entire protection situation in Wisconsin will undergo a change. In Madison, for instance, first runs have a year's protection over all Dane County houses, and a week on the nearby towns of Evansville, Baraboo and Monroe. In other towns of the state, the protection ranges from six to nine months.

Henry Staab, secretary of the Wisconsin unit, lists the situation in other towns as follows:

Protection periods for other cities are Antigo, 30 days on theatres in Birnamwood, Mattoon and Elcho; Appleton, nine months against second run local theatres and 30 days on Kaukauna Kimberly, Brillion, New London, Neenah, Menasha and Little Chute; Fond du Lac, one year locally and a week on Waupun; Kenosha, nine months locally and two weeks on Oconomowoc, Pewankee and Hartland.

Gov'tFamiliarWith Protection System

(Washington Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Washington.—Complaints against protection and favored treatment accorded by distributors to first runs in various sections of the country have been filed from time to time with the Department of Justice.

That the department is more or less familiar with the conditions was indicated in its recent annual report covering its probes in the picture business when the suits filed against Fox West Coast Theatres and important distributors were reviewed in some detail.

Leaders Confident New Year Will Be Most Prosperous In Film History

All Signs Point To Continued Good Business, Executives Unite In Saying

Sound, plus color and the augmented use of music, presage for the industry its biggest year in 1930, a cross-sectional analysis of industry opinion reveals.

Here and there is sounded a note of warning that economies must be introduced now that the first sizeable flash of sound excitement has subsided and the settling process is at hand. The effect on production is regarded as healthful in that more time can now be devoted to improving standards with less need to divert energies to the many problems that faced producers, as well as distributors and exhibitors, when sound first made its impress.

References to the introduction of wide film are made sparingly and in language usually guarded.

What some executives believe the new year has in store is outlined in the following statements prepared for Motion PICTURE NEWS:

Clear Sailing For All

By Carl Letemnile President of Universal

President of Universal

MOTION pictures should make unprecedented strides in 1930. The past season witnessed a revolution in experimentation and readjustment, With the coming of so radical a change as the addition of sound, nothing else could be expected. There will, of course, be further technical improvements, but nothing so revolutionary. We can now look to the future fairly well assured of clear sailing.

A Peak Year

By H. M. Warner President, Warner Bros. Pictures

WITH the whole world giving its preference to talking pictures over all other forms of entertainment, 1930 should be the most prosperous year that this industry has ever known. The public can look for new operetas, color pictures and dramas, all greater in entertainment value than ever hefore.

A Year Of Changes

By M. A. Lightman President, M. P. T. O. A.

President, M. P. T. O. A.

I PREDICT many drastic changes for the entire industry. The business will present a more solid front and the trend will be upward in every department. More individual skill business will enquired, or the individual without it will have no place.

Mergers will continue. There will be fewer companies, and a greater confidence between independents, the chains, and the producers. I doubt the selling will be stabilized as too many factors are involved to reasonably expect this to happen for at least one more season. Business generally is good. New records will be established throughout the new year, but at the same time, I expect extreme low levels to be occasionally touched. Vast improvements both in sound equipment and in production are inevitable.

Progress Along All Lines

By Sam E. Morris

Vice-President, Warner Bros.

THE industry will witness its most successful year in 1930. The pist season witnessed a revolution in entertainment and while results have been most satisfactory, their full development has only begin. Talking picture entertainment has become a necessity of modern life and with this situation prevailing, nothing but prosperity can lie ahead of the film industry.

A New High In 1930

By Adolph Zukor

The industry has just closed the most successful year in its history. From preliminary surveys made by all branches there is every indication that 1930 will be even greater in accom-plishments. Plans are being made now by all major companies in the busi-ness to meet the ever-increasing demands of the public for picture en-tertainment. Never have prospects been better and never has the industry been better equipped to take advantage of the opportunities offered.

Unprecedented Prosperity

By Joseph 1. Schnitzer

President, RKO Prod., Inc.

NINETEEN hundred and thirty should witness an era of prosperity for the exhibitor never hefore equalled in the history of the industry. This is stated in all conservatism, and is based on the irrefutable logic of events. The talking picture has already created millions of new patrons.

New improvements in recording, reproducing and theatre acoustics are making them ever more popular. The increased use of Technicolor and the introduction, in the very near future, of the wide screen process, should have a marked effect on box offices.

Swing To Film Formula

By R. H. Cochrane

Vice-President, Universal Pictures Corp.

Vice-President, Universal Pictures Corp.

I T would be a great surprise to me if we did not see during the next year a radical reversion to moving pictures. By that I mean moving pictures, as opposed to stage shows, vaudeville acts, and such forms of entertainment. These forms of entertainment were only natural. Sound brought them to us and we took the easiest way.

But moving picture entertainment is a distinct form, an art by itself. Its artisans and architects are constantly working to find the perfect moving picture entertainment, and I am confident that 1930 will disclose the full use of sound, color, proportion and depth developed along moving picture lines solely, a form of entertainment that could not be presented on any other medium than the moving picture screen.

More Stability On Way

By Ned E. Depinet

General Sales Manager, First National

General Sales Manager, First National I T is apparent on every hand that our industry is rapidly adapting itself to new conditions, and that with the coming of this adjustment, there will be an increased stability that is certain to benefit exhibitors, distributors and producers alike.

With the wonderful patronage being accorded talking pictures and the popular appeal of Technicolor, which is becoming firmly established, I can see every reason to look for moreasing prosperity. A vast new audience is being recruited weekly and it will be our task to hold the interest of this intelligent and discriminating clientele.

Percentage Forecast

By M. Van Prang

General Sales Manager, Universal

General Sales Manager, Universal
THE trend of the industry in 1930 will be definitely toward the selling of the individual picture on its merit. This means that the percentage system, as the fairest plan for the exhibitor as well as the distributor, will become more firmly established than ever before. The battle for bookings will center around picture quality as represented in the individual production.

1930—A Readjustment Year

By Harold B, Franklin

President, Fox West Coast Theatres

THE year 1930 will be one of readjustment, made necessary because of excessive prosperity and extravagance during the country's most prosperous period. The introduction of sound resulted in excess visit in virtually every department of the industry. Studios were erected under pressure, while personnel and technicians were added to meet the demand for a new type of entertainment. In a similar measure, theatres were built, acquired and officered to fulfill an abnormal demand, resulting in increased overbeads and excessive operating costs.

Sound Excitement Over, Trade Is Now Settling Down On Permanency Basis

In planning for the new year, therefore, policies established should anticipate that there will be a tendency for people to become more economical in their expenditures. Motion pictures will appeal at the boxoffice in accordance with entertainment value, as the novelty of sound in itself will cease to attract.

Economy in operation will take the place of extravagance, which in the long run should prove beneficial to the industry. Circuit operation will continue to expand where the need requires.

It may be expected, however, that the new year will see an improvement in connection with individual operations where exhibitors study the reuigrements of their clientele. There is a certain type of operation that will show better results under individualized management because of the economies that can be effected by the close scrutiny of the owner.

Sees Drift Toward Originals

By Grant L. Cook

By Grant L. Cook

Executive Vice-President, Tiffany

AMBITIOUS plans of production of 1930 do not mean half as much in assuring the prospects of success for the year as a sincere realization that stories for the talkers are neither stage plays nor motion picture plots forms.

The scenario writer is beginning to feel his new freedom. For a while we thought stage plays, as well as stage players, were the only possible thing in talking pictures. We have learned that a good production today requires a story either written entirely for it, or perfectly adapted. In my opinion many more original stories are going to be used, and on their quality depends a great deal of success in the coming year.

For A United Front

By Charles C. Pettijohn

By Charles C. Pettijohn

FOR one thing, I am hopeful that the exhibitor unit of the industry will intelligently organize itself. Indeed, that all branches of the industry will, during the coming year, be brought to a realization that there are such things as "matters in common affecting the industry as a whole" which demand a united front. Furthermore, it is my most fervent hope that the problem of protection will be fairly and amicably solved, with satisfaction to all.

It may be fairly and honestly stated: That theatres sell anuscement. That churches sell religion. That schools sell education. That newspapers sell news. These four bulwarks of American civilization can do much to help each other. But they should not attempt to run each others' business. Each is entitled to freedom of human expression and should be chargeable, only after they have violated the law.

Let these facts be realized by all concerned, and 1930 will be a most momentous year.

The Biggest Year Of All

By Albert Warner

Vice-President, Warner Bros. Pictures

THE screen today enjoys a popularity never before equalled. The tremendous sum paid in at the boxoffice by the public during 1929 will be even greater in 1930 and this will mean the biggest year that producers and exhibitors have ever known.

Small Towns Revived

By L. B. Metzger

General Manager, Universal Pictures Corp.

General Manager, Universal Pictures Corp.

NENT year, in my opinion, will see a new stability not only in the policies of picture making but in the policies of theatre management and operation. It will also see the deathknell of the $2 picture. The public has sensed that this is merely the show window of the industry. It knows that almost immediately the $2 picture will be presented in the popular priced house. Reversion To Picture Formula Against Stage ldea Seen

Hollywood.—Operettas, musical comedies, straight talkers, a return to the fundamentals of picture-making as against the stage formula, and foreignlanguage pictures are seen by important production executives as some of the significant developments for 1930.

Formidable strides in the technical aspects of sound are predicted. In several quarters, a diminution in filmusicals is forecast in favor of the straight talker, both drama and comedy. A middle ground between stage and sereen, retaining the best features of both is accepted as definite by a number of top-notch directors. General agreement prevails that color and sound with a gradual introduction of wide film will be included among the highlights of 1930

What Hollywood generally believes is expressed in the following statements written for Motion Picture News:

Sound, Color, Wide Film By D. W. Griffith

I LOOK forward to the following innovations in the

I industry in 1930:

A marked development in the direction of 16mm, sound films for the home; the minimizing of background noises in the reproduction of sound, affording clarity of yoice equal to the best radio or phonograph; clarity of voice equal to the best radio or phonograph; the extensive use of earphones, in theatres, for those hard of hearing; the doing away with combersome and trick devices now used in recording speech. Especially will we see the folly of using padded stages when the newsreels have already demonstrated the fact of perfect sound reproduction in the open.

I behave the all-color, all-sound newsreel will be a matter of general policy in 1930. Also that the technical development of wide film, such as the Bitzer process, will enable proper projection of enlarged pictures on mammoth screens without distortion, flicker or out of focus effects.

Star System Out

By Darryl F. Zanuck Associate Executive in Charge of Production, Warner Brothers Studio

MORE than ever the story will be the important thing in production during 1930. The day is gone when the story can be written for any one star. The public bas grown wase to entertainment values and wants something more than just a great name connected with a picture.

We will see better pictures produced this year than ever before. We have thrown off the shackles of an arbitrary star system and we have outgrown all the early difficulties connected with the making of talking we are on firm ground for 1930 and moving full speed ahead.

Talking Dramas To Lead

Neither would it be surprising to observe a decline of the hurriedly-made musical pictures which are already againing to surfeit the market.

1930 will be a year of adjustment within the industry. A balance will be struck between the various types of entertainment best suited to the public's taste. Good musical shows and operettas will always be popular, but I believe that the greatest possibilities lie in the production of strong dramatic plays.

One of the greatest developments of the next few years, in my opinion, will be the appearance of small intimate theatres for the exhibition of dramatic talking nictures. They will be at a direct variance with

More Variety Seen In 1930 Production

By Walter R. Greene

Hollywood-Technical problems in sound have been largely brought under control. Every week sees a greater case in production with increasing latitude allowed the director, players and cameraman. The inevitable result is that 1930 production will be marked with a far greater variety than has been apparent so far.

The year will usher in a new era. With the foundation definitely laid, productions will fall into two distinct classifications-talkers and musicals.

The talking feature will present a wider variety of backgrounds than has been the rule during 1929. Dialogue will go out of doors for many stories; characterization through dialogue will provide the foundation for a number of productions; pictures will contain more dramatic power through the interpretation of story material via dialogue and action. Motion picture technique with talk added will supplant the numerous slow-moving stage plays transferred to the screen, which has been the general condition of talkers in the year just closing.

Every producer will deliver a certain percentage of filmusicals. They will be entirely different in construction from the dramatic or comedy talker. Whereas, the two latter classifications demand smoothrunning and finely developed stories, the musical will make musical numbers, dance ensembles, special stage settings, color and other factors predominant with the story light and inconsequential. the huge show houses that have been erected in the last five years. They will create the atmosphere of intimacy obtained in the legitimate theatres now presenting dramatic plays.

The large film houses, of course, will continue in operation. Their function will lie in the exhibition of the spectacular, muscal type of picture. The screen will have its development in these large theatres.

Back To Film Technique

By B. F. Zeidman

A CTION, with dialogue, rather than dialogue with limited action, will characterize the motion pictures of 1930. The already established trend away from stage and hack to film technique will be even more pronounced. Dialogue certainly is here to stay but the plus quality in future pictures will be action.

A Quality Year Inevitable

By Edwin Carewe

WITH the talkies becoming more or less stabilized, the merger era practically over, and a consistent distribution market more than mere probability, 1930 should be a banner year in the industry.

The talkies have permitted introduction of stories made as silent films ten years ago and with the alvantages of sound and a new generation among the picture audiences there seems to be no reason why 1940 should not bring to the public butter pictures; dramas which have punch and novelty.

The mechanical handling of sound on film and on the screen has progressed to the point where it is

J UST as the past year has witnessed a tremendous improvement both in the type and in the recording of talking motion pactures, so will the coming year bring retinements which will add to the value of sound pictures. Principal among the developments most needed is improvement of the acoustical properties of the average theatre.

Engineers all over the country are now conducting experiments to add to the store of data already accumulated on theatrical acoustics. Up to the present time theatre owners and managers have given this subject too little consideration, but the coming year will see a lively interest in the endeavor to better the sound properties of the various houses.

Must Keep Plans Flexible By William Le Baron

PRODUCERS start the new year with glorified plans for pleasing the public. They may have to change their objective several times before that year ends.
Talking pictures present such a new field that any picture planned six months ahead may be far out of step when that time arrives.

I look for 1930 to bring many changes in the mosaic that makes up the talking picture schedule for the year. We shall be flexible enough to keep our pictures as nearly in consonance with what the public wants as possible. It would be folly to say now thia we would make a certain type of picture next September; by that time the people who put their money through the wicket to buy entertainment may have elected something entirely different.

I believe every producer will do well to keep the type of picture flexible; that will be the salvation of successful talking picture entertainment.

An Era Of Originality By Jack L. Warner

Vice-President, Warner Brothers Studio

ORIGINALITY will be the keynote of screen entertainment during 1930. Types of drama, episodes and themes unknown heretofore to the screen, will be introduced, and successfully. The developments of the past year were phenomenal, but in the light of the accomplishments to come in 1930 they must be regarded as experimental probings. Hence "from jazz to the future ramifications of audible screen entertainment.

In a practical sense the talking picture has freed itself from related arts, depending on them but not being controlled or limited by them. The realization of this strikes the profound keynote for it means that screen drama has acquired the confidence and resourcefulness of full independence. The fruit of this realization will be evidenced in the originality, scope and perfection of 1930's and succeeding years' audible picture production.

Field Opens Up By Harry Cohn

By Harry Coha

The less thing that can happen to the industry in 1930 is a continuation of what happened in 1920. The outgoing year saw the reins of the industry gathered in one after another into the hands of the electrical interests and the financial powers.

What results—good or evil—will come of this, we shall have to wait to see.

One thing is certain, the very monopoly which mergers and banking movements are creating is, strange to say, restoring competition.

The electrical interests and big bankers have no petty asses to wrind, no favories to lean to, no small realisations to murture, no studio politics to play. They want a profitable, money-making industry. They know the only way to get it is by giving the public great postures. So ultimately what they want is great pictures. And they don't care who makes them!

The field is open again, and the so-called "little fellow"—perhaps better!

lywood thinks, will accept them as entertainment, and not be too critical of story values.

The theme song will have no place of weight in 1930. Song numbers will be included in many dramatic and non-musical pictures, but they will be spotted and plugged in sequences where they difinitely belong, and will not be included in a production just for the sake of having a socalled theme song.

New personalities will be developed during 1930 to "draw" potentialities. Many of the new stars and featured players will be recruited from the stage, but a large number will undoubtedly come up from the ranks of former silent film "unknowns." Producers may be expected to use careful judgment in selection of present stage stars for films, experience during the past year demonstrating that stage favorites need more than a Broadway reputation to make them box-office.

The influx of stage directors and writers will continue during 1930, but the bulk of production will be handled by recognized silent film directors and writers. The year will see greater use of color in musicals and "flash" pictures than ever before, with indications pointing to a greater quality in color effects achieved. It is unlikely that color will supersede the regulation black and white films entirely during the year. Although the trend is definite, there are several problems that have to be overcome, the two most important of which are expense of both negative and positive prints, and limited capacities of the two big color laboratories.

Wide film will receive practical experimentation by several producers, who plan

must overcome. The coming season indicates that the serven will witness more action, intelligently combined with dialogue, than it has seen since the introduction of speech to the cinema.

Outlook For Shorts Bright

By Al Christie

IN the field of short comedies, the outlook at the beginning of the new year was never as bright as it is now. With sound no longer a novelty, the old standards of quality and variety in this form of entertainment will again come to the front. Nineteen hundred and thirty will see the full effect from a prestige as well as money standpoint of the great strides which have been made in this branch of the industry during the past twelve months. New star values have been established in short comedies and till greater progress will be made in the material filmed next season. This all should result in greater appreciation by the theatres of the values they are receiving and greater efforts on the part of exhibitors to realize the full hox-office value therefrom.

Even Greater Array of Stars By Paul Bern

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Producer

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Producer

THE talking picture has moved forward with such speed that it is almost breath talking. The first great opera star has appeared in "Regue's Song," great dramatists and dramatic stars have entered the new field, and the year 1930 will see, without a doubt, the greatest array of celebrities ever offered the jubble in pictures. They range from Weber and Fields to artists and the plane of George Arliss. With such artists and the huge production plans ahead, 1930 means the greatest array of shows the public has ever been given—and that, of course, means prosperity unprecedented for the theatres of the world.

Good Showmanship In Front

THERE will be no trend in talking pictures during 1930, for anything that is entertainment makes good screen material in this new era of sound.

If a story of the Eleventb Century is entertainment, it will be made; if ten stories of the Eleventb Century are entertainment, ten will be made.

Sound has opened up to us unlimited possibilities; the cameras no longer are handicapped by Imitations imposed by sidence. The public may expect every conceivable type of picture, with no trend—other than the trend of good showmanship—predominant.

Tile year 1930 will, without a doubt, see more amazing developments in the picture industry than any former period, and, because of the great entertainment in store in forthcoming talking productions, the theatres of the world face in hitherto undreamed of prosperity. I think that 1930 will mark the most important milestone in the history of our industry, Greater stars, writers, directors and musical composers are daily being added to the list of celebrities catering to the public through the talking picture, and this cannot but result in enormous strides.

Possibilities Untouched

By Paul Fejos

I EXPECT to see the art of motion pictures attain new heights in 1930. We have tilled a new field—and the time is ripe for harvest. I think that the possibilities of the talking picture are just unfolding before us. I regard those possibilities as tremendous. We have passed the period of experimentation, generally speaking. We can now utilize to the full what we have learned.

Must Protect Foreign Trade

By David O. Selznick

Executive Assistant to B. P. Schulberg, General Manager of West Coast Production for Paramount Manager of West Coast Production for Paramount I BELIEVE that the most important development in motion pictures in the year 1930 will be the necessary entrance by American companies into the field of foreign-language productions. Obviously, audiences of other countries will shortly demand talking pictures inst as American andiences have. With the important toreign revenue endangered, it becomes necessary to consider making pictures in the various foreign languages, in America or abroad.

Sees Death Of Silent Films

By William R. Fraser

General Manager, Harold Lloyd Corp.

Note that place, 1930 probably will sound the death-knell of the silent pacture. The major companies in all probability will completely abandon the production of the non-synchronized pictures. The cost of their production will be more than box-offices not equipped with sound projection can possibly return during this year. That means the small theatre owner either will install some kind of equippment or else return from business. Even the foreign field will offer very limited returns on silent versions.

5-5-5 Group In Broad Agreement On Reforms, But Methods Vary Widely

Concede Need For New Contract, Revised Protection and Arbitration—Allied Alone In Plan To Cut Overseating

Allied and the M.P.T.O.A. are in agreement that a new contract, revised protection and a modified system of arbitration are necessary before difficulties in exhibition can be ironed out. Affiliated theatres which reap the most direct benefit from extended protection are also in accord and recognize the need to alter the current Control of theatre expansion, heavily stressed in the Allied proposals, finds no welcoming echo in the platforms prepared by the M.P.T.O.A. or affiliated theatres.

Aside from this one major point, the members' groups represented at the 5-5-5 conference are in general accord-in principle. How the actual formulas governing these various trade practices will be worked remains to be seen. The procedure is expeeted to be marked by tilts among the various interests.

The proposals, as prepared by the M. P. T. O. A. follow:

"The Motion Picture Tbeatre Owners of America, through its committee appointed by its president, M. A. Lightman, at the request of Sidney R. Kent, desires to take this opportunity of expressing its confidence in the outcome of the conference now in progress. The recent meeting of a committee from Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America and the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America and the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America having resulted in substantial relief to a great number of independent exhibitors operating small theatres, fortifies our confidence in the present deliberations.

"Our committee desires to express its sincere belief that all parties to this conference are working for the common good and also that fundamentally we are agreed upon the major issues to be discussed; that such detail as remains to be worked out, approached in the same spirit of intelligent cooperation that has characterized our previous meetings, cannot but work to mutual agreements that will be for the general good. "We, therefore, accept this opportunity of expressing our opinions upon matters that we consider of the utmost importance in these deliberations.

Organization

"The need for a single outstanding national organization with state or zone branches is manifest to all who, for a moment, contemplate the splendid force it would be in working out the many problems we have in common, such as taxation, legislation, censorship, public good-will, etc.

"We favor the creation of such an organization or the merging of the present organizations upon such terms and with such understandings as shall be mu-tually agreeable and suited to the best interests of all concerned in this splendid industry.

all concerned in this splendid industry.

"We feel that a plan could be worked out so that such an organization could be independently controlled, and in a manner satisfactory to the independent and affiliated theatre operators as well. Such an organization could be made eventually to embrace all of the theatres in the country.

"We feel that the best results would be obtained by giving the matter due deliberaion, and arranging for future conferences.

Contract

"Due to the new developments in our business, the form of contract in general use is now obsolete, and a joint contract committee should be requested to, at as early a date as convenient, draft a new agreement, in form brief and concise, and in subject matter clear in definition of the rights, obligations and duties of the parties with respect to all matters. We believe that there are numerous matters requiring consideration, and believe that these matters should be submitted to the committee for their action. We will contribute our efforts to that end at the proper time, but at this moment, we want to particularly point out the following:

a. A more definite availability clause.

b. The climination of all score charges.

c. The privilege of cancellation of 10 per cent of the film rentals.

d. A more definite commitment on the part of the distributor for the delivery of good prints, realizing that the advent of sound makes this imperative.

Sees No Method To Control Building

Affiliated theatres, represented at the 5-5-5 conference held prior to Christmas in New York in an effort to end malpractices in exhibition, will oppose attempts to control theatre building.

Conceding that protection calls for revision and that a zoning of the country with each zone controlling its own sitnation might prove the remedy, this group declares it cannot countenance the Allied plan to control theatre construction. Its program is ontlined in the following official transcript of the text:

cial transcript of the text:

A—Protection: We believe that the discussion of the past few days have cleared the way for a general solution of problems growing out of this subject matter. That a fair and intelligent zoning of the various distributing centers and key cities throughout the country will solve most of the questions. That upon the failure of the various elements in these zones to solve this problem for themselves a properly constituted committee of all interested parties can be set up in New York to which the matter can be referred for solution, appeal or review.

B—Regulation or restriction of theatre building or expansion is impractical for the following reasons:

1. We are advised that any attempt on the part

1. We are advised that any attempt on the part of the various committees here assembled or anyhody else to lay down rules and regulations for the restriction of the building or acquisition of theatres would be in restraint of trade and is a subject matter concerning which the various groups cannot be about the properties of the proper ter concerning w legally take action.

Many of the present exhibitors and certainly many more of the potential exhibitors do not belong to any organization and would not be affected by the proposals.

3. Expansion programs are rarely advertised in advance of execution and are frequently impossible to cancel when once a start is made. The whole country and each situation in it cannot be canvassed

4. To restrict building in any locality would confine the industry and block development. Invention and innovation are essential to growth. Vision and progress and the right of the public to enjoy the henefits thereof cannot be arbitrated.

We retreate our statements heretoffore expressed that coercive or oppressive methods of theatre acquisition or expansion by anyone, whomsoever, should he and is condemned.

excess charge over this amount should be borne by distributor.

f. If a work sheet is used to promote the sale of a contract, it shall be signed and will, thereatter be considered as a part of the contract.

Protection

"We believe that fair and reasonable protection in our business is necessary. However, it is our judg-ment, that the fair-minded in our industry—producer, distributor and theatre-owner alike—are cognizant of its abuse by some exhibitors.

"In numerous instances throughout the country, protection privileges are demanded by exhibitors and granted by distributors that can find no justification, and that are entirely without the bounds of fairness and right.

"We most vigorously condemn this practice, and urges that committees, representing the various interests involved, be created in the different film zones, to the attention of whom these matters may be directed, with a view of establishing by mutual agreement fair and equitable protection as to time, locality, distance and character of theatre.

"That a national committee of two distributors, two affinated theatre owners and two independent theatre owners he appointed by the respective organizations before whom the findings of the zone committees may be reviewed at the instance of the agencieved party. That this national committee he appointed as each case arises.

Theatre Expansion

"After considering the problem of theatre expansion, on the part of chains throughout the country, we have come to the conclusion that there is no feasible way in which this can be controlled, since the parties who combined themselves to this agreement would not be the only ones who can build theatres, and that a number of exhibitors who are in neither of the exhibitor organizations, and who would not be bound to this agreement, could do this very thing that such an agreement would try to prevent.

Arbitration

"We are inclined to the view, and we here declare that the method of arbitration now in force has been effective, and proven of inestimable value to the vast majority of those engaged in the various branches of our business. That it has not met with unanimous approval, we grant, and we helieve that it would be for the best interests of all to incorporate such changes as may clarify the operation of the board and he mutually acceptable to all branches of the industry.

"In view of recent developments, we are of the opinion that arbitration m any specific instance must be by mutual consent. We, therefore, suggest that at the time of the taking of the contract, a separate agreement be entered into calling for arbitration of the disputed terms of the contract. We suggest that the rules for the conduct of the arbitration court be an integral part of the arbitration agreement.
"For a setup of the Board that we feel should be an integral part of the arbitration agreement.

"For a set-up of the Board that we feel should be acceptable to all, we recommend the following:

"For the hearing of any particular case, the Film loard of Trade president, or other designated officer, shall appoint four members of the organization, and the properly designated officer of the local exhibitor organization shall also appoint four members. These eight names shall be submitted to the interested parties at least seven days prior to the date scheduled for the hearing. The parties at interest shall each have he right to reject any three of the names submitted, such rejection to be mailed to both the Film Board of Trade secretary and the secretary of the local theatre owners organization within forty-eight hours of the receipt of such list of names.

"In the event that six names have been rejected, theatre owners organization within forty-eight hours of the receipt of such list of names.

"In the event that six names have been rejected, the board shall consist of the two remaining names; and in the event four have been rejected, four shall sit; if two are rejected, then six shall sit. In no event however, shall the board consist of more than three from each organization; and in no event shall the board consist of more members from one side than the other, the additional names of one organization over the other to be stricken off by the proper officer of the organization to which they belong.

"As an alternate plan for the set-up of the board, we suggest the appointment by the properly designated officers of each organization (distributors and exhibitors) of two men each, with each side having the right to reject three names. In the event challenges are made, additional names shall be submitted to take the place of those rejected, and the same rejectional rights shall exist. If, bowever, additional hallenges are made, the respective officers of the distributing and exhibitor organizations shall make additional appointments, and these shall hear the case.

"As to the other rules necessary for the conduct the search was a correctly but in a way and opposition to the adoption of the uniform arbitiation law by the States will abate.

Added to the above, and in our opinion effective in the vast majority of cases, the full moral backing of Exhibitor Organizations, coupled with the wholl-fair system outlined above, would effect compliant with the award in a vast number of cases.

As an additional incentive to compliance, provision should be made that any one refusing to arbitrate on abide by an award, shall not thereafter receive the benefits of the machinery thus set up, until purged of his recalcutance.

Contract

Form: It is strange that an industry that has made since ethnits to solve its peculiar problems and discountable and its troubles in continual governing the relations between Exhibitor and Instrument that is so verbose and so involved that very few laymen understand its provisions of an econversant with their rights and obligations the required.

that governing the relations between Exhibitor and Jistitubilor an instrument that is so verbose and so involved that ever few laymen understand its provisions of are conversant with their rights and obligations thereunder.

I test of all this instrument must be written in a language that will leave no doubt as to the meaning of its provisions. It, therefore, becomes necessary to resolve the Standard Exhibition Contract for the benefit of all in the industry. Moreover, the contract is altegether too lengthy to be of practical service and very few Exhibitors take the trouble to read all of its provisions at the time of its execution, relying perhaps on the assertance that it is a uniform standard contract that cannot be changed. Since this is so, it appears to be an economic waste to print every single clause on every one of the many contracts that the Exhibitor is called upon to sign. The suggestion is, therefore, made that the uniform contract when mutually agreed upon shall be the Master Contract on that a simple contract be drawn for the Exhibitor osign at the completion of negotiations, this contract to control only those provisions that are peculiar to the transaction and to incorporate by reference the general provisions of the Standard Exhibition Contract. This would simplify each transaction and the Exhibitor would be called upon to read only those terms that pertain peculiarly to the single transaction. We submit that once a uniform contract lengths, the Exhibitor would actually have placed in front of him an order blank containing a schedule of the pictures he was buying, the price thereof, run and protection. This order blank should also contain space for any special arrangement.

It is not enough, however, that the contract be simplified by reducing its size and claritying its meaning. It must be made equitable for both parties to be made upon to have been made but concerning the public of which he knows nothing, while the Distribution in any instances knows of its infector quality and unitars for t find favor with the public. For their protection he should not be compelled to run pictures of poor quality. As he has no voice in the making of the pictures, he should have the right to chimmate poor partires to a reasonable degree. If the picture is worth while, the Exhibitor's husiness judgment will prompt him to run it. If it is poor, he should not he expected to run it, and if there is an economic loss it is best for the industry that the industry assume he loss rather than that the public be made to view a poor picture. The Exhibitor should, therefore, have he right to exclude at least ten per cent of the pictures actually purchased without payment therefor. It is only fair that the Exhibitor have the right to exclude noor pictures when the Distributor reserves to himself and actually exercises the right to decide not to produce certain pictures that have already been sold, merely because he feels that it may be unproviable for him to make those pictures.

Pictures Not Made by the Seller: In the next place the Exhibitor from his dealings with the Distributors has learned from experience in whose product to have confidence and to whom to give his valuable play dates. Occasionally, however, a Distributor to have confidence and to whom to give his valuable play dates. Occasionally, however, a Distributor take this picture without knowledge of the fact that it was not made by the Distributor in whose ability to make good pictures be has confidence. It is, therefore, only equitable that pictures not made by the Distributor and the place of preduction.

indicate the name of the producer and the place of production.

Pictures and Records: The problem of the Exhibitor is not over when the negotiations have been completed, for then new problems arise that have to be considered in the drafting of a Standard Contract. A problem that has faced many Exhibitors is that of negotiating two distinct contracts for the showing of a picture. Frequently he negotiates a contract for the picture itself and then has to negotiate for the records or score that he must need to be contract for the picture. A picture without the accompanying synchronization is as useful to him as a dress suit without a pair of pants. It follows, therefore, that regardless of any legal technicalities, or whether negotiations at the same or different times, or from the same or a different corporation, provision should be made that the acceptance of one contract shall be contingent upon the acceptance of one contract shall be contingent upon the acceptance of the other.

Score Charges: The advent of sound pictures has presented numerous problems. One of these is the question of the score charge. If negotiated for at the same time as the picture, the Exhibitor can easily ingure the combined costs and a meeting of minds on both can be arrived at It would appear, however, that when a picture is not sold at any stated price but on a percentage basis so that the Distributor for that the score charge be eliminated. What part of the Distributor's share of the recipts to the set asside to over the score charge is for him flone to determine.

Warranty as to Fitness: A problem that faces the Exhibitor trequently after the contract has dready aside to cover the score change is for him alone to determine.

Warranty as to Fitness: A problem that faces the Exhibitor trequently after the contract has already been executed as the quality of the film and of the records or score delivered to him by the Distributor. As this is entirely within the control of the Distributor, there should be a warranty as to the fitness of use of the film and necords or score.

Playing in Order of First Run: Perhaps one of the greatest causes of dissatisfaction among many Exhibitors is the apparent discrimination by Distributors in favor of theatres controlled by their affinited companies. The ordinary Exhibitor is frequently compelled to play pictures in the order of their release, while the athliated theatre may select the box office bit for exhibition when the public is eager to see it and postpone the playing of prior releases to a more (Continued on Pauge 19) conclusion, would compel the Exhibitor to close his theatre at certain times. Why isn't it fair to ask the Distributor to share in a few weeks of poor business when he participates in a share of so many good weeks husiness?

Making Pictures Available: Perhaps one of the greatest ills in the industry is the over-buying on the part of the Exhibitor for reasons beyond his control, due to the fact that pictures contracted for by him layer not been made available to him for a showing, either because the prior run has not already been sold, or because of the reluctance on the part of the Distributor to assign play dates to the first run account. When the Exhibitor is so delayed in his play dates, the only recourse for him is to go into the market to purchase pictures, but he is confronted with the situation of heing compelled to take perhaps on an entire program in order to secure the few pictures that he needs while he is being delayed. The result, of course, is over-buying and later in the season be is confronted with assignment of play dates available to him. Surely the contract should be drawn so as to provide this Exhibitor with a remedy. Either the Distributor should be compelled to assign play dates to the first run and should not be permitted to sell a subsequent run until the prior run has already been sold, or else the Exhibitor who is so delayed and is compelled to purchase other pictures should bave the right to cancel the pictures that he has been delayed in showing.

Cancellation After 90 Day Closing: Occasionally it occurs that an Exhibitor is compelled to close his theatre because of poor business conditions and when much later he reopens this theatre he is confronted with the fact that he must play the pictures already under contract. A theatre can be used only as a theatre and the womer closes it only as a last resort, and invariably the reason for the closing is because of his inability to do profitable business with the poor quality of pictures delivered to him, and the chances of making the inves

Zoning

A Zoning Plan that will define clearly the protection that can be given any theatre contained in the area zoned, which, of course, has taken into consideration all of the elements necessary to an intelligent decision, is not only highly desirable but positively necessary.

The plan, to be efficient, must in the first instance be the product of conferences between the interested parties in the particular locality in which the plan is to operate, and, therefore, its application is limited only to the vicinity affected.

Such a Zoning Committee, we feel, should consist of an agreed number of distributor representatives to work with a like number of exhibitor representatives to work with a like number of exhibitor representatives of a Zoning Committee shall be:

1. To canvass the situation and to write such a tentative plan.

2. Before adoption give notice either by hearing or by placing in the hands of each theatre affected a copy of such recommendations.

3. To listen to and give consideration to objections or recommendations at hearing to be beld before final adoption.

4. To revise such a plan at stated or necessary A Zoning Plan that will define clearly the protection adoption.

4. To revise such a plan at stated or necessary adoption.

4. To revise such a plan at stated or necessary intervals.

The success of such a Zoning Plan is dependent, naturally, upon the positive adherence to it by all exchanges, and, therefore, inasmuch as they have the balance of power or decision the finding of such a Committee must be made final for all exchanges who are members of and secure the benefits of the Film Board of Trade.

A few broad gauged principles must be observed in the formation of such a plan, namely:

1. The plan should specify the maximum protection for each theatre to start from the last day of exhibition of the previous run.

2. If day and date protection is included, a provision as to a limited time after availability within which the picture must be played.

3. A rule that the foregoing of protection of one theatre in favor of another shall make such pictures available to all theatres in that zone at the start of the showing so favored.

4. That each exhibitor be given a copy of the plan.

5. That such protection as granted be over specific theatres, rather than area, but that the plan be deemed to cover any new theatres erected in that zone or territory.

6. That in case of the failure of such a Committee to meet, continue or agree, the same shall be referred to a national Committee as hereinafter provided.

7. That exchanges agree to use the terms of the plan in writing protection rather than or in addition to any zoning that they may use for their individual product.

For local Committees, consideration should be given For local Committees, consideration should be given to the practical problem that while certain houses in a zone may be so close to another zone as to make protection between the two necessary; such pratection known as overlapping need not apply to other theatres in the respective zones.

Theatre Expansion

A serious menace to the stability and well-being of the industry is overseating in many localities, a condition that is daily becoming more acute.

We recognize that we cannot by binding agreement curtail such development, nor attempt to stem the march of progress.

On the other hand, unnecessary expansion is wasteful and undesirable from every standpoint, and we believe much good would result if a careful and impartial economic survey were to precede every building project.

full and indestiante from every stangaging, and believe much good impartial economic survey were to precede every building project.

We believe that the following procedure, which is probably as far as we may properly go, would tend strongly to alleviate conditions:

In each Film Board territory a Committee shall be constituted as fullows:

One member selected by the local Exhibitor Organization, one by the Distributor, and the third by these two, from five Arbitrators nominated by the American Arbitration Society.

In any city, town, or locality, where there is agitation for or rumors of impending theatre expansion the local exhibitor or exhibitors, or others, may request a hearing as to the necessity and/or desirability of such expansion. Such Committee shall the convene and hold a hearing on the question.

It shall be the duty of this Committee of three to meet in the city or locality where such expansion is to take place, and afford a hearing to all interested parties. The Committee should give full consideration to the needs of the community, the number of seats already there, the number and class of theatres then running, the legitimate need of outlet for product and return from the locality to the distributors, together with all other economic aspects of the situation and the business in general.

After such bearings, the Committee shall make its findings of fact and recommendations, If dissented to by any party in interest, such recommendations shall be reviewed by a National Board, whose further recommendation shall be published as advisory in that situation.

The necessary expenses of such hearings shall be borne by those requesting the survey.

National Appeal Board

National Appeal Board

A National Appeal Board of six shall be selected as follows: Two representatives from the Distributors, two from the Affiliated Theatres, and two from the National Exhibitors Organization.

This bouly shall review and make final decision and/or recommendation in all controversies which may be brought to them on appeal from local Zoning Boards or Theatre Expansion Boards.

A vote of five out of the six shall be required for a final decision.

In case of no decision by this Board, the question at issue will be referred for final decision or recommendation, as the case may be, to an Arbitration Committee consisting of one representative appointed by the National Exhibitors Organization, one appointed either by the Distributors or the Affiliated Theatre group, and a third to be selected by the two from Society.

VI

Organization

We can see no objection to a single independent national exhibitor organization provided the same is organized along approved lines, and further provided that supreme executive authority in said organization is vested in a man outside of the Motion Picture Industry.

Experience teaches that the head of an exhibitor organization, to command confidence, should have no personal interests that can be affected adversely or otherwise by reason of his efforts in behalf of the exhibitors.

or otherwise by reason of his efforts in behalf of the exhibitors.

We believe the Allied States Association is constituted in a way that will give fair representation to every unit that is desirous of affiliating with her, and that any National organization, to be successful, must be patterned after our plan.

Neither can we see any objection to State or regional organizations having affiliated theatres in their membership, provided they come in on the same conditions on which the independent theatre owners of these various zones are now admitted.

We believe that the National Organization should have a Board of Directors consisting of one man for each and every State or regional organization, that man to be elected by that particular State or region. This will eliminate all politous from the National body at least. We realize that a Board of Directors of this size will be unwieldly, cumbersome and expensive, if they are called into conference whenever some problem arises. We, therefore, suggest that this Board of Directors have the authority to electrom its own number an Executive Committee of ten, along with the President or other executive head, who shall have a vote, they to be the governing body of the National Association. These ten men, as well as the representatives from the individual States, shall be independent theatre owners or the representatives of independent theatre owners.

We further believe that this Executive Committee of independent theatre owners.

We further believe that this Executive Committee should have the right and authority to elect or appoint two affiliated exhibitor representatives to sit with the Committee but not to vote.

We believe that a budget should be agreed upon for the maintenance of said National organization and each unit that desires to affiliate with such National organization should obligate itself to pay its proportionate share of this budget. Of course we can only recommend that, where the affiliated theatres join with the local State or regional muts, they shall leave on the Board of Directors of each organization at least one representative who shall have full voice and vote in all matters. However, such affiliated men should not at any time, hold any office in such associations.

and vote in all matters. However, such affiliated men should not at any time, hold any office in such associations.

There are at the present time some organizations throughout the United States whose by-laws do not normit the affiliated theatre to ion. We recommend in all these instances that local by-laws he changed so that they will admit the affiliated theatres into the above plan. Under such plan we think that there could be one satisfactory National organization and that there would be, if there is not already, a local or regional organization in each district territory, whether bounded by State lines or otherwise. We do not believe that the National organization should interfere in any way with the conduct of the various State or regional organizations unless, of course, they conflict with the principles as agreed upon by the entire industry.

We do not believe the chain operated theatres should be called upon to pay any more in a State or regional organization per theatre or per seat than the independent exhibitor is paying. Neither do we believe that they should be admitted to any State or regional organization unless they are willing to pay as much per seat or per theatre as the independent is paying.

Allied States Association has a binding contract.

Allied States Association has a hinding contract with its President and General Counsel for a term of years, the obligation of which must be discharged to the satisfaction of all parties thereto, whatever arrangements is made.

We believe that a National organization to function effectively and constructively in the interest of the exhibitors, should have an annual budget of at least $100,000 per annum, to be agreed to on its formation, with suitable guarantees.

tormation, with suitable guarantees.

The foregoing, we submit, affords the basis for the effective and profitable cooperation of all branches of the industry in all matters of common interest. We believe that, with this set up, the exhibitors could be brought together in a single National Association, and all classes could cooperate in harmony in both the National and regional organizations. Further, that under this plan, the industry could present a united front to attack from the outside involving the well-being of all.

Trivial Troubles Prove Nemesis of Proper Reproduction, Survey Shows

Improperly Weighted Tone Arm Particularly Troublesome— Complaints And Remedies Outlined In New Sound Article

In nine cases of ten it is some small, trivial thing which causes trouble in sound reproduction. This is perhaps the most outstanding observation to be drawn from reports of M-G-M's sound technicians, the results of whose experience provide the basis of a special series of articles on sound appearing exclusively in Motion Picture News. This is the third in this series.

These men, responding to theatre calls in all parts of the United States, have encountered the same simple difficulties so many times that they now are usually able to tell an exhibitor, from his description, just where the trouble will be found.

Scores of reports deal wholly with irregularities for which the tone arm is responsible. Needles jump. Grooves are gouged. There is sound distortion or blasting. And in most eases, it would seem there's a little tightening or something equally simple, to be done, and presto, everything is running smoothly.

These troubles are so common and the remedy usually so easily applied, the lay mind gets the impression that a correspondence course might be given which would obviate a great percentage of exhibitor's troubles. Indeed, M-G-M is considering issuing a bulletin of such hints weekly through its sound service department.

Tone Arm Causes Many Troubles

It's easy to suggest, from the information available, the subjects which could be appropriately discussed in such bulletins. For instance, the following interesting variety of troubles can emanate from such an apparently simple piece of mechanism as the sound reproducer's tone arm:

Trouble: Bad records: poor tone quality; jumping. Cause: Tone arm overweighted and with a great deal of side play, causing the needle to chip the groove walls and produce distortion and blasting. Remedy: Removal of five ounces of weight from tone arm and tightening of adjustments.

Trouble: Repeats and cut-overs; had used five sets of discs on one production. Cause: Two machines with reproducer arms of different lengths; needle drifting to inside of disc because machines were not levelled. Remedy: Replacement of arms and levelling of machines.

Trouble: Needles jumping groove. Cause: Pick-up arm has no diaphragm and uses an armature which lacks the flexibility to follow a high range of volume recorded in the spiral of a disc. Remedy: Substitutions of half-tone needles for the full tone needles which were being used.

Complaint: Repeating record; muffled and indistinct sound. Cause: Needle assembly of reproducer leaning far to one side; turn tables not anchored, but resting on blocks of wood and wobbling as if warped. Remedy: New arm and reproducer (because assembly was one unit and could not be straightened by adjustment); anchoring of turn tables.

Trouble: Needle jumping groove. Cause: Weight of the arm too great for certain frequencies. Remedy: Lightening of needle pressure on record.

Motion Picture News suggests that exhibitors file these articles for future reference. When completed, they will make the most comprehensive and understandable discussion on reproduction published in the industry to date.

Complaint: Defective records, jumping and re-tracking. Cause: Pressure of the arm so heavy that needles ruined the grooves. Remedy; Reduction of weight and use of half-tone needles.

Trouble: Unsatisfactory tone quality (new installation not yet used for public show). Cause: Pick-up head of one tone arm was frozen, the armature being almost stuck against the magnet, so that a narrow range of tones was passing; also one very bad tube in amplifiers. Remedy: New head for reproducer arm and new tube.

Complaint: Bad records, eausing needle to jump. Trouble: Tone arms adjusted so that needles were riding records at an angle of 45 degrees; also lead tape wrapping on tone arm heads which increased their previously over-weight by one and one-half pounds. Remedy: Building up the tone arms to the proper angle and also moving lead tape wrappings from front to back of arms to give better balance.

Trouble: Tone quality not satisfactory. Cause: Needle riding too much on side of groove, causing flutter and fuzziness; horns not bafiled. Remedy: New arm; arm could not be adjusted as threads of the set screw had all been stripped); bafiling of horns.

Trouble: Tone too 'harrelly.'' Cause; Over-weighted tone arm that was not passing the high frequencies. Remedy: Trouble was partly overcome by use of half-tone instead of full-time needles, but exhibitor wanted even better results, so ordered a new, better balanced tone arm.

Half-Tone Needles Help

Complaint: Record was defective, needle jumping and repeating. Trouble: Considerable vibration in turn table, which, with use of full tone needles, was causing jumps at points of high frequency recording. Remedy: Trouble entirely overcome, with improvement in sound quality, by changing to half-tone needles.

Complaint: Records warped; impossible to run them. Cause: Warping was very slight and only in one record (new) ef one set, but enough to cause jumping at high frequencies when full tone needles were used. Remedy: A half-tone needle tracked perfectly, even at the high frequencies in the damaged, warped record. Nor was there trouble with the same record of the exhibitor's substitute (used) set when it was played with a half-tone needle.

Complaint: Record so poor that it would not run without jumping. Trouble: Was using reproducer with adjustable tone arm and had weight so far on end that the needle was gouging and, at certain frequencies, hurdling the grooves. Remedy: Adjusting tone arm weight to lighten needle pressure materially; substitution of halftone for full-tone needles.

Trouble: Repeating of all records, Cause: Tone arm so stiff and rigid it had no play whatever and could not possibly follow grooves at high frequencies, even with half-tone needles. Remedy: Replacement of tone arm with one of proper flexibility. As a temporary expedience, operator was shown how he could guide needle by hand.

Urges Half-Tone Needles

There are many more M-G-M technicians' reports of a similar sort, all bearing on reproducer arm troubles. It should be explained, however, that M-G-M always nrges the use of half-tone needles and the elimination of the equalizer in the playing of its records. The company's explanation of these recommendations is that M-G-M claims a wider range of sound than is common to most product and that the higher frequencies are not reproduced with the best quality results by full tone needles.

The equalizer, where included in equipment, is utilized to eliminate surface noises. It also, according to M-G-M, tends to limit the range of sound frequencies which can be reproduced and so prevents utilization of all of the sound qualities which M-G-M claims to be recording. Use of the eliminator is declared to be unnecessary because trface noises are eliminated in M-G-M recording.

This explanation is made to account for certain remedies suggested in this article, and in fairness to other producers with whose product better results may perhaps be obtained by the use of full tone needles.

Sees Great Future For Talking Medical Films

Omaha.—Talking pictures will be used for the first time at a medical meeting in the Middle West, it is said, when the Nebraska section of the American College of Surgeons holds its annual convention here Feb. 3 and 4.

Plans for the screenings are being completed by Dr. Bowman C. Crowell of Chicago, director of provincial and state meetings of the college, who predicts that the medical talkies will supplant actual operations and experiments which are performed at such meetings.

In time, lecture rooms of medical colleges and fraternity houses will be equipped with sound installations for talkies, he stated. Large medical libraries of the future will contain sound films of leetures and clinics for students' use, he also said.

Federal Chemist Warns Against Improper Storage Of Films

Washington.-Stored nitrocellulose films, such as those used in the production of motion pictures and X-ray photographs, present a triple menace: fire, explosion and wholesale gas poisoning, states Dr. Charles E. Monroe, chief explosive chemist of the Bureau of Mines, in a warning urging proper storage of film product.

"That motion picture films were, like thin strips of shavings of other combustible substances, easily ignited, quite inflammable, and highly combustible was known generally in early days, and because of their being composed of cellulose nitrates, many recognized the possibility of explosions resident in them, 'Dr. Monroe points out in his technical report. Continuing. it states that "a characteristic of the film that was then little known, but which was emphasized in a Bureau of Mines report. was that nitrocellulose films could undergo flameless combustion, a process of decomposition which may be started at a relatively low temperature and which proceeds .autocatalytically after it is once initiated. As a fact, film was carefully observed in the dark while this flameless combustion was actively going on in the film and no flame, nor even a glow of light, was seen, though heat was set free.

Decomposition Process Causes Poisonous Fumes

"This process of decomposition also gives rise to the evolution of very considerable quantities of nitrous funcion and of carbon monoxide, and each of these substances is extremely poisonous and, as mixed, very dangerous to encounter. Furthermore, since carbon monoxide is quite combustible, and the nitrous fumes are supporters of combustion, violently explosive gase-tous mixtures may be formed from them alone, or in admixture with air.

"As flameless combustion of nitrocellulose films can be started by exposure to temperatures as low as 150 degrees Centigrade, brief contact with the bulb of a glowing incandescent electric lamp, a heated steam coil, the glowing end of a cigarette, a hot wire, a flame or similar sources of heat, almost immediately will start this reaction, and it may even be started, through more prolonged contact, with bodies heated to but 100 degrees Centigrade, the temperature of holling water. When flameless combustion is initiated in a mass of films it may, according to circumstances, continue throughout the mass, or it may he transformed to active combustion which is accompanied by the production of flame and the evolution of light as well as heat. This transformation is the more likely to occur if the mass of films is insulated so that the heat generated in flameless combustion accumulates in the mass, thus attaining a higher temperature.

"The chemical reactions which take place in nitrocelmass, thus attaining a uigner temperature.

"The chemical reactions which take place in nitrocellulose differ with its mode of combustion, flameless, active or explosive. Fortunately, in the last two methods of combustion the reactions are much more complete than in flameless combustion. They did not yield nitrous fumes and but little carhon monoxide.

Traces Of Free Acid Difficult to Remore

"Little or no attention has been given to the tendency of nitrocellulose as used in film to undergo spontaneous decomposition which might eventually result in spontaneous combustion, and no instance of such occurrence has been brought to notice in this connection. But such occurrences have been very frequent with such nitrocelluloses as are used in smol cless powder and also as are sent into the market in the form of collodion cotton for use in the manufacture of collodion as used in photography and in pharmacy.

"The decomposition referred to has been found due in photography and in pharmacy.

"The decomposition referred to has hern found due to the fact that the physical structure of cotton, from which cellulose nutrates are manufactured, is such as to make it difficult, during the purification processes, to remove from the cellulose nutrates the very last traces of free acid. Yet, if hut a minute quantity of free acid remains in the nitrocellulose it reacts to decompose the introcellulose, producing as a resultance of the control of the introcellulose and the catalogy with the evolution of heat until a consolerable mass of the nitrocellulose is involved and the temperature has reached the point of ignition when free acid, and these reactions produced from cellulose nitrates to reduce or prevent produced from cellulose nitrates to reduce or prevent this decomposition by adding to the mass a neutralizing agent, such as diphenylamine, to remove the free acid products as they are formed, and this procedure has given a measure of protection.

Product Does Not Decompose When Exposed To Air

When Exposed To Air

"At least 75 years ago it had become the established practice in placing long staple pyroxylin, or collodion cotton, on the market, to pack it in cardhoard cartons and, in this method of packing, the nitrocellulose has been observed to remain for years undecomposed, while if the nitrocellulose in these cartons were transferred to tightly stoppered bottles it soon underwent spontaneous decomposition.

"Another cellulose nitrate product which has frequently given rise to disasters through undergoing spontaneous decomposition as packed in tightly closed containers is compressed military guncotton. Yet with this, as with the collodion cotton, it has been repeatedly demonstrated that, if the blocks of dry guncotton are freely exposed to the air out of contact with direct sunlight, they keep materially unchanged through "Another characteristic of callulaes gittatte little."

"Another characteristic of cellulose nitrates little referred to is their capacity to acquire static charges through friction, yet this is very apparent when one runs the hand through a mass of granulated single base smokeless powder. It is easily demonstrated by rubbing a piece of moving picture film when it will attach to itself small bits of paper and other light objects.

attach to itself small bits of paper and other light objects.

"Many ignitions of inflammable and combustible substances have been due to the development and discharge of static charges originating in friction on moving parts, but experimental demonstration of the phenomena is attended with many difficulties and rarely succeeds. It is significant to find in the newspaper accounts of a recent disaster that observes reported seeing 'the first explosion occur in a pile of chemicals near one of the polishing machines' and that the only fatality was that of a man 'found unconscious near a film polishing machine.'

Poison Fumes Formed By Decomposing Films

"Another feature of film disasters is the 'nitrous fumes,' the brownish-red fumes especially produced during the flameless combustion of the films. The nitrogen oxides as evolved from the decomposing film are NO (or NSO2) and NO2 or (NSO4). The NO as set free is a colorless gas, but, on coming in contact with the air, it promptly combines with oxygen from the latter to form NO2 gas which is brownish-red in color.

the latter to form NO_2 gas which is brownishered in color.

"It is possible that, through the reactions of these introgen oxides with the oxygen of the air they encounter, other oxides, such as N_2O_3 and N_2O_6 , are also formed in varying proportions. Further the NO_2 reacts with oxygen and water present in the air, or that produced in the burning, and the N_2O_3 and N_2O_6 react also with the water present to form the highly corrosive nitrous and nitric acids.

"Though NO is but slightly soluble in water, NO_2 , N_2O_3 and N_2O_6 , or the acids formed from them, are quite soluble in water, and since NO readily forms NO_2 on contact with air, it is a simple matter to remove 'nitrous fumes' from the atmosphere by spraying the atmosphere with water. Furthermore, a proper supply of water will quench fires in nitrocellulose films. Fires actively under way in compressed military guncotton even have been extinguished with water applied to them."

What Not To Do In Selling

Washington. - Companies in all lines of industry, desiring to increase their business, have made use of a variety of practices which the Federal Trade Commission, in many instances, has found to be unfair.

Trade boycotts, disparagement of competitors in order to advance sales, misrepresentation, price discrimination and many others are embraced in a list of sixty-eight unfair practices outlined by the commission for the guidance of salesmen.

Highlighted, they are:

Bribery of buyers or other employes of customers and prospective customers to secure new customers or induce continuation of patronage.

Procuring the business or trade secrets of competitors by espionage, by bribing their employes, or by similar means.

Procuring breach of competitor's contracts for the sale of products by misrepresentation or by other means.

Inducing employes of competitors to violat their contracts or enticing away employes of competitors in such numbers or under such circumstances as to bamper or embarrass them in business.

competents in such immores or under such changes.

Making false or disparaging statements respecting competitors' products, their husiness, financial credit, etc.

The use of false or misleading advertisements.

Making vague and indefinite threats of patent-infringement suits against the trade generally, the threats being couched in such general language as not to convey a clear idea of the rights alleged to be infringed, but, nevertheless, causing uneasiness and fear in the trade.

Trade boycotts or combinations of traders to prevent certain wholesale or retail dealers or certain classes of such dealers from procuring goods, or goods at the same terms accorded to the boycotters or conspirators, or to coerce the trade policy of their competitors or of manufacturer from whom they buy.

Passing off of products, facilities, or business of one manufacturer or dealer for those of another by imitation of product, dress or goods, or by simulation or appropriation of advertising or of corporate or trade names, or of places of business, and passing off by a manucturer of an inferior product for a superior product therefore made, advertised, and sold by bim.

Selling rebuilt machines of various descriptions, rebuilt automobile tires, and old motion-picture films slightly changed and renamed as and for new products.

Giving away of goods in large quantities to lamper and embarras small competitors and selling goods at cost to accomplish the same purpose.

selling goods at cost to accomplish the same purpose.

The use by monopolistic concerns of concealed subsidiaries for carrying on their business, such concerns being held out as not connected with the controlling company.

Schemes and devices for compelling wholesalers and retailers to maintain resale prices on products fixed by the manufacturer.

Combinations of competitors to enhance prices, maintain prices, bring about substantial uniformity in prices, or to divide territory or business, or to put a competitor out of business, or to close a market to competitors.

Acquiring stocks of another corporation or corporations where the effect may be to substantially lessen competition, restrain commerce, or tend to create a monopoly.

Creating an impression in the mind of the prospective customer that he is being offered an opportunity to make a purchase under unusually favorable conditions when such is not the case,

Sales plans in which the seller's usual price

Sales plans in which the seller's usual price is falsely represented as a special reduced price made available on some pretext for a limited time or to a limited class only.

The use of the free goods or service device to create the false impression that something is actually being thrown in without charge, when, as a matter of fact, fully covered by the amount exacted in the transaction taken as a whole whole.

Sales of goods in combination lots only with abnormally low figures assigned to staples, the prices of which are well known and correspondingly highly compensating prices assigned to staples the cost of which is not well known.

Discriminating in price, with the effect of substantially lessening competition.

Concealing business identity in connection with the marketing of one's product, or misrepresenting the seller's relation to others, e. g., claiming falsely to be the agent or employe of some other concern, or failing to disclose the termina-tion of such a relationship in soliciting customers of such concern, etc.

of such concern, etc.

Misrepresenting in various ways the advantages to the prospective customer of dealing with the Tying or exclusive contracts, leases, or dealings in which, in consideration of the granting of certain relates or refunds to the customer. Direct misrepresentation of the composition, nature, or qualities of the product offered and sold.

Use by business concerns associated as trade organizations or otherwise of methods which result or are calculated to result in the observance of uniform prices or practices for the products dealt in by them with consequent restraint or elimination of competition, such as use of various kinds of so-called standard cost systems, price lists or guides, exchange of trade information, etc. Securing business through undertakings not carried out and through disbonest and oppressive devices calculated to entrap and coerce the customer or prospective customer, such as—
Securing prospective customer, such as—
Securing prospective customer, signature by deceit to a contract and promisory note represented as simply an order on approval, securing agents to distribute the seller's products through promising to refund the money paid by them should the product prove unsatisfactory, and through other undertakings not carried out.

The Mighty

(Paramount-All Dialogue)

Good—But Not Mighty Good

(Reviewed by Alvin Meyers)

THIS is the type story that has come to be regarded as typical for George Ban-croft. As such it is good. You have the gunman turned copper and the spurning of the primrose for the straight and narrow. Added for good measure is some war stuff and the usual flag waving.

Raymond Hatton contributes no little fun and no little help to the action. Dorothy Revier, in spite of a little overacting, does Esther Ralston is little more than eye-filling. Morgan Farley is convincing, which Oland is not. He somehow doesn't register as the maste, mind of the "mob."

John Cromwell's direction is excellent. There were ample opportunities to lay this one on too thickly—all of which he wisely passed up. And a word should be said for Grover Jones who with William Slavens McNutt did the adaptation and the pleasing dialogue.

Use musical shorts-fluffy stuff, the feature is gripping.

The Royal Box

(Warners-All German Dialogue)

Good For German Communities

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

I N New York, in Chicago, Milwaukee, Cincinnati and St. Louis this picture should get some money in German sections where there is a preponderance of German population, smaller houses could take it on for a week profitably. In New York it is being shown at the Fifth Avenue Playhouse, one of the "arty" group and the business has been the best that it has been in weeks there. However, for the general run of theatres it is not to be "The Royal Box" is an adaptation of the play by Charles Coughlan. It is the story of Edmund Kean's infatuation for the Countess of Toerock, and the tragedian's denunciation of the Prince of Wales from the stage because the countess saw fit to come from a rendezvous with the actor and sit in the royal box with the prince to witness a benefit performance given by Kean. In the benefit Hamlet's soliloguy is introduced and a scene with Ophelia.

Of the German cast, Alexander Moissi gives good performance while Camilla Horn, Elsa Ersi and Lew Hearn contribute materially.

Operatic shorts would be right with this for the type of audience the feature will attract.

Box-Office And How!

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

OUT fifteen minutes after "Sally" gets A OUT fifteen minutes after "Sally" gets dunder way, Alexander Gray, for no reason at all, turns to Marilyn Miller and sings "Look for the Silver Lining." Right then and there, for the Silver Lining." Right then and there, logic died and musical comedy was crowned king.

What happened thereafter didn't make much difference insofar as the story was concerned. It is a fact, however, that "Sally" is entertainment—plenty of it from the appeal that is Miss Miller's and her dancing and singing down the line to some of the finest Technicolor sequences filmed to date and the amusing presence of Joe E. Brown.

The story is childish and narrates feebly how Sally leaps from bean-slinging to Millionaire Row in one. A typical musical comedy book full of illogical situations but Miss Miller, in this her first talker, scores emphatically.

Dramatic short acceptable with this.

Street Of Chance

(Paramount-All Dialogue)

Just Another Crook Yarn

(Reviewed by Don Ashbangh)

A NOTHER picture of the underworld—such is "Street of Chance." It has been given an outstanding cast and manages to grip the audience until the end, thanks to the fine performances of the members of the cast, but it's still just another (underworld picture.

William Powell as "Natural" Davis, gambler. gives a sincere and deft interpretation. Kay Francis as his wife is exquisitely lovely. The picture will have more than the usual appeal to a sophisticated audience because of the restraint and finesse of characterization, not only by the principals but by Regis Toomey, Jean Arthur, Joan Standing, Stanley Fields, and John Risso.

The production is intelligently directed by John Cromwell and the underlying tragedy is revealed by some really novel humor. A well made picture, interesting but not a pleasant nor entirely satisfactory one.

Use musical and cartoon short subjects to round this out.

Devil-May-Care

(M-G-M-All Dialogue)

Costume Drama With Music

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

DOWN toward the end of this picture Ramon Novarro queries "Not a very splendid success?" Right then we felt like standing up and shouting, "You bet your life it isn't" "Devil May Care" is just another instance of the French Revolution raising Hades with the hox-office.
Evidently Novarro thought that he must have something in which he could be romantic, sing and still use a dialect. So they picked on the French Napoleonic period. The result is a musical comedy melodrama of the fashion of 1910 on the stage.

Novarro sings, draws, is often charming, is about to be shot, escapes, falls in love with a young Royalist, makes her admit her love for him while posing as a doorman, and finally fights a sabre battle, escapes again and then carries off the girl and marries her.

It doesn't look so hot, although put on Broadway at $2 top. Maybe they are trying to make you believe it's good. All that it is good for is for quick runs.

Be sure and bill up the surrounding program.

Fair Back-Stage Story

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

OLUMBIA has turned out still another C back-stage story. This one is remindful of a story that appeared in one of the popular weekly magazines a little time back. It has as its featured players Marie Saxon, the musical comedy star, Louise Fazenda and Jack Egan. Both Miss Saxon and Egan show possibilities for sound films. But the picture is just about the average suited for daily change theatres.

Miss Saxon is a Broadway star who retires to the country for a needed rest after a hard season. Then for a lark she joins a little burlesque tab show passing through the town, falls in love with the manager-comedian-leading man and countries large after she should nails in love with the manager-confedial-reading man, and continues long after she should have been back on Broadway. Finally her manager traces her. Her real identity being disclosed, the manager-comedian who is on the verge of a proposal turns on her and fires her so that he will have as much of a laugh on her as she had on him. In the end a reconcilia-tion is effected. Several good song numbers appear in the production, but it is a "quickie."

Grab off slapstick comedy to go with this one as it is shy on comedy.

The River Inn

(Paramount-All Dialogue)

Corking Underground Story

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

ONE of the best stories of its kind since "Underworld." It is a tale of Chicago racketeering, rum-running and romance between a drunken reporter and a cabaret singer. But the manner in which it is told and directed will make it sure-fire anywhere.

In it Helen Morgan is herself and plays herself. Jimmie Durante of Clayton, Jackson and Durante, the Broadway playboys, stands out as one of the greatest comedy finds since the advent of the talkers. Here is the coming Chaplin of the "talkies" if they can split him from his two partners. Charles Ruggles gives another one of those corking drunk performances. Atop of all this Hobart Henley, the director, has turned out his second box office smash in succession.

Fred Kohler, as the head of the rum racketeers, is using an inn on the river outside of a small town as his booze hideout. He takes over the town and runs it to suit himself. The Chicago papers send a reporter down and he is bumped off, so Ruggles goes down to find Instead he finds an old sweetheart of his youth, manages to outwit the racketeers, and finally winds up with the girl in his arms. You can run anything with this.

Produced and distributed by Paramount. Story, scenario and dialogue by Ben Hecht. Directed by Hobart Henley. Photographed by William Steiner, Length about 6,700 feet. Running time 1 br. 10 mins, Release date not set.

A Fair Western

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

A STORY of the hectic times in Southern California in the days prior to annexation by the United States. It is a semi-western with a lot of riding and shooting. Suitable for the daily change houses, but that is all. The picture is a Ken Maynard starring production presented by Universal. In the daily changes, box-office possibilities are a little under average.

Maynard, in the role of a U. S. army lieutenant, is sent south to make an investigation of the lawlessness prevalent because of the invasion of land-grabbing Americans. He meets and falls in love with the daughter of a Spanish grandee and finally spoils the plans of the group of land-grabbers with whom he has a rough and tumble battle. This is much overdone. Kathryn Crawford plays the heroine and sings a number very acceptably.

The riding stuff is neatly handled without too much stress being given to the sound. As a matter of fact in the early portions of the picture the sound element is entirely secon-

Night Ride

(Universal—All Dialogue)

Thrills Galore

(Reviewed by Alvin Meyers)

A NOTHER crook melodrama—but it's good. Another star reporter—but he's convincing. Another master gunman-but he's menacing. Another story that smacks of all the newspaper stories you've ever seen—but it holds your interest. All told this has a whale of a lot of audience appeal.

A bank messenger hold-up and murder are committed. The reporter discovers conclusive evidence of the presence of a certain gumman at the scene of the crime and publishes his discovery. As a result the gunman declares a private feud on the reporter.

Edward G. Robinson as Tony Garotta, the gunman, turns in one of those rare performances that calls for superlatives in description. He is better than excellent. Joseph Schildkraut, in his first role in many moons not calling for costumes, is fine. His work, it is to be hoped, will earn him more portrayals of modern characters. Barbara Kent is sweet in a role that calls for little more. John Robertson's direction instills all the action this type story needs.

Use broad comedy and musical shorts.

The Girl From Woolworth's

(First National-All Dialogue)

Neat Light Entertainment

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

A NEAT all-dialoguer that will serve on the average program in week run houses. It won't get a whale of a lot of business but will manage to entertain those who do come in. Alice White is doing probably the best work of her career in the talkies to date.

The story is that of a girl who sings behind the music counter in a Woolworth store but who has a yen for a chance to shine on Broadway. She gets it in a night club, but previously has met and fallen in love with a saxophone playing subway guard. That's enough to ruin the chances of any girl. It does in this case, for the guard busts in and busts the nose of the night club owner when he is trying to force a contract and something else on the 5 and 10 singer. Just for that she goes out and marries the human sardine handler and probably lis-tens to the wail of a sax for the rest of her

Neatly Done

THIS is a jungle drama done in color. It is a neat piece of work. A group of dinner guests are assembled and the host is prevailed on to tell the story of how he acquired a jungle drum. The picture fades into the African jungles as he relates his tale. The natives are shown in their dances as are the slaying of a lion and the dance of jubilation which follows. In color, the animals are shown up vividly. It is a striking short. Running time,

A Fair Novelty Musical

The skit covers the rushed break-fast in the home of Holland, the business-man hachelor; his "hard" day at the office, the eventual trip to the night club—and home again. All the chatter is set to songs, with light dance numbers.

Basil Smith directed with intelligence, but the players are not too impressive. Rated as

Not The Best

TERRY RAMSAYE again sends his cam-eraman to New York shops in quest of the ultra-ultra-ultra objects 'd' art. He brought back good material, but stuff of the same type has been seen before in many Pathe Audios. In the second unit, Walter Damrosch, orchestral conductor, demonstrates on the piano the eccentric gyrations made by various chords. This is pleasing to music lovers. Novelty is offered in the last lap, where Ramsaye screens a miniature drama, titled; "Headless" in which two lovers on a divan "emote" via their feet;

Corking Entertainment

DICK HENDERSON is a Scotch or English comedian. He uses a music shop for his setting, telling a few gags that do not get over, but landing strong with his singing. In addition to a couple of straight hallad numbers he does an imitation of Harry Lander that gets over nicely. His voice records particularly well and his enunciation is most distinct. "Good Night, God Bless" is a corking "mother" ballad and a comedy number "Da-da, Da-da, Look What Charlie's Doing" is typical of the English music halls. Running time 11 minutes.

Not very strong. Act accordingly.

"S LIM" TIMBLIN, a blackface comedian, does the crap-shooting preacher in this colored comedy skit. There are a number of "Spirituals" offered, but in the main the real lends itself to comedy. A sermon that "Slim" preaches is full of laughs. There are a conple of other bits that are sure-fire for the audience. One is the collection plate bit and the other the finish of the mad scramble on the part of the preacher and his congregation to capture a couple of live chickens turned loose in the church. Revue Numbers Are Good

C INGER ROGERS headlines this nightclub revue, in which is offered pleasing musical and song entertainment. The layout involves a co-ed's merry time in a night club with a butter-and-egg man, later re-enacting the merriment for a sister student in her dormitory. Of course, the "merriment" conststs of a comedy angle in which four guests of the club are involved—not so funny—and the numbers put over in the revue show. Harry Delmar directed.

Costume Depots Opened In Two Cities For F.-M. Units

Los Angeles.—Fanchon and Marco units, now playing over a coast-to-coast string of houses, will draw upon newly-opened depots in St. Louis and Niagara Falls for new costumes and scenery. The idea is to keep the appearance of each unit constantly "up to snnff" and eliminate the "on tour" appearance which most stage shows acquire after having been on the road for any length of time.

John And Ina To Try Hand At Domestic Bliss Again

Hollywood.—John's modest Hollywood home was designed for bachelor contemplation only. Therefore, when he took unto himself a wife something of the feminine touch had to be added to the Gilbert sanctuary.

This having been done—so Ina Claire states—she and John, effective January 1, are to hurl themselves into domesticity with a determination that will scotch this talk of divorce for all time.

The local dailies have been playing up the story. For instance, the Times has this to say:

"At the time Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert asserted the parting would be only temporary. Miss Claire took a house in Beverly Hills not far distant from that of her husband.

"It was explained that Gilbert's home was constructed for a bachelor and the sleeping quarters were not adequate, so in view of the fact that both were preparing for new pictures, they decided separate dwellings temporarily would be advisable. They strennously denied then and still deny reports the separation is permanent."

Ad Tips—The song hits: "Singing in the shows daily, 30c-40c-75c.

Ad Tits—The song hits: "Singing in the Rain," "Low Down Rhythm," "Gotta Feelin' for You," "Your Mother and Mine," were great aids in putting this over. The numerous tie-ups with music, book and drug stores were instrumental in calling attention to fact we were holding over for second week. Word-of-mouth advertising also was a great help. In advertising were pictures of different stars each day. It is a good point to emphasize the fact that this show offers two hours of solid, clean entertainment. Stress should also be placed on fact there are 25 stars featured and a chorus of 200. The talking, singing, dancing and color features certainly should be boosted.—Harry Kaplan, Mgr., Century, Minneapolis.

Ad Tips—Feature the great cast of stars—the greatest that ever contributed to the making of one motion picture. Dazzling chorus, tuneful songs exploited.—R. Spier, Mgr., Warfield, San Francisco.

Other attractions, RKO stage show featuring "The Golf Fiends," Rudell and Dunigan, "In the Rough," and Sessions and Roberts in "A Night with the Stars." Weather, cold, snow. Oppasition, "Darkened Rooms," "The Locked Door," "Why Leave Home?" "Half Way To Heaven." Rating, 100%.

SAN FRANCISCO—50c-65c-90c, 7 days. Other attractions, Mack Sennett comedy, "The New Half Back," Conductor Laraia in orchestra concert. Opposition, "Paris." "The 13th Chair," "Hollywood Revue," "Flight," "Little Johnny Jones," "Love Parade. Weather, wet. Rating, 100%.

Ad Tips—Putting Irene Bordoni across as the star of this feature failed to be a strong enough pull in the midst of Christmas shopping and a severe cold wave. In this section a star from abroad does not win recognition as readily as a new star from among the ranks of youngsters. A picture for the sophisticates.—Don Allen, Asst. Mgr., The Des Moines, Des Moines,

Ad Tips—Irene Bordoni, tremendous appeal in herself. Picture's gorgeous technicolor featured, also magnificent settings, song hits and beautiful girls. Advertise as "a $4.40 stage show on our talking, singing, dancing screen."

—Nat Holt, Mgr., California, San Francisco.

Pointed Heels (Par.)

HOUSTON.—Metropolitan (2.512), 25c-60c, 7 days. Other attractions, Publix unit with Zelaya, Pathe Talking News, Sennett talking comedy, "Clancy at the Bat," organ specialty with Wim. Ophocition, "The Gold Diegers of Broadway," "Untamed." "The Glad Ram Doll," "Smiling Irish Eyes," "Sonny Boy." Rating, 75%.

Ad Tips—The very mention of Sherlock Holmes brought back memories to countless adults and aroused intense interest among the present-day boys who have read and re-read the thrilling detective stories by Sir Arthur Conan Dovle. The well-known profile of Sherlock Holmes was profusely used in newspaper and sign advertising and reference to the feature was made in the Monday night radio broadcast from Keith's stage. Male adults and juveniles were particularly in evidence in the week's crowds.—J. M. Franklin, Mgr., B. F. Keith's, Ottawa.

Rio Rita (RKO)

PROVIDENCE.—Victory (1,600), 7 days, 15c-50c. Other attractions, Pathe Sound News, Weather, rain, warm. Opposition, "Half Way to Heaven," "Locked Door," "Sacred Flame." Rating, 110%.

Ad Tips—This was brought back to the city for another week at a first run house and needed little advertising to put it over. The play is too well known to require any heavy exploitation, although of course the picture itself is worthy of heavy ads. Audience appeal, general.—John Garry, Mgr., Leland, Albany, N. Y.

Ad Tips.—It was necessary for the Capitol to run this picture for the third time in Dallas due to popular demand and attendance at advance price records were established. Audience appeal, general.—Ray J. Stinnett, Mgr., Capitol, Dallas.

Ad Tips—This picture is just checking out after six phenomenal weeks, smashing all records for longevity in Providence. Should do excellent business in any territory. In exploitation stress fact that it is an elaboration of the Ziegfeld stage success. Has appeal to all classes and ages.—Matt Reilly, Mgr., Victory, Providence.

"The Tragedy"

T'S a doggone good thing that the future of this business is not in the hands of some of the "executives" who like to talk about that much abused word: "Efficiency."

If it were,—well, perhaps we would all be looking for jobs in other fields.

Why?

Lend us a spare ear and we will pass on the viewpoints of these esteemed brainy men. Ex-theatre managers themselves who in their day would never have submitted to, or allowed themselves to be treated as they are now treating house managers under them.

Says one—"You know Chick, it really isn't necessary to pay big salaries to managers today. We are running the theatres right from the main office and all the men have to do is to follow our instructions.'

What a tragedy!

They are so fed up with their own ability and importance as to actually believe they can run a large chain of theatres from an office miles away from the houses.

Letting regular managers out and replacing them with former assistants with a song entitled: "We believe in promoting our men from the ranks.

Applesauce.

What he really meant was letting out the men who are earning somewhere near what they deserve to manage large theatres and investments and putting in their places a bunch of youngsters who will, for the glory of the title, work for about thirty-five dollars a week.

We can tell you without any too much waste of good space just what the answer to such tactics is going to be.

broken down, inefficient, brainless organization, functioning like a bunch of robots and before many a moon passes by, a group of houses that will be so far in the red, that it will take all the ability of a "real" executive to put them back on their feet with the aid of properly paid managers.

When that man, possessed of such super-ability, plus an extra dose of executive brains succeeds in accomplishing the complete management of a large group of houses by sitting at a desk in some isolated office, then Santa Claus will be a reality.

What is the sense of investing hundreds of thousands of dollars in big, beautiful theatres and then letting nothing more than an office boy run them? Is there any percentage in such ridiculous economy? We think not, and what's more, those men who are accom-

The house manager is the greatest factor in the operation of a theatre. He has always been just that and will remain so as long as there are theatres to operate. A manager capable of hiring the proper help, of training them to function in the best interests of the theatre, to make the patrons comfortable and satisfied, to see that the house is always clean and attractive-and the thousand and one other details, far too numerous to mention, is a man entitled to be paid in proportion to the service he is rendering his company and superiors.

How on earth can executives be satisfied with men who are only capable of carrying out plain instructions. Are they really so narrow minded that they believe no one else has ideas to improve theatre operation other than themselves? It would seem so from some indications.

Don't they realize that the right managers not only possess the ability to carry out the instructions of their superiors but can also make suggestions that would benefit the entire circuit? They are just as creative as the bosses, they know more about their individual houses than the men in the office, and they can originate local ideas that would surely react favorably at the Box Office.

We often wonder how long these "so-called" executives will be allowed to carry out their foolish notions about house managers and the proper salary that should go with the responsibilities of running a high-class modern theatre today.

If chain executives responsible for groups of theatres will show us that they can run their houses with assistant managers, by directing the destinies of the theatres from their home offices, we will gladly give such accomplishments prominent space on these pages.

"Chick"

Street Ballyhoo Worked Great For Mgr. Groeteke

Here is a great gag used by Clarence Groeteke manager of the Maplewood Theatre in Maplewood, Mo.

He had this funny looking ballyhoo walking around with a kit full of earpenter's tools and with a sandwich sign reading:

I AM THE LOVE DOCTOR.
CONSULT ME AT THE MAPLEWOOD THEATRE
MONDAY & TUESDAY.
I HAVE THE SURE CURE
FOR ALL YOUR AILMENTS.

This hallyhoo consisted of one of the tallest ushers dressed in this outfit donated by one of the neighborhood doctors and satchel as we said before was filled with carpen ter's tools. He paraded through the streets and stores and neighhorhood with the sign worded as above. Incidentally, people in the lobby and in the back of the house, which caused quite a laugh.

Thank you, Clarence, how about letting us hear more from you, but a little more frequently than before? O.K.? Good!

It has been said that many of the most successful theatres in the days of their earliest struggle, built up a tremendous interest in their particular type of entertainment through the use of special refund tickets and two for one. That heing the case, it is certainly appropriate for any manager, even if it is modern times, to take advantage of the same tactics in an effort to put over their individual theatres.

In this respect Henry Kimmel, manager

In this respect Henry Kimmel, manager of the Playhouse in Statesville, N. C. has gone in for an extensive local advertising campaign which combines an interesting and "fready" circular addressed to the people of Statesville and adjoining towns and setting forth the fine entertainment that has been booked for the Playhouse Theatre. This same circular incidentally carries a free guest pass which certainly must have brought favorable reaction from everyone receiving one of these circulars.

In addition to the circular itself, special ladies' matinee tickets and children's tickets were likewise issued on the refund hasis with the result that the theatre will shortly begin to respond to this clever type of showmanship.

The MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB is delighted to hear of Mr. Kimmel's latest activities and we are certain that the Playhouse Theatre will be an assured success under his eareful handling.

Keep us posted some more, Henry, and remember that all the information you send us is more than welcome.

J. M. Woods Is Kept Busy Selling Sound Over Circuit

We were certainly glad to hear from J. M. Woods of Gary, West Va., and to learn that their Circuit has now equipped all their theatres with sound. Their Circuit, by the way, consists of five theatres, as follows: The Elbert, Filbert, Thorp, Anawalt and Jenkinsjones, all located in small mining towns, the seating capacity heing about 400 each.

With this particular type of houses to work with, "J. M." should certainly find himself in a position to pass along some mighty interesting gossip in the way of how they are running these theatres and exploiting the pictures to the class of clientele that their houses cater to.

Here's hoping that we hear from him by return mail, including one of his own photographs, so that we can place it on file for future use.

Thank you, Mr. Woods, for your kind wishes to all your brother members, and let us wish you a mighty happy and prosperous New Year.

"Thank You, Tom Olsen!"

"I have just returned from a tour of our houses in this Division, and it will please you to note the interest the managers take in your 'ROUND TABLE CLUB.'

In every house, the managers have their Membership Certificates proudly displayed on the wall.

"You are to be congratulated for building this up as you have.

Cordially yours,

Director of Publicity, N. Y. State Division, Fox Metropolitan Playhouses."

CO-OPERATION!

According to C. J. Latta

You have a dollar. I have a dollar. We swap. Now you have my dollar, I have your dollar. We are no better off. You have one idea. I have one. We swap. Now you have two ideas and I have two ideas. Both are richer. What you gave you have. What I got you did not lose.

This is co-operation!!!

C. J. Latta

-STARTING OFF ON THE RIGHT FOOT-

C. J. Latta, managing director of the Roger Sherman Theatre, New Haven, Conn., starts off his letter by saying, "'What are yon waiting for?' has stared me in the face for so long that I can no longer shirk a duty I owe the MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB. Here is my application for membership and some campaign material in return for the world of good I am deriving from the Club."

Included in the campaign material which "C. J." sent us were many, many interesting items and all of the class of stuff that we would gladly and cheerfully publish piece by piece if we only could get the boss to give us enough space to do so.

We know that Latta will bear with us and keep in mind the tremendous amount ot material that must pass through these columns each week, making it necessary for us to be as brief as possible and just pass on the "meat" of the various ideas that come in to the ROUND TABLE CLUB.

However, in introducing this new member and well-known showman we do not want to pass np the opportunity of letting him know that we appreciate the marvelous sentihis letter when he sent us his application, and ineidentally, he used a most novel form of introduction.

In the event that you have overlooked the hox that appears above this story, we certainly want you to go back and look it over again because the title and hody of the few remarks he makes under the heading of Co-operation are worthy of more than passing attention. Keep it in mind or frame it; it is worthy of both.

As a further preliminary introduction of this active ROUND TABLE CLUB member to be, we would hate to pass up the opportunity of showing you as fine a group of boys as you ever set eyes on when it comes to talking about a theatre staff. Notice the spick and span appearance of every one of these boys and when he tells us that these boys "sell them, and how," we can readily understand his enthusiastic summing up of the crowd that is working under his direction.

Here are some of the hundreds of Girl Scouts lined up in front of the Roger Sherman Theotre on a stunt which bought much attention to the current attraction as well as the house

It shall be our distinct pleasure to pass on to the other members of the ROUND TABLE CLUB through these pages the future activities of Mr. Latta and we are more than certain that his opening letter will be followed by many others dealing with the details of the various campaigns which he has successfully put across in New Haven.

For the present we will take leave of this tine showman, and here's hoping that we hear from him very soon.

Geo. E. Shewell Appointed To Chief Of Exploitation

Surely, you all remember George E. Shewell, who was connected as manager of the Auditorium Theatre in Coatesville, Pa.

Well, it is now our pleasure to announce that he has been engaged as Exploitation Manager for the York Theatres in York, Pa.

George is the type of fellow who would soon make a rep for himself, and prohably he in demand among several of the circuits and theatre operators working up in his part of the country, so, therefore, his present appointment was not a surprise to us. As a matter of fact, we expected it and we expect still greater things from this up and coming young showman.

Some of his activities in his new position will be used in an early issue in the NEWS, or as soon as certain photographs and clippings which he mentions in his letter are received here.

Thank you very kindly for your well wishes, George, and permit us to extend to you all the Season's hest greetings.

Local Pajama Dance Puts Picture Over For Worley

Leonard Worley, who manages the Palaee Theatre in Danville, Ill., used what appears to us to be a novel stunt to help along his campaign to advertise the "Hollywood Revue."

When he learned that the Junior League of Danville was going to hold a pajama dance at the local armory, he persuaded those in charge to feature a "Singing in the Rain" dance as well as the attraction. Several interesting prizes were offered, which included slickers and pajamas, both donated by the theatre, which went to the winning couple. It was a "wow" of a stunt, and certainly helped publicize the picture throughout Danville.

Great stuff, Lenny, let's hear some more about what you are doing out there.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABL

Kopplin's Fine Advertising Is Highlight Of Miami, Fla.

In offering this interesting little story about Harold Kopplin, the manager of the Capitol Theatre at Miami, Fla., it is but to be considered a follow-up to some of the fine things we have already said about him because he justified everything that we have printed previously.

In this group of newspaper advertising, any manager anywhere can find many tips and angles so as to improve his own newspaper publicity. We do not want to pass up the opportunity of mentioning that the SRO ad included in the group was grabbed from the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages for the simple reason that Harold is the type of showman who takes advantage of such suggestions, of course, it only stands to reason that he would use everything published on our pages.

The front of his house organ is a sight for any showman's sore eyes, and we are only sorry that we cannot do better justice to it in showing it here. However, the front cover will give you an idea as to the attractiveness of the set up.

This much we can say about Kopplin's program and house organ if you want to see something out of the ordinary, and a credit to any house, regardless of whether

ment upon the efforts of this fine showman

Although we are going to cut this particular story about Harold a little shorter than we would like to on account of the tremendous increase in the CLUB correspondence. we do want him to know that we appreciate his marvelous CLUB spirit and interest in our activities at all times. Best regards, Harold, and also tell the Mrs. that we are still looking forward to seeing one of her photographs.

What more can we say in commenting or passing judg-

Monty MacLevy Is Forging Ahead In Local Showworld

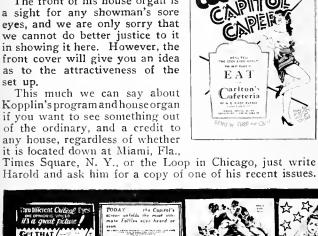

Monty MacLevy, who when last heard from was taking care of the Parkside Theatre, in Brooklyn, N. Y., for the Fox Metropolitan Chain, is now located at the Cross Bay Theatre, in Queens, for the same outfit.

We were rather sorry when we failed to hear from Monty for so long a time, but he has more than made good even though the delay was quite long. At any rate, we have the satisfaction of knowing that he has kept following the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages throughout all his busy time, and has not forgotten about his brother members and readers of our pages, because even with this latest letter he enclosed some of his recent exploitation stunts.

Chief among his enclosures was a prize matinee for the kiddies that started on Saturday, December 7th, and undoubtedly, made the Cross Bay Theatre the meeting place for all the kiddies in that section of the Borough.

We wish we could show the advertising matter turned out for this marvelous business booster, but unfortunately we cannot spare the space at the time, and suggest that if you are up against a problem of working out something in connection with kiddle matinees, you drop a line direct to Monty at the Cross Bay Theatre, at Rockaway and Woodhaven Boulevards, Woodhaven, L. I., we are sure that upon mentioning your membership in the ROUND TABLE CLUB he will be glad to furnish all details and samples of the advertising matter in connection with his latest stunt.

One of the newest stunts MacLevy successfully engineered before he left the Parkside Theatre was on the picture "Gamblers," and he let no grass grow under his feet in connection with this photoplay and the stock market crash. Among the snapshots he sent us was a marvelous window display which we are reproducing here, and in addition he secured a stock market ticker which he placed in the lobby of the theatre and needless to say with the market the sole topic of conversation during the time of the crash, it commanded plenty of attention from people coming into the lobby or passing the theatre.

The latest activity of this ambitious young showman is the organization of a business men's association and Chamber of Commerce in order to create a good will feeling between the merchants and the theatre itself.

We will have to cut this story about Monty a little shorter than we wanted to but he would bear with us if he could but see our desk and the mass of correspondence which accumulated while we were out in Pittsburgh.

Thanks a lot, Monty, for your continued interest and the mighty nice things you said in your letter, but try not to keep silent so long, even if it is just to sit down and write us a few lines personally. Best of luck, and here's hoping we get to see you soon.

Goldquist Also A Believer In Manager-Operator Angle

Speaking about a manager's knowledge of projection here is what Frank C. Goldquist, manager of the Web and Orpheum Theatres in Savanna, Ill., has to say on the subject.

"I get quite a kick out of the various managers who can tell how it should be done, but cannot do more than that. I do not see how a theatre, operating with sound especially, gets by when the manager does not know whether the operator knows his business or not. This has frequently been discussed in the ROUND TABLE CLUB department, so I will not go into it further, only to say that I do not begrudge the dozen years experience, I have had as an operator. I have never been left flat without an operator because they knew I knew as much about it as they did, and more in many cases."

Frank, by the way, is one of those boys who is not afraid to do anything he asks anyone else to do, posting his own paper is only an incident in his job and he can put up a 24 sheet as well as any billposter ever hoped to do. He can hop in when an usher falls down on the job, can relieve the cashier and paint a sign. In fact, there is not a branch of the house he is operating that he can't fill when the occasion arises.

Its all right, Frank, you are not nearly as badly off as you think you are, we could cite a couple of hundred instances where boys out this way are worse off than you ever expect to be. So keep the old nose to the grindstone.

Col. J. B. Russell A Well-Known Figure in Kentucky

You probably all recall the recent story about Col. J. B. Russell, of the Washington Theatre, in Maysville, Ky. Now it is our pleasure to present to you a photograph of Col. Russell, as well as a reprint of one of his programs which you will notice contains a whole lot of interesting information for the theatregoers of his section of

Let us hope that Col. Russell will find the few spare moments necessary from his otherwise busy life to keep us posted on what he is doing to keep his theatre before the publice at all times. The work of an experienced shownan, like the Colonel, is always interesting to our other members and readers, especially the younger blood who are anxious to see what the old-timers and more seasoned showmen are doing.

Lots of luck, Colonel, and let's hope we have the opportunity of meeting you personally before very long.

besides his regular ad which you will see on the right hand side of the page.

This ad while a lot of our members may say has no outstanding points was really attractive to look at and very neatly laid out. It is difficult to really appreciate this type of advertising unless you have the full page before you, as the reduction to this size of cut does not add to its appearance.

We would also call attention to every one of the ads on this same tear sheet which are all tied in with the Fox Raymond Theatre.

Considering the short time that Dick has been out on the Coast for the Fox outfit, he has certainly made marvelous strides, and I am sure he will more than justify his employer's confidence in his ability and future.

What we have shown here is but a small portion of his activities in connection with the opening of the Raymond Theatre, but in addition to it, he has broadcast a junior matinee stunt for every Saturday afernoon, contributing something like 2,000 two for one tickets for the use of the children on the first of two of these special Saturday matinees.

There were so many other interesting sidelights to his campaign that it would take us the better part of this week's issue to go into detail describing them. However,

C. A. Luke Says:

"...I think the MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB is the best organization of its kind I have ever seen, and want to say that I have used many ideas and suggestions from its pages."

this much we will say, that future contributions from Dick Moss to the pages of the ROUND TABLE CLUB will undoubtedly contain much "meat" for other livewire showmen to follow.

Congratulations, Moss, and here's wishing you all the luck you deserve. Keep us posted on what you are doing out there, and remember us to Frank Whitbeck and the rest of the ROUND TABLE CLUB members in the Fox West Coast Outfit.

Gelabert, Jr. Will Soon Be An Expert In Showmanship

In the past, the pages of the ROUND TABLE CLUB reflected many interesting items of Lorenzo Gelabert of Porto Rico who is the Regional Chairman of that part of the world, and who has always been an interested and active member of the Club.

Now we take more than great pleasure in introducing you more intimately to Pedro Gelabert, Jr., brother of Loreuzo, and as we would say in American slang, a chip of the old block, when it comes to things theatrical or from the motion picture standpoint.

As you will note from this little snapshot we are showing of Pedro, he is typical of the young aggressive showman that we are finding out more about right here in the United States

However, I don't want to go too deeply into a detailed description of this young man, but I do want you to see one of the newspaper ads turned out by the Stanley Theatre in Porto Rico, which he is managing director of and making a doggone good job of at that. At this time we would like you to know that the San Jose Theatre was the first of its kind to be equipped with Western Electric Sound in Porto Rico, and from all reports, it is doing an exceptionally fine business. How they are exploiting their attractions will be the next thing we will want to find out from Pedro, and for that reason we shall look forward to his future communications with much interest.

Pedro showed sound pictures in his theatre for the first time in that country and from reports received at CLUB headquarters, they are doing very well. Gela-bert, Jr., has the following to say to us in his most recent letter:

Dear Chick:

I have for the past few months used many of your suggestions, and now the theatre is just above all others, and how! I am proud to wear my membership pin.

Sincerely, PEDRO GELABERT, JR.

That's the spirit, Pedro, and why not start sending us your exploitation and advertising stuff so we can show the rest of the boys how our members in Porto Rico sell the pictures to their public.

Best regards to Lorenzo and the rest of our members in Porto Rico, and tell them we would like to hear from them whenever they can find time to drop us a few lines.

Of course, you must keep in mind that in making these cuts the actual size of the ads themselves were greatly reduced, and therefore you will have to visualize how they would look when enlarged to their proper size.

At any rate, it costs you nothing to look them over, and it is just possible that you may find an angle or two worthy of your consideration in setting up your own advertising.

From 'way far back in the earliest days of our theatre managing activities, we always found the study of other theatre's advertising a most interesting and profitable pastime. (Maybe that's why we had this Round Table Club idea back of our mind.)

But it is a fact as any real showman will tell you. After all when you are turning out newspaper copy day in and day out you are more than likely to either get into a slump or get rusty. In either case you will then find that by seeing what your brother managers are accomplishing along the lines of up-to-date newspaper advertising you can generally pick up dozens of new ideas to inject into your own. We are so sold on this theory that we are constantly on the alert to reproduce newspaper ads on these pages. Send your own along. We will use them as fast as we can get the cuts made. Oak?

We are very grateful to Mr. Stinnett for these samples of his newspaper advertising, and we would appreciate hearing more from him in the immediate future. How about it, "R. J."? Thanks anyway.

Blumenthal Still Keeps 'Em Talking In Passaic, N. J.

Harold Blumenthal, manager of the Capitol and Montauk Theatres, Passaic, N. J., for the Stanley-Warner outfit, continues his remarkable progress in the way of grabbing off corking good news-

Two of his most recent activities along these lines consisted of a story which ran in his town paper about the local football team, and you need but glance at the beginning of

Boucher Puts Over Another B. O. Wow With Radio Contest

Frank Boucher is apparently keeping up his reputation for high-powered publicity and exploitation, because the recent arrival of a Hagerstown newspaper reveals front page headlines publicity for the Theatre in connection with a radio contest.

We have made a cut showing the top portion of the front page of the Hagerstown Evening Globe, and close inspection of the portion of this page devoted to the story of Boucher's activities in that city for the Stanley Warner Theatres will show a most interesting newspaper space stunt that is undoubtedly clicking at the box office, 100%.

Frank has been so busy down there that we have not been receiving our usual share of letters and contributions from him, but we are always ready to forgive this little oversight on Frank's part, because we know he is actively following the CLUB pages in MOTION PICTURE NEWS and always stands ready to contribute his little bit whenever the opportunity presents itself.

"Sign Ceremonies" A Good Pub. Idea For Ray Duddy

Ray Duddy, manager of the Fox California Theatre in Salinas, Cal., is a real good sport because he passes on to us a corking stunt that was recently pulled at his theatre, but insists on giving Frank Whitbeck all the credit.

So that you can better understand what this is all about, we want you to know that this group of public officials, on the marquee of the California Theatre, is engaged in the christening of the new $5,000 Fox sign.

Both business and professional men besides these public officials participated and the Mayor officially turned on the switch that lighted up the town in a blaze of electric glory. They secured a local society girl to swing the bottle of (?) and all we can finish this story up with, is to say IT WAS THE TALK OF THE TOWN.

Any visible improvement in any theatre can be handled in practically the same manner if the manager is a wide-awake sort of a guy. But just remember that the idea came from Frank Whitbeck and to him goes full credit for this stunt that has created so much goodwill talk.

Thank you kindly, Ray, for your fine letter and the photograph. Write again soon.

"The Original Idea Exchange of the Motion Picture Industry"

Harry Stearn Gives Advt. A Local Slant With Fine Results

Harry D. Stearn, manager of the Capitol Theatre for Wilmer and Vincent, in Reading, Pa., used exceptionally good judgment in tying in the local football squad with the picture "Forward Pass." In this accompanying ad which we show here, which ran approximately four columns by 10 in.,

Will He Gave the Signal for the Forward Pass This Afternoon? He will be at the Capitel Menday

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

CAPITOL THEATRE

A SQUAD OF OTHERS NEXT WEEK

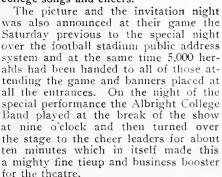

you will note how he superimposed a picture of the entire squad announcing that they would be at the theatre on the Monday night that the picture played there.

In addition you will notice the small ad whereby he ties in the captain of the team with a special small teaser ad which undoubtedly created a tremendous amount of interest in the football squad, the attraction and the theatre.

In surrounding the attraction and the special Albright night at the Capitol, most of the students attended in a body and the college for the theatre.

Not content with this one tieup, he made a similar tieup with the Reading

High School who boast of a student body of close to 2,500, and on another night with the West Reading High School. All of these tie ups are productive of a tremendous amount of local interest, besides attracting all this attention to the theatre itself, and we are certain that Harry has scooped the rest of the boys in Reading on football attractions on the way he has handled this one. And knowing some of the gang out there in Reading, he has got to step some to get ahead of them.

We do not want to close this story without letting you see a fine looking float which Harry had made up to exploit "Big Time" and you must admit that it hands out a little different slant from the general run of floats on this particular attraction. The tying in of the big clock which, of course, has no bearing on the picture itself, is however, sufficiently attractive to make folks know that there is a picture that they should see at the Capitol.

Thank you, Harry, and you can certainly rest assured that we do like to know what you are doing out your way and we are sure that many of the other members and read-

The Real Club Spirit! "All For One And One For All"

So. Africa Club Activities Produce Some Fine Exploits

Information pertaining to the activities of our South African members has always brought a wonderful response from the showmen here in the United States. Perhaps that is the reason why we are so anxious to have South African boys keep us posted on their up to date methods of exploiting the pictures and attractions at their theatres.

Thanks to the marvelous interest and CLUB spirit displayed by Mr. J. H. Stodel, who is the Superintendent of Theatres for the African Theatres, Ltd., in South Africa, we have been receiving many interesting items.

The last batch which came in recently included among other things mighty interesting exploitation that would be a credit even to the boys in any livewire city in the United States or Canada.

As a start off let us show you how Manager. Cecil Thorn of the Grand Theatre in Pretoria, South Africa exploited "Wings" somewhat along the lines of a similar stunt that was shown on our pages not so many months back.

You will have to admit that this would be an eye arresting and attractive display for theatres right on Times Square or the Loop, so that when you stop to consider that this is South Africa, it is all the more deserving of comment. This is fine work, Mr. Thorn and we should certainly enjoy hearing more about your activities.

Still another interesting display for the front of a theatre was that worked out for "Seventh Heaven" by Manager Nicholls of the Grand Theatre in Grahamstown, S. A.

Manager Nicholls, by the way, is a graduate of the special school for managers which was conducted by Mr. J. H. Stodel with the advice of Harold B. Franklin.

This may or may not surprise you fellows to know that Mr. Franklin found time in his otherwise tremendously busy existence to aid showmen in such far off places as South Africa. Chalk up another notch for "H.B."

> Manager, Capitol Theatre, Binghamton, N. Y.

Now we want you to take a look at how Manager Gerald Darrows of the Orpheum Theatre in Johannesburg, S. A., worked out a mighty attractive float in connection with a local celebration and parade.

This is not so very much unlike the type of ballyhoo trucks used right here in the United States. and you will even notice that one of the young ladies on the truck is wearing a pair of the Harold Lloyd glasses. Undoubtedly, this stunt attracted widespread attention and helped put the picture over.

On the same attraction, but at another theatre, Manager

Harold Matthews at the Grand Theatre in Pt. Elizabeth, S. A., worked this mighty attractive ballyhoo parade as shown on this photograph.

Take note of the big cutouts which are being carried behind the socalled band and we are sure you will agree with us that this is mighty fine work when it comes to this type of ballyhooing.

Thanks a lot for these few contributions, Mr. Stodel, and kindly convey to all the boys in South Africa my kindest regards and appreciation for their continued CLUB activity. We are always glad to hear from them, either through you or direct, and we know that they are interested in what their brother showmen are doing on this side of the Globe by following the activities of the ROUND TABLE CLUB each week in MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Croson Does His Own Decorating For Fine Displays

F. C. Croson, manager of the Fremont Theatre, Fremont, Nebr., made his own pennants with which to decorate the theatre front and the streets of Fremont during the showing of "So

This Is College."

Strung completely across the main street of the town were seventeen giant pennants made of sign cloth and hand-painted by the manager. Fifteen of the pennants were used to spell out the title of the picture with one letter on each banner. The streamer was balanced by a huge pennant on either side of the strip of fifteen which certainly improved the whole display because it had the picture's whole title on the one pennant. The cost of this street banner was $5.

The local printer prepared 2,500 paper pennants which were used to decorate the theatre front and the block in which the theatre is located. These paper pennants were a heavy yellow stock and the theatre's message was printed in bold black letters. Total cost of printing $11.75.

Nice work "F. C.," and it's just in line with our own opinion of what you can do once you set out to put a picture over. How about letting us in on some more of your activities and give the other boys some dope on the way you manoeuver your stunts at so low a cost? That is what every one of us are anxious to ascertain because in these days of exploitation at little money, such suggestions are always more than welcome.

Nat Holt Passes Out A New Way To Plug Talk Comedies

Nat Holt, manager of the California Theatre in San Francisco, Cal., did not intend to let a good short subject get by as far as giving it the proper exploitation and publicity was concerned.

Here we show you how Bert Hanson, the exploiteer for the California Theatre, worked out a novel campaign under the direction of Holt on this Edutional-Mack Sennett talking comedy through which they used about 100 14 x 22 display cards with a scene still from the picture mounted upon it. This still, the display card and the copy particularly pertinent to the golf enthusiast found places in many local store windows and also in conspicuous locations in the lockers and club rooms of the local golf club.

The simplicity of the stunt made it all the more noteworthy, and we are delighted to show this fine piece of Holt's and Hanson's because it really shows what can be done in the line of exploiting the talking short subjects which are becoming more and more important every day. Great work, Holt, let's hear more from you.

Notice to Members

PLEASE be sure to notify the chairman of any change of address.

-THANK YOU.

Chas. Carroll's Fish Exposition Brought Free Space Undoubtedly, you will recall our recent article about Charlie Carroll, director of publicity for the Hudson Division of the Stanley Fabian Corp., in which we set forth how he tied up the Hudson County Acquarium Society for an exhibition of Toy Tropical Fish in the Stanley Theatre in Jersey City.

This is in the nature of a direct follow-up of that story and the photograph below with the caption as taken from the Jersey Journal is practically self-explanatory.

We must call your attention to the fact that here is the type of tieup in which a long drawn out description is entirely unnecessary. It was a marvelous stunt for which Carroll deserves a lot of credit, and was so finely handled that the little we told you about it in the first story, as well as in this story, is sufficient for any other member or showman to be guided by.

Perhaps the possibility presents itself to you to make a similar tieup in your own town or city, where there happens to be an Acquarium Society. At any rate, it opens up the avenue for an entirely new thought in theatre tieups, and should afford you an opportunity of working up something entirely out of the ordinary.

The ROUND TABLE CLUB is very grateful to Mr. Carroll, and we trust he will find the time to keep us further posted on the many great stunts he is putting across for the district under his control.

"All For One And One For All"

Weiss-Perlberg Co. Keeps The Pot A Boiling For Publix

Here is another batch of pictures contributed by those two exploitation dynamos of Jacksonville, Fla., namely, Alfred Weiss, Jr., Managing Director and Jonas Perlberg, house manager and advertising manager for the Florida Theatre in that city.

In this group of photos you will notice first the automobile display on "Sweetie." Another photo of the same ballyhoo with Scottie Chestnut the Paramount Exchange Manager of Jacksonville, then the fine looking float used to exploit George Bancroft's "Mighty." Another view of the same truck with a crew of boy scout buglers. The lower group consists of the front and back view of the street ballyhoo for Harold Lloyd in "Welcome Danger." Look this one over boys. Its a corker. The last two photographs on the bottom line, show two of the characters used for the street ballyhoo on "Sweetie."

This represented but a small portion of the recent activities of these two live-wire showmen, as among their other contributions, which lack of space prohibits showing in detail, was an envelope full of candy hearts also used to publicize "Sweetie." A neat teaser envelope reading "Starting Florida Theatre Friday" with four question marks on the bottom, containing a card with four white feathers. naturally, used in a teaser campaign for that attraction.

F. La Bar, Jr. Says:

".... Please allow me to mention that I found the material in your column most beneficial at various times, as it aids considerably in making up campaigns and bringing about new thoughts as well as giving us an opportunity to use ideas which have worked successfully in other theatres."

Plaza Theatre, Asheville, N. C. On the "Kiss" they used a pink envelope letter, apapparently written in long hand and set to a preferred mailing list of 5,000 men only. This likewise was a corking good angle, and undoubtedly created a whole lot of talk among the theatre goers in Jacksonville, especially the men folks.

We will save the rest of their contributions for another issue, but keep your eye on these two boys down there in Florida. Thanks Al. And ditto, Jonas.

C. D. Haug Gets A Fine News Break For Free Publicity

C. D. Haug, Manager of the Strand Theatre for the Publix Circuit in Birmingham, Alabama, is another proud and enthusiastic member of the ROUND TABLE CLUB who makes haste to pass on his recent activities for all they are worth to his brother members and managers.

In connection with his campaign on "Speedway" he tied up with the local Firestone Agency and was successful in securing over a half a dozen free ads in the local paper, all playing up the feature and the theatre, and, of course, paid for by the Firestone

Agency,

In addition the Firestone Agency strung attractive banners across each one of their stations, and this also added to the prestige of the attraction itself. We have before us a half a dozen tear sheets from the Birmingham Post and we do not hesitate one instant to say that "C. D." put over a marvelous campaign.

Another one of his recent activities consisted of tying up with the same newspaper by running a contest on the classified ad page, which attracted attention to the various ads run on that page, besides calling attention to sides calling attention to the Straud Theatre and of course this was just another way of grabbing some publicity that did not cost the theatre anything but a few passes. All of these angles are naturally important to any manager who is anxious to capitalize wherever he can on something that will publicize his theatre.

We are showing with this story an ad that represents 30 inches of free space, secured by Mr. Haug, in exchange for an idea. The idea being that he sold the newspaper on this way in advertising and exploiting their classified ad section.

With practically every newspaper in the country today anxious to play up their Classified Ad Column and to attract as much attention to it as possible, it should not be a very difficult feat for the wideawake showman to sell this or a similar idea to the local advertising manager of the paper.

We are very grateful to Mr. Haug for his fine CLUB spirit in submitting these samples of his recent activities, and we sincerely hope he will continue to keep us posted in the future.

Bolivar Hyde, Jr. An Active Member And Keen Showman

Here is a picture that serves a double purpose, first it gives us an opportunity of showing our many members and readers what Bolivar Hyde, Jr., looks like, and, second, it shows the conspicuous spot that his membership certificate occupies in his private office.

Thanks, kindly, Bolivar, for your fine CLUB spirit in sending us this snapshot, but keep following it up with some more details of your many activities.

Incidentally, talking about Hyde's activities, we wouldn't want to pass up the opportunity of showing you how he exploited "The Virginian" at the Polk Theatre. This was rather an unusual ballyhoo and it created a great deal of talk, which is what every showman hopes to attain when working out his exploitation or publicity stunts.

Remember us to the gang down around Florida, Hyde, and keep up your active membership so that the rest of the boys can see and read what you are doing. Incidentally, if you meet up with that guy Wallace Allen, tell him that we think he's trying to high-hat us a bit. You know, it so happens that we had quite a chance to get to know him, and what's more, we kind of liked him, too.

But, why should we be annoying you with a lot

In the accompanying cut, you will notice four snapshots, one shows a rather large and impressive cutout on his marquee, the second a street ballyhoo of a giant man, the third shows another attractive cutout, and the fourth the anniversary birthday cake in his lobby.

Great work, Sidney, and continue to keep us posted, we like to hear from you regularly.

Hesseldenz Uses Many Angles While Plugging Theatre

R. G. Hesseldenz, who manages the Uptown Theatre in Indianapolis, Indiana, initiates himself into the ROUND TABLE CLUB with one of the most complimentary and constructive letters that we have received in quite some time.

In publicizing "Speedway," the picture that we all know needs a lot of healthy exploitation to put it across, "R. G."

was successful in promoting a Dusenberg race car, similar to the one that was wrecked in one of the sequences of the picture.

As you will see from the snapshot with this story, it was a most impressive racer, and undoubtedly created a lot of talk and attention from the public in Indianapolis.

The ROUND TABLE CLUB is delighted to welcome Mr. Hesseldenz into its fast-growing ranks, and we certainly appreciate the many kind expressions contained in his letter. For the present we have got to cut this story short, but we are sure we will have plenty to tell you about this new and wideawake showman before very long. Keep us posted, "R. G.," and don't forget your own photograph with your next letter, so that your introduction can be a little more intimate than this article.

Fred E. Johnson's Oil City Activities Produce Results Fred E. Johnson's continued activities as a wide-awake manager are even more forcibly brought home to the ROUND TABLE CLUB ever since he came to the Keith's Drake Theatre, in Oil City, Pa.

Fred has a knack of cashing in on every conceivable angle which presents itself in connection with exploitation and advertising, and we already know of his ability of creating good will by working with the merchants on the various welfare organizations in any city in which he is located.

Only recently he ran a style revue in conjunction with one of his attractions and the result of this revue was the selection of a "Miss Oil City" who will be sent to Philadelphia in connection with the State Pageant next summer. The same style revue tied up local dancers from Oil City as well as the newspapers and several other worthwhile connections, all tending to put over the stunt 100 per cent both from the papers' estimation and the box office angle.

Fred is fortunate in having a mighty clever artist at his theatre in Oil City, and we could not help but show you one of the remarkable pieces of art work turned out on Dr. Fu Manchu, which is just typical of the work that is evidenced all around that theatre.

Here is another story that lack of space compels us to cut much shorter than we would like to, but it has been so long since we mentioned Fred Johnson on our pages, that we just had to juggle this one in even though it entails eliminating part of his letter. However, we will make up for this

It has been quite a while since we've heard from Lou

Smith, in fact, almost since the time the Fox Metropolitan Playhouses took over the theatres that he was working in, namely, the Ritz in a succeeding issue in the very near future, at which time we hope to be able to tell you a whole lot more about him and his activities out there in Oil City. Best regards, Fred, and be sure to remember me to Mrs. Johnson. So long for the present.

However, we are sure you will be interested to learn that he is now at the Ambassador Theatre in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn, and as usual putting across some mighty fine exploitation and showmanship.

On the accompanying cut we will show you how he exploited "Noah's Ark" and "Cock Eyed World" while he was supervising the Ritz, Berkshire and Beverly Theatres for the Fox chain.

That you may better understand what this bailyhoo meant, we want you to understand that these flivvers were painted in about twenty different colors. On "Noah's Ark" he had all kinds of stills pasted on the glass in the windows and the flivver stopped often enough to give the cash customers on the sidewalk a chance to step up and observe what it is all about

As for the fine front of the theatre itself, we can vouch for that without the aid of a photograph because we passed there during the run of "Cock-Eyed World" and found a most attractive front, far different from what we recalled when we had last seen the Beverley some three years ago.

Great work, Lou, and I am sure you are continuing the same fine work at the Ambassador Theatre. Stop in and say hello the next time you are in N. Y. and remember me to the gang on the Fox Chain.

Black-and-White Cost

for

Colored Sound Pictures

Now—at low cost—sound pictures can be printed without sacrificing any of the delicate tints formerly used.... Eastman Sonochrome Tinted Positive Films have given the industry a wider range of tints than was ever available before—in films so adjusted that they give amazingly faithful sound reproduction. And though they combine sound and color, these new Eastman films cost no more than regular black-and-white positive.

SILENCE....

What is Silence?... Silence is simply QUIET relative to normal sounds to which we are accustomed. ¶ Now that sound pictures are here the requirements for RELATIVE silence in your theatre are enormously increased. You must shut out street noises. You plead with the audience for silence. ¶ You MUST have ventilation and air conditioning. If the fans and air rush are noisy do you shut down the system and let the audience suffer, or do you amplify the sound to the extent of DISTORTION AND BAD REPRODUCTION? ¶ Carrier Engineers have anticipated these requirements and now, after most thorough laboratory research, have MASTERED the noise problem. All Carrier Systems that are now being placed in sound stages and theatres are guaranteed as to sound level; that is, guaranteed NOT to produce sounds disturbing to recording or reproduction.

HE Carrier System for Air Conditioning is the only system guaranteed on a scientific db. basis as to sound level. Added to all the well-known Carrier perfected features of control is now the sound limit guarantee.

Fox theatres Spencer equipped . . .

These prominent Fox theatres on the West Coast are equipped with both the Spencer Central Cleaning System and the Spencer Orgoblo.

Spencer Equipped does more than merely save operating and maintenance costs—it provides a service to the public which is a living advertisement for the theatre and its management. All over the country you will find theatres that are Spencer Equipped.

SPENCER VACUUM CLEANERS

Spencer Vacuum Cleaning Systems are flexible, which enables the operator to clean aisles, underneath seats, the stage, wall furnishings, and the most inaccessible places with equal ease.

This dustless cleaning materially helps the ventilating problem and prolongs the life of the fabrics.

THE SPENCER STEEL "ORGOBLO"

Regardless of size—whether the world's largest organ or a small instrument, there is a Spencer "Orgoblo" to furnish the proper wind supply. "Orgoblos" range in size from 1-6 H.P. units suitable for student reed organs to mammoth 100 H.P. multi-stage, multi-pressure machines.

For years the Spencer "Orgoblo" has proved the most popular installation of its kind. Spencer 50 H. P. Orgoblo Two of these are installed in the Fox San Francisco Theatre

In eighteen months Publix Theatres, Inc., has purchased over 70,000 Heywood-Wakefield chairs! NOW they order 40,000 more! What finer or more convincing recommendation could be made for any theatre chair? Before Publix officials ordered the first 70,000, their chemists, engineers, and maintenance men made an exhaustive study of theatre chair construction, comfort, and style. The contract was placed with Heywood-Wakefield. NOW, after 70.000 chairs are installed. Publix officials have been so impressed with the chairs, service, and the installations that they repeat with an order for 40,000 more. . . . Pantages, Orpheum, Schine, Saxe, and many other leading showmen in the United States are installing Heywood-Wakefield chairs for good, money-making reasons. Let us tell you and show you why. . . . Analyzes

"Theatre Personality" and its application to the new type theatre of the Sound Era

A THEATRE has a personality—or should have. Belasco's, Keith's, Ziegfeld's theatres are unique, expressive. They have distinct and consistent personalities.

What is a theatre's personality? Well, let's analyze it.

It is a particular showman's idea of what will most please his particular clientele.

It will, of course, vary a good deal; just as people and what will please them vary a good deal.

There are the people of the big cities, the small towns, the neighborhoods of the cities. People at home, people traveling, people of the East and West, the North and South; there's a wide latitude of taste here.

In conceiving the Paramount Theatre in New York, I aimed to make it reflect the glitter and opulence of the Great White Way. It is successful, so it must please the people who flock to it and make it such an outstanding success.

But you wouldn't want that style in a neighborhood theatre. With people who go regularly to a theatre, the theatre must wear well, like a home. It had best be subdued, restful, comfortable, not too obtrusive.

Take Hollywood Boulevard. It seems to call for the bizarre. So we have Grauman's Egyptian and Chinese theatres, both highly successful in their day. But you wouldn't build such theatres in a New England city.

I am mentioning now what may seem to be too obvious contrasts. But it is just to drive home the thought that a theatre anywhere must reflect the tastes of its particular public. A showman is wise in his ability to feel and successfully interpret these tastes.

Then there's the element of time to consider.

Fashions change everywhere.

I believe that the theatre of today should be what we term modernistic. Simple in its lines, spacious, rich, without seeming to be rich, cool, airy, cleanly. If I were to build a big theatre today on the West Coast, I would aim to have it reflect the spaciousness, dignity and out-of-doorness of the West. California represents the newest in thought, so I would have newness in design and decoration—not futuristic, but just the advanced expression of today.

I am not speaking now of radical advances in theatre design. There are certain things we know in the theatre business out of long experience. We must observe every practical point. The thing to do is to keep just a bit ahead of the times but not outdistance them; nor can we sacrifice important requirements just to attain style.

Another thing we must bear in mind these days is this: We do not cater merely to movie audiences any more. With the advent of sound the picture has whirled around and gathered to itself and incorporated within itself every form of stage entertainment; legitimate, vaudeville, burlesque, opera, operetta, even the lecture platform. So that now one theatre audience represents every walk of life and therefore a composite requirement in the way of theatre attractiveness.

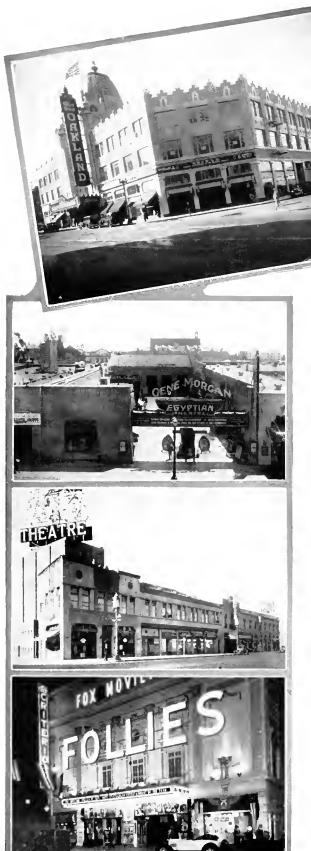

Still more to the point is the fact that sound has presented a brand new program of theatre construction. Formerly and for years we had only light projection to consider; now we must think of sound.

Theatres must be built with two main ends in mind:

(1) To attain, in a general way, the best possible acoustics.

(2) To secure sound absorption.

There are many things to be said here. But I will leave these for the sound engineers. They do not fit into this brief and very general introduction to a large subject and one which I am viewing only from the standpoint of the showman.

An immediate problem is that of the standing crowds in the rear of the theatre. In our sound equipped houses we have, under strict orders, done away with standing room only admission. The noise and confusion hurts the sound effects.

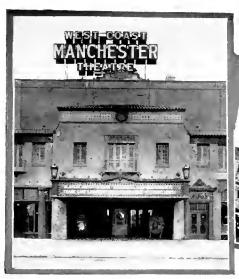

Then there's the orchestra pit, which, except only in the large de luxe houses, is now obsolete in this new era of mechanical music. I figure that the doing away of the orchestra pit in the Fox Western theatres will add 30,000 seats. This is a big box-office item.

Every item in theatre construction must now be subjected to the sound problem. Take the ventilating systems, for instance. We are now having these lined with cork to deaden just the sound of the flow of air.

The theatre lobby will be changed. Lobby display will now be in sound. The posters, like the picture have been silent. Now they will speak and sing. From picture frames will come records of song hits, or thrilling lines or pieces of dialogue in the picture.

Seats must be built now with the point of sound absorption to the forefront. Also, I believe, more room, and therefore greater comfort, is now a factor. In one new San Diego house the clearance—back to back—is thirty-four inches. The new super theatre will have at least thirty-six inches clearance.

Lighting, also, will be effected by the sound problem. Chandeliers, we find, vibrate with the sound waves. This decorative element, therefore, must be done away with muless in some way it may be modified to fit sound requirements.

Refrigeration is highly important in the modern theatre.

Then there's the big screen. That's a new and big problem to face; and maybe it is nearer at hand than is generally believed. The wide pictures will call for new stage contours; not only that but for new theatre contours. There must be new sight lines from certain important points of the theatre; for instance, clearance of sight from under the galleries. It would appear that mezzanines now will have to be converted into rest rooms, art galleries or some other and similar utilization of the space.

These changes are going to be difficult and expensive—in many instances to the point of distraction upon the part of the theatre owner. But after all the public interest will be stimulated, and the public interest is all that counts. We are fortunate to be in a show business in which this interest can be so greatly stimulated.

In closing, there are two points to which I have referred which I want to emphasize.

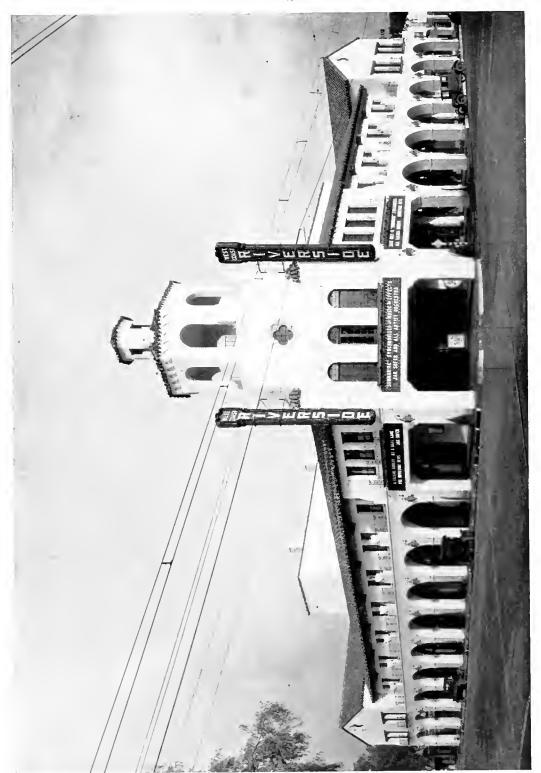

One is the new type of audience we now have, due to the talking picture. The other is the fact that the picture business, embracing as it now does all the gamut of the amusement world, has acquired a new dignity and solidity.

These large facts call for a new type of theatre, which is bound to be a considerable departure from our so-called era of gilded palaces. I do not believe it is at all necessary to lose the romance of the movies nor the self advertisement of the great glittering theatres we have built. A good deal of this may and should be held but I do believe that the picture theatre of today and the future should more clearly reflect with the new character of the business itself and the taste of its new kind of audience.

THE RELATION OF ARCHITECTURE TO SHOWMANSHIP

Designer Must View His Problem from the Angle of the Showman

By Clifford A. Balch

Balch & Stanbery, Architect and Engineer

Notion Picture News Buyers Guide is dedicated to Fox Western Theatres, we feel particularly honored in being included in this issue. To have been selected as architects by that organization to design many of the fine places of entertainment on the Pacific Coast is indeed gratifying.

At least a decade ago, we became identified with theatre work in California, through the then West Coast Theatres. That was at the time when the small nine hundred seat community motion picture theatre was the vogue. From then on until the present we have specialized in theatre design, seeing the demand for larger and more palatial theatres grow with the communities.

This increasing field of activity demands that the Architect shall be a specialist. One is naturally drawn to that work which gives him the greatest pleasure in performing. There are church architects, residence architects, industrial architects and so on; each one a specialist in the design of a particular class of building. He becomes a specialist because he likes that special type of work and consequently makes a study of it. He becomes familiar with certain requirements that might be overlooked by another. His advice is sought by those who know of his knowledge and in the end, owners who plan to erect that particular type of building, go to him.

A word might be said right here regarding the Architect's fee. The owner should not look at the Architect's fee as an unjustified expense. He should remember that the Architect is his representative. It is up to the Architect to see that the owner gets that for which he has bargained.

As to the amount of the Architect's fee, unfortunately for the Architect, there is no recognized standard. The average layman has no comprehension of the amount of time and expense involved in producing plans and specifications and supervising the work. In the production of theatre plans the expense is greater than in any other work, so when your Architect tells you he wants six per cent of the cost of the building, he will be lucky if he comes out on the right side of the ledger.

The owner who contemplates erecting a theatre will be wise in selecting for his Architects, a firm with wide experience in theatre design. There are so many things involved in planning a theatre, things which would not ordinarily come within the everyday working knowledge of the general practitioner, which the theatre Architect must know and with which he must be familiar. First of all, there are state, city or county laws, governing theatres. This is important, because no end of trouble and expense are occasioned when the building is not erected in conformity with local ordinances. He must know how to arrive at the best sight lines and the proper angles of projection. These are things that cannot be rectified after the building is completed. He must know the acoustical problems involved and which acoustical corrective mediums have merit and will give the results desired. Heating and ventilating problems will confront him and he must be able to choose the best for the contemplated financial outlay. He must look at his prob-Iem from the angle of the showman, whose objective is a satisfied patronage and adequate box office returns. The location of rest rooms and lounge rooms must be convenient and easily accessible and of a size sufficient to the capacity of the house.

Far too often insufficient thought is given to the size and decoration of the lobby and fover. On the first visit of a theatre patron he come with an open mind. The first things he sees form an impression. The beauty of lobby and fover he can see and appreciate. Its pleasing decoration and lighting puts him into a pleasant frame of mind. If a small theatre, the coziness and warmth of the lobby and fover has its effect. If a large theatre, the spaciousness and scale creates an impression which puts him in a receptive mood when he views the performance.

In the auditorium subdued lighting in colors will often take the place of expensive ornament which is, in a great many cases, wasted money or money which could have been used to greater advantage elsewhere.

Another fault and false economy is the placing of seats so close together, that is, back to back, that the patron is uncomfortable throughout the entire performance. No matter how good the program, uncomfortable chairs will keep many from approaching the box office again. It would be better to sacrifice a few seats and keep them filled

Before closing this article, we want to express our appreciation to the many sub-trades and manufacturers who join with us in offering congratulations and best wishes to Fox Western Theatres in this special number of the MOTION PICTURE NEWS. As stated at the beginning, it gives us a feeling of genuine pleasure to have had a part in the expansion program of the organization to which this issue is dedicated and we hope that the public, the nation over, will continue to benefit in ever increasing numbers from the efforts of this Fox organization and the officials who govern it.

STRETCHING THE BUILDING FUND AND THE PLOT AREA

How to Eat Your Pie and Have It Too Is Problem Put Up to Architect

By S. Charles Lee

President, S. Charles Lee, Ltd., Architects and Engineers

I F there were any such thing as a lot or money stretcher, this article would probably be unnecessary, but as it is almost always necessary to get more on a lot than there is space for, and to build more buildings than there are available funds for, I am always called upon to answer the question, "How to Eat Your Pie and Have It, Too."

The old rules of architectural analysis are as worn out for pleasing the public as "Gunga Din." What we must remember is that every American citizen considers himself a king in his own little empire. This is the beginning of the psychological analysis of a theatre building, but the money spent must be more carefully considered than of vore; while it is true that theatres cost more in dollars and cents actually spent, if compared with the commodity index of a dollar's value it is actually less. (This, of course, does not take into consideration the exception de luxe houses, but is an analysis of the average run houses.)

Now let us take some concrete cases and determine the important factor:

Assume a corner lot 120 ft. by 175 ft., being not an exceptionally large lot but a very expensive one. There is necessary a stage not less than twenty-eight feet. Now the entrance should be on the corner, not because corner entrances are so good but the location of the property is such that the advertising value will be considerable if on the corner. The next question is, should there be stores? They will not bring a great income and will materially cut into the seating. Stores, in a building where they will rent at all, are a great asset; not so much from an income standpoint, but they form a certain amount of amusement to patrons when forced to wait in line outside, for a performance, and the lights in the windows create a more festive atmosphere and brighten the front, which is very important in instilling a "mood" in incoming audiences. The designs of the store fronts are quite important in creating the above mentioned interest, and although the space occupied by these stores helps to "eat up your pie" (as the seating capacity may be considered), it is interest that tends to keep the crowds satisfied.

The next important sacrifice of precious seating room is for lobby and foyer, and with a real determination this space must be freely given. When the minimum space to be allotted to this purpose is determined upon then the Architect must use his greatest skill to make this space seem larger, for remember the King American, and the only way you can satisfy this vanity is to give till it hurts.

One of the ways to keep your pie is to lessen steps—vertically, not horizontally, and that means to create a feeling of ease in designing stairways.

Discourage your patrons from going into the balcony, and you have created a "vacancy" in your seating plan that cannot be rented. Examine Plan "A" and Plan "B," and you will notice two radically different stair systems, both of which pull up instead of discouraging down. This is the most important architectural study of a balcony condition, as your balcony seats are worth no more than the satis faction of the people who use them. This has been recognized in most all de luxe houses, but has been sadly neglected in the average smaller theatre.

The next very important development of recent years is the placing of seats within the "talkie" range. The camera placing of seats within the "talkie" range. The camera angle has always been an important factor of seating, but now the talkie angle has increased the demand for center banks of seats greater than ever before. Due to the horn construction as used today, the voice travels in almost as straight a line as the picture impression, and a wide angle in most cases gives an unsatisfactory picture from two standpoints now instead of one as in past years.

Thus, a new architectural study presents itself with each of the major scientific or technical developments made in connection with motion picture presentations.

A further study of plan A and B shows an unusual set-up for a 100 ft. to 125 ft. lot condition. By curtailing the width of the auditorium better seat distribution, better sound distribution, and a very economical construction unit has been developed.

Plan C illustrates an unusual adaptation of a fifty foot lot. Here the building is located in the heart of the down town district and theories I have outlined above to keep the stores in, has been worked out to its maximum degree.

This theatre, located in Los Angeles, is an outstanding success, achieved only after concentrated application of the theories outlined in this article. On this same site formerly stood an unsuccessful theatre of the same seating capacity without stores, lobby and other desirable features as discussed.

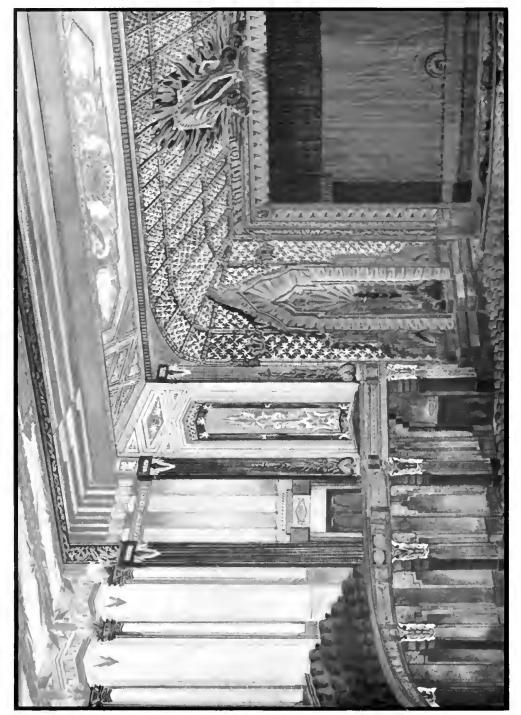

Having given up seating space for lobby and stores, the earning capacity of the theatre building has been increased to a gratifying degree, proving that it is possible to "eat your pie and have it too."

THEATRE CONSTRUCTION IS A SPECIALIZED CRAFT

Co-operation with Specialist Architect Essential to Economy

By Henry I. Beller

President, Henry I. Beller Construction Company

PLAYHOUSE construction is distinctly an art in itself. With developments coming almost hourly in sound and talking picture effects, new forms of lighting, stereoscopic screens, silver sheets that can be magnified or diminished at the twist of a switch, it may be said that the building of motion picture theatres has developed to the point where the touch of specialists is not only advisable but a definite necessity.

When the prospective theatre owner has selected an architect whose experience in theatre designing and engineering qualify him to design a building which will combine the maximum of beauty and efficiency with the lowest possible price, he should give his attention to providing the architect with the co-operation which will enable him to produce the desired result.

Experience over a long term of years shows that where the owner selects his contractor at the inception of the project and permits him to co-operate with the architect in the actual development of the building, the result is invariably that a better structure is produced at less cost than if the architect is left to his own devices in designing and engineering.

The advantage of this co-operation is obvious. For example, in the last nineteen years, the members of our organization have been associated with the building of approximately 160 theatres, designed by probably 20 or 25 architects, all contributing their best ideas of design and engineering to each individual project. Each new theatre presents its own problems of design and engineering.

Strange as it may seem, the designing and engineering of a theatre offer greater problems and more opportunities to spend or save money than any other type of building.

The chief problem of an architect is to design the theatre so that the greatest value may be obtained for the money to be spent. Almost invariably the owner has a certain limited amount which he wishes to spend. To do this there is required experience in actual building or the buying of materials, particularly with the prevalent fluctuations in prices of materials. It must also be remembered that the architect can draw only from his own experience in devising ways and means to cut costs, whereas the specialist building organization has the benefit of the best ideas and talents of the many architects with whom it has worked.

This experience is particularly valuable at the present time as the demands of theatre-going public are greater than ever before. They want the utmost facilities for comfort and entertainment, the furnishing of which necessitates a wide knowledge of acoustics, air conditioning, and many other technical problems.

Our experience is that architects, almost without exception, prefer this method. It is to be expected that when the various parts of the plans and specifications are prepared by different designers and engineers, no matter how competent they may be, there may be certain deficiencies in the correlation of the various parts of the work. In many instances this condition is negligible, in some, it is very serious, depending on the ability of the architect and engineer and their experience in theatre design.

This is where the march of the extras starts. Each time a change has to be made in the plans, the owner has to pay for it, and if the job has been let to an irresponsible contractor who has cut his price to the point where his only possibility of profit lies in tacking on extras, then the owner can be sure that he pays much more than the legitimate price for every extra.

In conclusion, I may repeat that our experience has proved that the prospective theatre builder will save time and money if he will select a contractor experienced in theatre developing and building at the same time he chooses his architect, in order that the services of the contractor's organization and the benefit of his experience may be available from the start.

No. 25-W Gas-Era Boiler, fully automatic, completely insulated, a size for any requirement.

MUELLER

GAS-ERA FURNACES & BOILERS

MUELLER Gas-Era Furnaces and Boilers are built to give the customer permanent service.

Heating units are of heavy cast iron construction—built to give life-time service.

Because of this, the Mueller Gas-Era Furnace is the only gasfired furnace that is really suited to forced air heating.

Mneller Gas-Era Fnrnaces, equipped for forced air circulation, are being used extensively on large installations, such as churches, theatres, schools and public buildings, where heat and ventilation are essential requirements.

In details of operation, the finest, most positive automatic controls are provided, assuring the owner the highest measure of dependable, trouble-free operation.

Typical Large Installations of Gas-Era Furnaces and Boilers

OTIS THEATRICAL EQUIPMENT

TIS Theatrical Lifting Equipment is built to the same exacting standards as all other machinery bearing the Otis name. There is no compromise with quality, and dependability and long life are inbuilt characteristics of all Otis machines, whether for general or specialized uses.

The Otis Console Elevator was developed to meet the demand for a reliable electric elevator for raising and lowering organ consoles, pianos and similar apparatus. It embodies many unusual features, chief of which are the Worm Geared Lifting Screw, which assures safety, freedom from vibration and exceptionally quiet operation.

Otis Stage Elevators are built in a variety of sizes and types, to suit individual requirements.

For regular use in transporting patrons from floor to floor, Otis Elevators are the recognized standard. They provide a safe, speedy and dependable service, which can be effectively supplemented by one or more Escalators.

All Otis Equipment is backed up by a nation-wide system of Otis offices, manned by trained service and repair men—ready at any time to give service on any product of Otis manufacture.

SPHINX

the silent COOLING AND VENTILATING SYSTEM for the new show world! (talking pictures)

A new page has been turned in the history of theatre equipment. The new Sphinx Cooling and Ventilating System has achieved the ultimate in cooling and ventilating efficiency and through its amazingly quiet operation becomes an indispensable asset to every theatre where perfection in the presentation of "talking pictures" is desired.

Superbly built, with new exclusive features found in no other system, the Sphinx has been proclaimed by engineers, architects and exhibitors themselves as the supreme cooling and ventilating development of all time.

Absolutely noiseless, the Sphinx has established a standard of performance heretofore thought impossible.

Equipment Requirements for Sound Picture Installations

Various apparatus involved in preparation of theatres for improved reproduction covers wide range of items designed to meet demands of new operating conditions

HE purpose of this catalogue is to consolidate, in one complete and self-sufficient department of The Buyer's Guide, descriptions and data relative to sound reproducing apparatus and those other items of equipment which actual theatre experience has shown are a necessary adjunct to the sound installation capable of producing quality results.

As will be seen by the listings in this section of the Guide. the items which are requisite to the up-to-date and efficientlyoperated sound theatre cover a wide range of equipment and materials for the projection room, the stage, and the auditorium.

The several and various items covered by no means exhaust the list of devices and materials for which extensive demand has been created. They include, however, those which survey and investigation reveal as being in common use at theatres of various classes and capacities where sound policies have been in operation for periods of a year or more.

Box Office

Box office returns at these theatres have Sound And The shown the unmistakable relation that exists between the profit derived from talkie presentations and the quality of the reproduction of speech and music issuing from the audible screen. It has become increasingly apparent that in the majority of instances, reproducing apparatus stripped of refinements introduced by various aids to efficient operation and improved sound quality will not suffice to meet the requirements of present-day competition. The necessary implements, based on experience, are those equipments which are included in this catalogue as accessories to the sound installation.

Demands by theatres where sound has been installed have made the following items of the equipment line especially active during the past year and a half:

Sound Screens Film Splicers Film Cleaners Screen Masks Horn Towers Automatic Rewinders Acoustical Materials High Intensity Arc Lamps Sound Proof Projection Ports Air conditioning Systems Disc Record Cabinets Carpets and Carpet Linings Film Cabinets Draperies Film Measuring Machines Record Libraries

Previous to the time when talkies became an established form of dramatic entertainment rather than a scientific novelty, the requirements which today are practically general were not considered necessary to a sound installation. However, as competition developed and the public became more discriminating, sound quality and more skillful presentation was needed to maintain the interest and patronage of theatregoers. Installations made early in the development of sound later were built up, on the installment plan as it were, to meet the standards of the present type of plant involving many accessory devices. Later the tendency was toward doing the whole job in one installment operation, if for no other reason than that it has proved good business to capitalize the full potential box office value of talkies at the outset of their introduction.

Talkie Profits

Sound reproducing equipment is of two Accessories To types, sound-on-film and disc-or a combination of the two. Component parts of the disc reproducer are the turntables -one for each projector equipped-with magnetic pick-ups, main amplifier, speakers, and booth monitors, fader or volume control, and storage batteries or eliminators. Turntables are synchronized to projectors by direct coupling to the drive of the projector, or hy synchronous motors coupled to the turntable and the projector. Sound-on-film reproducers employ "sound heads" fixed to the projector, through which the film recording is "picked up" by means of an exciter lamp and a photo-electric cell, and a preliminary amplifier to "boost" the electrical impulses set up by the photo-electric cell. From that point in the operation on, amplification and reproduction units similar to those for disc reproducers are employed. Combination, or dual systems, use the same main amplifiers and speaker channels for both types of reproduction.

Aside from space requirements which may necessitate alterations in the layout of projection rooms, the sound reproducer, whether single or dual system, requires precision mechanical action. This, naturally, demands that the projector to which the reproducer is attached shall be in a state of good repair. Vibration in any part of the projector translates itself into sound disturbances which can be overcome only by correction of the basic cause. Thus, when projectors have been in service for long periods and have mechanical faults due to wear which would not seriously impair them for silent picture projection, they often prove to be troublesome when used for sound, and a great number of theatre owners have made major repairs or replacements to older projectors, or installed entirely new ones in order to get the best results from their sound systems.

Requirements

The high intensity arc is practically a New Projection universal requirement when sound is installed. Screens which are sound porous have not the reflection qualities for light possessed by the opaque screens used for silent films, and the deficiency must be compensated at the light source. Sufficient brilliance for proper projection cannot be obtained with the type of light source which was in general use for silent projection. Consequently, high intensity are lamps are an essential accessory to the sound installation.

mand and which have been improved to meet new requirements introduced by sound, are automatic rewinders, film measuring machines, film cleaning and inspection machines, and improved designs of film splicing machines. Sound film, particularly with sound-track recording, must be in perfect condition as to cleanliness and patches and must be handled with the utmost care. Disc record cabinets and film cabinets are other furnishings which facilitate the work of booth operation. Sound-proof projector ports are being installed in most theatres to keep booth noises from reaching the auditorium. These are metal frames with panels of optical glass through which pictures may be projected without distortion.

On the stage end of the system, of course, a sound-porous screen is needed. Where the presentation of stage numbers requires clearing of the stage, horn towers or lifts are needed to remove horns from view when the curtain is up and return them to the exact position in which they must be set to operate properly. Automatically-controlled screen masks to adjust the screen areas to the two differently proportioned pictures—those with sound track recording and those with sound-on-disc—supply another important need.

Stresses Need for Quiet

Sound pictures have emphasized the need for quiet in the motion picture theatre. This brings a two-sided problem for the theatre operator to solve. His patrons must be educated to observe the rule of "silence," and he must reduce the sources of noise. These are uncovered, or thinly covered floors and stair-treads. and creaky chairs. Acoustical correction work is another auditorium requirement. Much of this is done by the use of carpet and carpet linings and upholstered seats. But reverberation spots are not confined to the lower portion of the auditorium. Wall and ceiling surfaces are frequently the most troublesome source of acoustical difficulties, and in this work materials especially developed for sound-absorption are employed.

Acoustical correction is a highly specialized work, calling for the application of scientific principles to the location of the source of reverberation, "dead spots," poor distribution of sound, etc., and methods for correcting them satisfactorily. In consequence, many theatre men, after long and patient efforts to improve the quality of reproduction by the "cut and try" method, have finally turned to the acoustical engineer for advice and help. Such engineering service is available from a number of companies specializing in the manufacture of soundabsorbing materials and acoustical corrective work.

Another most important feature affected is the ventilation and air conditioning apparatus. Under average conditions, speech and music from natural sources are not disturbed by the slight noise set up by the ventilation apparatus. However, the much more delicate conditions obtaining in connection with reproduced sound are subject to interference from these same slight vibrations.

Rapid strides which have been made in sound reproduction in connection with picture presentations have built up a tradition and an experience which will do much for the theatre man who installs a new system or is encountering difficulties with an older installation, provided the experience of others is taken into account and its lessons applied to plans for complete systems or refinements to existing plants. A survey of theatres experienced with sound makes plain the fact that there is but one profitable, ultimately satisfactory and efficient method to be followed, and that is to do a thorough job when equipping for talkies. Making a good installation of good equipment and supplying operators with every facility to handle the new medium efficiently, is the one way to make talkies pay, according to the majority opinion of theatre men experienced in handling sound.

THE FAMOUS TEN POINTS

Which Have Made LUPERTON PARAMOUNT

In the Field of Synchronous Equipment

- Specially machined sprocket gear attached to meter shaft,
- New type smooth-running chain drive that has perfect flexibility and positive mesh engagement with sprocket gear— resulting in perfect synchronization.
- Companion gear to gear No. 1, mounted on one end of motor shaft. This is also a sprocket gear which, because of its positive engagement with chain No. 2 runs in perfect unison with gear No. 1.
- Smooth running 1,800 R.P.M. synchronous motor, drives projector with a mechanical precision that results in an exact showing of 90 pictures per minute, which is per/ect projection.
- Gear hox mounted on opposite ead of synchronous motor, drives shaft 6.
- On the opposite end of shaft 6, under the turn-table, is a metal worm, meshed with a fibre gear, which combination means long life and smooth running.

- 16-inch perfectly aligned tura-table, runs in exact synchronization with the pro-jection, thereby giving perfect reproduc-tion, uniform speed and pitch.
- 8. The latest and hest type of pick-up, which has been adopted after testing and elimi-nating practically all other makes. The impedence has been found to match per-fectly with our amplifiers and speakers. Balanced so as to provide perfect tracking.
- Mater unit entirely separate from projector and eatirely separate from turntable, which moves an possible motor inhesting from tittle processor or turntable, as the mater is placed at right angles to turn-table, it further eliminates all possibility of vibration, through the use of special attachment which absorbs any motor motion before it reaches the turn-table.
- Solid base with graceful lines. It is adjustable and can be firmly anchored to any projection room floor.

The LITTLEFORD Adjustable

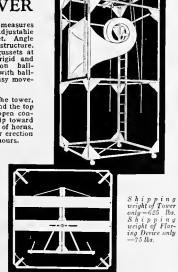

HORN TOWER

The Littleford Horn Tower measures 77" square and has an adjustable height of from 12 to 18 feet. Angle irons 2"x2"x3-16" form the structure. It is strongly reinforced by gussets at each corner—the tower is rigid and free from wihration. Colson ball-bearing rubber-tired casters with ball-bearing swivels permit of easy movement about the stage.

The ladder at the rear of the tower, the wooden nailing strip around the top (used for draping) and the open construction of the tower all help toward an easy, accurate installation of horns. Approximate time required for erection—two men from four to five hours.

By the addition of the Flaring Device (Patent Pending) the Littleford Tower is converted into the most advanced piece of equipment for the installation and adjustment of horns for Sound Pictures—horns may be flared to right or left, up or down.

your carpets

LAID and CLEANED quickly inexpensively

All the West Coast Theatres' carpet laying and cleaning is done by Zandt. Two recent instal-lations are the Fox Palace, Los Angeles, and the beautiful new San Diego Fox Theatre. Carpets, well-layed, give your theatre a well-dressed appearance. And we put them down . . . the way it should be done! Or, if it's a question of cleaning and renovating the carpets you already have-our modern method restores life and color . . . makes them look like new, in a jiffy. Just phone Hollywood 5161. We will be glad to furnish estimates.

ELECTRICALLY one responsibility in

he New FOX Theatre

IN the engaging atmosphere of the new Fox Theatre in San Francisco, Westinghouse equipment is playing a conspicuous role—a part that offers a striking example of cooperative effort and unified responsibility.

The Westinghouse Multi-pre-set Switchboard affords remarkable flexibility of control—lighting changes being carried out with smoothness and precision. This equipment is automatically controlled, and so designed that lighting effects can be arranged in advance, synchronized not only with the films, but with the stage presentations.

Westinghouse motor-generator sets supply a steady, full white light for flawless projection. Flickers, stops and other annoying elements are eliminated, and change-overs are made without interrupting the run of the picture. And the air you breathe is controlled electrically. Westinghouse motors drive fans and blowers that circulate fresh, clean air to every part of the building. From stage to lobby, the thread of Westinghouse electrification is woven throughout this ultra-modern amusement palace.

For years Westinghouse has worked hand-in-hand with architects, not only in analyzing conditions and requirements, but in discovering new ways in which electrical apparatus could add to the appearance, safety, comfort and efficiency of buildings.
